President Holds a Bash

White House Swings for the Duke

WASHINGTON(AP) —The warm, driving jazz of Duke Ellington filled the East Room, buffing everything to a high, festive glow in one of the swingingest evenings ever at the White House.

The bash honored the Duke on his 70th birthday and, appropriately, everything was topped off with a jam session that didn't break up until 2:15 a.m.

Ellington was awarded a Medal of Freedom by President Nixon and even the citation was hip: "... In the royalty of American music no man swings more or stands higher than the Duke."

Ellington danced, signed autographs, kissed almost everyone on the cheek, including the President, and took a turn at the piano. His judgement on the evening: "Lovely."

Singer Mahalia Jackson pointed out that it was the first time a black man had ever been honored at the White House. And to gauge the fun, a butler said, "I would have worked for nothing tonight."

An all-star jazz ensemble played a strictly Ellington program after a black-tie dinner. The group was the nucleus of the jam session later that included Billy Eckstine, Dizzy Gillespie, Nixon's law partner, Lem Garmant on clarinet, and some scarlet-tunicked members of the Marine Band.

President Nixon led a champagne toast "to the greatest Duke of them all—Duke Ellington." He also sat in on piano, tinkling "Happy Birthday." The 180 guests joined in hearty chorus. The Nixons left the party at midnight.

Duke already has eight honorary degres, membership on the National Council of Arts and his profile on a stamp of Togoland. So he was not awed to be at the White House, where his father was part-time butler during the Harding administration.

With Duke were five relatives, his sister, Ruth, son Mercer and his wife, grandson Edward K. II and granddaughter Gaye. In the crowd were Benny Goodman, Cab Calloway, Billy Eckstine, Mahalia Jackson and Richard Rogers.

Thomas Whaley, 77, who has wailed with the Ellington band, said Duke is "the most peaceful man in the world." Then Whaley remembered he'd played in this place before when "that guy after Taft—Hoover—that's the guy" was in office.

Soul singer Lou Rawls said he and the President "talked about soul food.

President Laughs

"I said the hors d'oeurves could have at least been fricasseed chitline on toothpicks." Rawls said the President laughed.

Duke is 70 years old now, does that have any effect on his art? a newsman asked earlier.

"What's age got to do with music?" the Duke parried.

How does he keep up the pace? Clean living? Jogging?

That one gassed the Duke. "Hey, that's good." When he finished a hearty chuckle he said, "the only thing I do outdoors is concerts"

Nixon Seeks Millions of Americans

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon launched a program today to help enlist millions of Americans in volunteer community efforts to help deal with urban and poverty problems.

"People can reach where government cannot, people can do what government cannot," Nixon said in a statement calling on Americans to join in common enterprises to help one another.

Nixon plans to rump $1 million into an effort to enlist volunteers across America. He said he will set up a Cabinet Committee on Voluntary Action, with Secretary George Romney of the Department of Housing and Urban Development as its chairman, and establish a clearing house for information on where volunteers and voluntary programs are most needed.

The President said that millions of Americans have asked how and what they can do to help and the chief aim of this new effort will be to give them some answers.

"Willing Hands"

"One of the chief aims of this administration is to help to match up the willing hands with the tasks that need doing," Nixon said.

He emphasized that America "needs the enlistment of the energies and resources of its people—not as substitutes for government action, but as supplements to it."

Nixon said: "America needs the hearts and hands of its people, joined in those common enterprises, small as well as large, that are the mark of caring and the cement of the community."

Max M. Fisher, a Detroit businessman active in volunteer efforts, was named to serve as special presidential consultant on voluntary action, to work with Romney and the committee.

At a White House briefing, Romney emphasized that his role would be one of an ambassador with the private sector and that there would be no encroachment whatsoever on the private nature of the far-flung social service, health, welfare, community, civic, fraternal and other private organizations now operating.

In a statement, Romney quoted from Nixon's inaugural address referring to "America's crisis of the spirit" and said that the spirit of the people must be engaged.

"If we are to find solutions to the full spectrum of our nation's problems," Romney said, "we must employ the full range of our resources."

He cited such programs as college students giving their time to tutor inner-city children, housewives volunteering to help in a neighborhood center or school or raising funds for charity and a giant corporation using its resources to enrich a school curriculum.

"Every American"

"Eventually we hope to enlist every American as a citizen volunteer," Romney said.

And, he declared the effort

Contrary to other demonstrations, however, Calvary students were armed with rakes, shovels and mowers. Their list of demands included making the campus look better, as they demonstrate here. The students said they wanted to show the administration they like the way the college is being run. (AP Wirephoto)

4 Frenchmen, Maybe More, Enter Contest for Presidency

PARIS (AP) — Four veteran politicians were flirting with the French presidency today, and more may be in the offing.

President Charles de Gaulle's former premier, Georges Pompidou, staked his claim as heir-apparent Tuesday, announcing he was a candidate.

Shortly after, Socialist Gaston Defferre renewed his search for a third force between Gaullism and Communism and sought his party's endorsement to run. And the Communists, rebuffed in an attempt to form a coalition with the Socialists, prepared the nomination of Sen. Jacques Duclos, a party workhorse.

On the extreme right, Georges Bidault, the wartime Resistance leader who later turned against De Gaulle over Algeria, declared his availability.

De Gaulle was in seclusion at his home in Colombey-les-Deux-Eglises. Gaullist leaders said he would remain silent until a new president has been selected and would neither support nor repudiate Pompidou's candidacy.

This seemed to be enough for such Gaullist "barons" as Foreign Minister Michel Debre, Roger Frey and Premier Maurice Couve de Murville. They "acclaimed" Pompidou's move at a party caucus, informed sources said.

Little Ceremony

Alain Poher, the Centrist Senate president acting as an interim chief executive, went about his business with a minimum of ceremony and appeared undecided about joining the contest. Informants said several Centrist leaders were presuring him to become a candidate.

Poher's principal task is to organize presidential elections. A date will be decided Friday by the cabinet left by De Gaulle when he quit last Monday after French voters defeated a national referendum he had sponsored.

The Cabinet was expected to confirm June 1 as the date for the opening round of the two-stage voting. If there is no majority in the first round, the two high men face each other in a runoff, probably June 15. The presidential term is seven years.

Meanwhile the Communist CGT, France's biggest federation of trade unions, announced it will not take part in the traditional May Day parade because it said it had "precise information" that "leftists" planned to cause trouble.

The CGT had wanted to turn the march into a celebration over De Gaulle's departure, but the union said May Day trouble would only profit "reactionary circles, especially the (Gaullist) civic action committees."

Political observers in Brussels had forecast improved relations between France and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization now that De Gaulle is out. But an article in the May issue of the National Defense Review by the chief of staff of the French armed forces, said to have been prepared weeks ago with De Gaulle's approval, indicated the former president had already softened his stance toward NATO.

In the article, Air Force Gen. Michael Fourquet suggested France's "all or nothing" defense policy of massive nuclear retaliation might be replaced by one of "graduated action," similar to the "flexible response" policy of the United States.

What it amounts to is testing the enemy with conventional air, sea and land forces to determine his intentions and try to scare him off before using atomic strike forces.

De Gaulle had instituted the "all or nothing" policy and forged ahead with his own atomic strike force because he felt the United States would not launch a nuclear reprisal to aid its NATO partners in Europe.

But Fourquet said: "Theoretically, it would suffice to brandish the menace of the strategic nuclear force at the slightest threat of aggression" without necessarily using it.

2 Teen-Agers Killed In Car-Train Crash

OSHKOSH — Two 19-year-old Oshkosh residents were killed early today when the car they were riding in was struck by a Chicago & North Western freight train at Winnebago County Trunk GG, one-half mile east of U. S. 41 between Neenah and Oshkosh.

Killed were:

Gary L. Lucas, 743 Frederich St., driver of the car, and

Susan E. Schober, 802 N. Sawyer St.

Coroner Art C. Miller said their deaths, at about 1:25 a.m., were caused by severe head injuries.

Police at first feared the car's owner, Michael J. Zwicky, 20, 928 Grand St., had been in the car at the time of the accident. It later was learned he was in Neenah at the time.

County police said the car driven by Lucas was eastbound on County GG and the 45-car freight was southbound when the accident occurred.

J. P. O'Loughlin, North Fond du Lac, the train fireman, told police the train was traveling about 45 miles per hour and the locomotive horn had been sounded some time before the train reached the intersection. As the train neared the crossing, O'Loughlin said, a series of rapid, staccato blasts were sounded to warn the approaching car.

Police said there were no skid marks at the crash scene. The auto was demolished.

It was not until about 7:45 a.m. that police located Zwicky. He said the three had been visiting in Neenah Tuesday night and he had given Lucas permission to use his car.

Senate Backs Down

Pay Hikes for Congressional Leaders Run Into Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has backed away, at least temporarily, from approving extra pay raises for congressional officials after questions by some members about why they should get less money than their leaders.

When the bill calling for raising the leaders' pay as much as $19,500 a year reached the Senate floor Tuesday, Sen. John C. Pastore, D - R.I., objected, "I don't think it costs the speaker (of the House) any more to live in Washington than it costs me," he said.

The bill, already passed by the House, would raise the pay of the vice president and House speaker from $43,000 to $62,500 a year. The president pro temp of the Senate and the majority and minority leaders of both the Senate and the House would get pay raises from $42,500 to $55,000 a year.

Formal Motion

Caught in the middle when the dispute broke out unexpectedly was Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, whose pay raise wasn't opposed. In fact, Pastore suggested that only the vice president get the raise.

Amid indications of agreement from other senators, Sen. Peter Dominick, R-Colo., made a formal motion to give only Agnew a raise.

Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., interrupted and asked that the bill be recommitted to his Post Office and Civil Service Committee, which had approved the measure.

That motion carried, 64-21.

Earlier this year, Congress raised the President's pay from $100,000 to $200,000 a year.

Shortly thereafter, members accepted for themselves a $12,500 annual increase that sent their salaries to $42,500.

No Direct Vote

That boost, which also saw substantial raises go to federal judges and top officials in the executive department, was the first under a new procedure that does not require a direct vote by Congress.

Unless either the House or Senate vetoes the raises, they take effect automatically 30 days after the President recommends them.

And the whole procedure can be repeated every four years.

The first sign of trouble Tuesday for what had been considered a routine bill to restore premium pay scales for the leaders came on an amendment to abolish the automatic-raise machinery.

The amendment was offered by Sen. John J. Williams, who failed in his attempt early in the year to stop the first pay raises. But his Tuesday amendment was approved 49-36.

With the bill then amended over the objections of its backers, the questioning began about why the leaders, other than Agnew, should get more than their fellow members of Congress.

Joining Pastore were several economy minded senators, including Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va.

"The first thing we did this year was double the President's salary and the second thing we did was to raise our own pay," Byrd said.

"And while we are doing this, we are asking the taxpayers of this nation not only to cope with this terrible inflation but to pay a 10 per cent surtax that we tell them will cure this inflation."

Barry Jr. Joins Father As Member of Congress

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Barry M. Goldwater Jr. easily won election to Congress Tuesday in his first try for public office.

At a victory celebration, he paid tribute to his dad and mother "for the philosophy they instilled in me of love for God and country and a strong belief in the worth of each of us as individuals."

Republican Goldwater, a 30-year-old bachelor stockbroker, tallied 64,675 votes, or 57 per cent, to 48,933 for Democrat John K. Van de Kamp, 33, an attorney.

The returns were complete but unofficial in the special election to select a successor to Republican Ed Reinecke, who resigned to accept appointment as California's lieutenant governor.

The senior Goldwater, U.S. senator from Arizona and the Republican Party's 1964 presidential candidate, was obviously proud. Placing a hand on his son's shoulder, he told the victory celebrants:

"It gives our family another chance to pay a debt to the country that has done so much for us."

The senator's wife and another son, Mike, also were present.

In the campaign, young Barry had emphasized that while he was intensely proud of his father, he didn't want his help.

"This is my campaign, in my district," said Barry Jr. "I live here. I pay taxes here. I owe my loyalty here."

Van de Kamp, also a bachelor and making his first bid for office, contended the name was Goldwater's only major asset, and that he lacked experience. Van de Kamp emphasized his nine years in the U.S. attorney's office and claimed Goldwater was a carpetbagger who had voted in Arizona until last year.

Still an Improvement

Food Prices to Climb Higher Than Expected?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government experts are having second thoughts about their previous optimistic forecast that the increase in food prices this year might be held to between 2 and 2.5 per cent.

The Agriculture Department is in the process of re-examining its earlier projections, "and it may be that we'll find the outlook for food prices will rise as much as 3 per cent over last year," an official said. This still would be an improvement over last year when food prices soared 4.3 per cent.

The department is scheduled to issue a summary report on the national food situation soon Sources say the revised food-cost analysis, to be included in the report, will reflect a larger gain than previously expected.

Last week it was reported that food prices went up four-tenths of one per cent in March —a month in which grocery prices normally remain level. The previous month had shown a drop of two-tenths of a per cent.

Department sources say prices paid to farmers during the first quarter of this calendar year were stronger than economists had expected. This, coupled with continuing inflation in other areas, had caused the concern among some experts that their previous outlook for food prices was too low.

The department's farm price report for the month ending April 15 shows a decline of three-fourtns of one per cent in the index for prices farmers receive for their products, but this was the first drop since October.

And most of the April drop came in prices for eggs, milk, lettuce and oranges, the report noted, while "sharply higher" prices were paid to farmers for beef cattle.

Repairs to Erb Pool May Cost Up to $13,000

Recreation Director Reveals Informal Estimates for Work

Refinishing and patching the Erb Park pool to put it in safe condition for public use during the coming summer could cost up to $13,000, it was disclosed today.

Finance Director David Champion said the estimate came from Lloyd Koehnke, city recreation director, who obtained informal quotes on the work on instructions of the park-recreation commission.

Koehnke also estimated that to just patch the pool — an annual practice — it would cost from $2,000 to $5,000.

Champion and Koehnke were at the pool on the city's northside this morning and inspected the heavy damage inflicted by the winter elements.

Cracks, Chuck-Holes

In addition to the main part of the pool, there are concrete chuck-holes and major cracks in the center island which is used for diving and lifeguard stations.

Champion said the park-recreation commission had apparently put the burden on the city council's finance committee to pay for the pool renovation.

"It really isn't as simple as that," Champion commented.

He checked into commission records and found reports from last winter which warned of the serious damage to the pool and need for budgeting for its repair.

Champion, who conferred with Koehnke on the time element in making the necessary repairs, said he noted there were a string of reports over the years pertaining to the condition of the pool.

City records also show that several thousand dollars have been paid out in recent years for pool repairs, some of them major and requiring the facility to be shut down for brief periods during mid-summer.

Champion said the park-recreation commission would have to make an official authorization to hire a firm to make pool repairs, and possibly ask the council for supplementary funds.

"This will take time and could jeopardize the regular opening of the pool," Champion said. He said the commission should have acted on the pool problem earlier than its last meeting. Other city officials agreed.

Firemen Stood by and watched a house burn to the ground at Little Chute Monday night. The volunteers were using the burned-out home for practice. The building was used for drills on three successive Mondays before it was lit for the final time. The home was extensively damaged by fire last fall and was burned at the request of the owners. Proposed Drastic Changes For City Will be Reviewed

BY WILLIAM C. CAREY
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

A group of Appleton city officials agreed Tuesday night to move ahead with review of a City Governmental Operations Committee report which calls for sweeping changes in the local establishment.

However, members of the city council's welfare - ordinance committee hinted it was unlikely any formal action would be taken on revising wards, size of the council and duties of elected officials until after the 1970 census.

Expected to receive priority though in the near future is the recommendation of the citizens' group, which prepared the report, that Appleton's program of relief and welfare services be taken over by the county welfare department.

Group to Appear

The welfare-ordinance committee, headed by Ald. Walter Kalata (2nd), announced it would ask the members of the citizens group to appear at the May 14 meeting to go over the report, prepared in November of 1968.

The committee, consisting of Alds. Kalata, Arthur Hoolihan (11th), Richard Schouten (19th) Orval Polzin (3rd) and Glenn Thompson (13th), felt decisions would have to be made on several matters before the key recommendations in the report could be acted upon.

Among the items to be considered by the committee is whether to appoint rather than elect a city clerk, treasurer, assessor and attorney; absorb the city relief services into the county welfare department; remap the wards; go to combined aldermanic-supervisor posts; have fulltime aldermen; and cut the size of the present 20-member city council.

Council Cut

Committee members felt the proposal in the governmental operations report to cut the council to 10 members and combine the position of alderman with that of the county supervisor would be "short-changing Appleton's representation on the county board."

"We want as much representation as we can get," Kalata commented, "so I think there is conflict in that recommendation."

However, Thompson said all of the recommendations should receive thorough review and action should be taken one way or another by the council committees and city council as a whole.

"We owe this to the people who put in long hours on this report," Thompson said.

Kalata said as far as he was concerned, the committee could immediately take up the question of appointive versus elective positions. He recalled residents of Appleton voted the appointive system down in a referendum in the early 1960's.

"I worked for defeat of the appointive system, but I feel we should hear out the pros and cons and then make our decision.." Thompson said. However, he now feels the assessor's job should be appointive.

On the welfare department question, the committee decided it had received a considerable amount of material on the subject and would want to hear from Mayor George Buckley.

Kalata said as chairman he had prepared some "think pieces" on the various matters referred to the committee.

Priorities Listed

"I am not asking anyone to agree with me," Kalata said, "I just want to get some dialogue going."

His first priority, according to written recommendations to the committee, would be to receive and file the proposal to make the four positions appointive.

He said second priority should be action on the welfare department matter, noting that budget time was approaching and a decision was necessary before then.

On matters dealing with ward redistricting, supervisory positions, terms and pay of aldermen and size of the city council, Kalata said all were related directly or indirectly with the outcome of the census.

He felt if the committee and council did arrive at decisions to make changes, they should be put to a public referendum.

Negotiations Being Held

$5 Million Development Possible in Grand Chute

BY RICHARD JACOBSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Considerable acreage in the Town of Grand Chute is being considered for a $5 million-plus industrial development, and if land negotiations and utility factors are consummated, the town's tax base would receive a large boost.

Out-of-town interests revealed plans for the huge development Tuesday night at a meeting of the twon's Buttes des Morts Utility District.

Charles Kahn, a Milwaukee broker who represents the developers, indicated that "if we construct in your town, between 700 and 800 job openings would be initially available."

10-Acre Plant

Kahn also told the town officials "if land is purchased here it must be expandable."

The broker said the plant itself would encompass 10 acres alone. "We need at a minimum 400,000 square feet of land and must be able to triple that in not too many years," Kahn explained.

Kahn and representatives of Long-Wieckert and Karel, Appleton real estate developers, would not reveal the type of industry proposed to be built in the town. However, Kahn said, "it will be light-heavy manufacturing."

Also, the broker told the utility commissioners that "we have considered several sites in your area and decided Grand Chute would be most desirable."

Sanitary Sewers

Kahn wanted to know if sanitary sewer lines could be installed to the area proposed for development, and if so, when the lines could be run.

Edward Rothe, the town's engineering consultant, of Donohue and Associates, Sheboygan, told Kahn there would be no problems in running the sanitary sewer lines to the proposed industrial complex.

"According to my investigation of the area, we could easily give you the needed service within 12 months," Rothe said. Rothe based his assumption on engineering surveys and maps of the proposed area.

"We could get the preliminary work and prepare plans for running the lines in three to four months and have the pipes installed by May 1, 1970," Rothe added.

Another Meeting

Kahn indicated that he felt reassured utility sanitary sewers could be installed in the proposed site. He noted that he would present engineering maps of the area to the developing interests for study and set up another meeting with the commissioners.

Town Chairman, Ira Livingston, Town Atty. Donald Herrling and Rothe also informed Kahn the area developers are considering has been included in the town's general plan for sanitary sewer service.

"Not only would we be able to take care of your interests, but also the entire area which is expected to be highly developed in the near future," Livingston stated.

End City Relief System?

Countywide Welfare To be Hearing Topic

Appleton residents will have a chance to air their views on whether the city welfare department should be absorbed by the county with relief dispensed on a countywide basis.

This was the conclusion of the city council's welfare-ordinance committee Tuesday night, which set the night of June 17 for holding a public hearing on the subject in the council chambers.

Elimination of the unit relief system, such as the program carried out by the Appleton Welfare Department, is recommended in the Tarr Task Force recommendations to the Wisconsin Legislature. Bills are now pending which would implement the recommendations.

The takeover of all welfare programs by the Outagamie County Welfare Department also is contained in recommendations of the Citizens Governmental Operations Report, compiled last year for the city council.

Director Opposes Change

City Welfare Director Merton Ehricke has opposed any change, but Mayor George Buckley is pushing for elimination of welfare departments on a local level and combining their operations with the county.

Ald. Glenn Thompson (13th) said he favored the public hearing but wanted the committee also to hear from Buckley so he could state reasons and benefits for changing the present setup.

"I already have had an informal discussion with the mayor with regard to the hearing," Ald. Walter Kalata (2nd) replied, "and he has indicated willingness to testify at the hearing."

Kalata, committee chairman, said aldermen on the committee also would want to ask questions of persons appearing for or against the proposed merger of the city operation into the county welfare department.

The majority of the counties in Wisconsin operate under the countywide relief distribution system as many municipalities have dropped local relief department agencies.

However, several major communities in the Fox Valley still maintain local relief departments.

Kalata said anyone in the city with an opinion on what should or should not be done about Appleton's welfare program would be welcome to address the committee at the June 17 hearing.

"We are throwing it open to the general public," Kalata said, "In this way we will not only hear from those with possible vested interests one way or the other."

Word Awaited From HUD

Housing Project Okay Due 'Any Day Now'

Approval of Appleton's application for a housing project for the elderly should come any day now, according to the chairman of the city's housing authority.

"It's my information the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) will give approval shortly," Atty. Leon Jensen said today.

It was reported that a representative of Towne Realty, Inc., Milwaukee, the firm which the housing authority hopes to develop the housing project, was in Washington recently and discussed the Appleton application for project approval and funds with federal officials.

Formal Announcement

The formal announcement of the grant and size of the project is expected to be made by Rep. John Byrnes, R-Green Bay and Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., after getting notification from HUD.

In the near future the housing authority will meet with Towne Really officials and sign a letter of intent, officially making the Milwaukee firm the developer for the turnkey project.

Under the turnkey method, the developer will construct the high - rise apartment dwelling and then turn it over to the housing authority, with the federal government floating bonds to underwrite the final payment to the developer.

Elderly residents in the low-income bracket will qualify for low rent housing.

Site for Development

The prime site for construction of the high-rise is the Morgan School property, partially occupied by the board of education for administrative offices and departments.

In another development, the local real estate firm of Long-Wieckert-Karel has proposed another site to the city council for consideration as location of the high-rise development.

The location includes seven properties on Durkee, Franklin and Washington streets, including 55,600 square feet, with an asking price of $210,000. The properties are considered to be substandard, according to Walter Long, and "ripe for redevelopment."

Several real estate firms and developers have options on various parcels of property as possible housing-for-the-elderly building sites. The developer usually has the final say on the site after consultation with the housing authority.

Appleton GI Hurt Seriously

Sgt. Theodore Olson Suffers Severe Burns In Vietnam Combat

A 22-year-old Appleton soldier who "was counting the seconds until he could come home," was seriously wounded in Vietnam combat Monday.

Sgt. Theodore Olson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Olson, 551 N. Story St., suffered second and third degree burns over half of his body and two fingers on his left hand were amputated.

According to a telegram sent his parents Tuesday night from the Army adjutant general's office in Washington, D. C., Olson is on the "very seriously ill list," and his "condition is of such severity that there is cause for concern."

Olson, according to the telegram, was wounded while om a combat operation. He was hospitalized briefly in Vietnam then was evacuated to a hospital in Yokohama, Japan. His mother said this morning that she called Japan, but was told further information on her son's condition probably would not be available until tonight.

Olson is a 1964 graduate of Appleton High School, where he played on the football team. He has been in the Army since June, 1967, and was in Vietnam since last July. His mother said he was due to come home in five weeks.

Olson, an infantry gunner, suffered minor head wounds in Vietnam combat last November, according to his mother, but was back on duty within three days.

Girl Runs Into Car, Taken to Hospital

KIMBERLY — Sandra Schumacher, 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Schumacher, 205 N. Main St, suffered undetermined injuries and was taken to St. Elizabeth Hospital by an Appleton ambulance service after she ran into the side of a moving car about 3:30 p.m. Tuesday.

According to police, John VanHelvoirt, 56, 509 Third St., was northbound on Main Street, stopped for an arterial at Maes Avenue and was proceeding across the intersection when the girl ran from the corner into the front fender of the car.

Women Voters View County Jail

Tour Brings Mixed Reaction

"They just sit there and breed resentment. They have nothing to do but literally sit there and look at a brick wall."

That was an Appleton housewife's reaction during a tour of the Outagamie County Jail this morning.

"I don't believe in giving them (prisoners) plush facilities. Some of them seem to like it as it is. They're back here often enough."

That was the reaction of a Black Creek woman who went on the same tour, organized by the League of Women Voters of Appleton.

About 70 persons, mostly women, viewed jail facilities this morning. Another 100 persons were expected this afternoon.

Public Invitation

The league, which sent out a public invitation for the tour, stated in the letters that "approximately six years ago the jail was condemned by the state as inadequate to house prisoners of any kind, yet the facility is still in use."

The letter adds, "The League of Women Voters is concerned that no concrete action has yet been taken by the (Outagamie) County Board.

Several times the Wisconsin Department of Health and Social Services has ordered the jail closed, but each time the closing deadline was extended at the request of the county board. The latest deadline is June 21.

The previous deadline was March 21, but a three-month extension was granted the county because preliminary planning is underway for a city-county safety building.

Sheriff Calvin L. Spice, who has long been critical of jail conditions, conducted this morning's tours.

Inadequate?

Main points on the tours were the Huber Law (work release) section and the juvenile quarters, both of which are alleged to be inadequate.

At one point on the tour, Spice pointed to an open toilet a few feet from the table where Huber Law prisoners eat. "Feature eating in your bathroom at home. That's what these people are doing," Spice explained.

"Sure they did something wrong, or they wouldn't be here," Spice told the visitors, "but they're still human beings."

About 10 members of a Black Creek homemakers club were on one tour group. Although they were critical of shortcomings in the juvenile section and what they termed "overcrowding" in some parts of the jail, they generally felt the facility was not as bad as what they had expected.

"Are Army barracks any better?" one Black Creek woman asked.

Said another woman, "You could have it better, I suppose, but there also is a danger of having it too nice up there."

An almost entirely different reaction was expressed by Appleton visitors.

"I agree we shouldn't make it country-clubish," one housewife said. "But they're not doing any good by putting them in a situation like this."

She felt ". . .we must cater to their state of mind as well as their state of being," in referring to the inmates.

Another Appleton woman felt that "Idleness is as much of a destroyer as anything I can think of. And all you have up there is idleness."

Some 200 Persons toured the Outagamie County jail today under a program organized by the League of Women Voters of Appleton, which has long fought for improved jail conditions. In the upper photo, Sheriff Calvin L. Spice explains conditions in one of the jail's two juvenile detention cells. In the lower photos, Spice shows visitors through the Huber Law sections. The state has condemned the jail. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Answer Calumet Letter

Ehricke Slaps Out At County Welfare

The director of Appleton's relief services rapped the county welfare department Tuesday night in defense of his own program

Merton Ehricke leveled his criticism in "information sheets" distributed to members of the city council's welfare-ordinance committee. He also passed out copies of the Outagamie County Welfare Department budget for 1969

Prompting Ehricke's action was a recent letter sent to Mayor George Buckley from the Calumet County Department of Social Services which indicated support for Bill 211-A now pending in the legislature

The bill calls for elimination of the unit system (local) of relief and would put the dispensing of all relief and welfare on a mandatory countywide basis as recommended by the Tarr Task force government study committee

Eliminate Department

Ehricke opposes the legislation because, among other things, it will eliminate his department

In the past, prior to the Tarr report, Buckley advocated combining the city program with the county's

Ehricke took issue with several statements in the Calumet County Department of Social Services communication received by the mayor's office in March

He made a point-by-point rebuttal, along with taking verbal pokes at the county welfare department and its staff of caseworkers, claiming he could operate the city welfare program more efficiently and economically

Ehricke Reply

Replying to certain statements of the Calumet County group, Ehricke declared in part

"General relief services to have distinct guidelines for need determination

"The Appleton City Welfare Department uses all possible resources that are available

"It is ture that each unit system of relief does have its own administrator and it is possible some units could be improved However, the majority of the unit system of relief serves a very large proportion of the populace in need.

Short-Term Need

"Your relief unit provides assistance on an "as needed' basis and does not provide for long-termed assistance.

Ehricke made strong-worded reference to the Calumet County department's statement that passage of Bill 211-A will provide for administration of relief by the 72 county departments of social services whose primary business is to provide financial aid.

"If the county system of relief is made mandatory," Ehricke said, "it will not be 'county rule' but actually state rule."

He said the state dictated the administration of categorical aids and would do likewise if it got power over general relief.

Tax Revolt

"The people are tired of county and state costs for welfare programs and are actually in a tax revolt," Ehricke continued.

"Your units of relief can answer to the penny their expenditures for administration and relief services. Does the state do this?"

Ehricke said the city welfare department has kept costs down since 1961 with the caseload continually decreasing by getting the hard-core reliefer off the relief rolls

"Ask yourself these questions," Ehricke added· "Are you satisfied with county welfare costs? Has the county reduced its caseload? What is the percentage of the county budget for welfare costs? What is the record of the county welfare costs for the past eight years?"

At one point Ehricke said the county welfare department was known for its high-salaried personnel and high percentage of turnover He said under his unit relief system personnel are more permanent

Mergers Threaten Business

WASHINGTON — Corporate mergers to form huge "conglomerate" business combinations have been described by Rep. William A Steiger, R-Oshkosh, as a threat to competition and business growth

"The congress must regard the rapid increase in the number and size of corporate mergers with great concern because it constitutes a threat to the competitive climate for U.S business and to growth opportunities for new firms," the Oshkosh congressman said in a weekly statement to constituents

In a list of measures he said he favors for federal tax law reform, Steiger called for "legislative action on a number of issues in the area of so-called 'conglomerate' combinations."

These actions, he said, could include "possible extension of the anti-trust laws, revision of security regulation and accounting rules and regulation of bank loans to the extent that present loan limitations encourage new consolidations."

He said it also would be appropriate to investigate "whether the present tax laws offer special inducements to conglomerate mergers."

On other items of tax reform, Steiger said he favors:

—Prohibiting abuses of tax-exempt status by foundations.

—Raising from 30 per cent to 50 per cent the amount of income deductible for charitable donations, applying the limit to all taxpayers

—Forcing large corporations to stop taking advantage of tax relief provisions intended for small businesses which may apply a reduced tax rate of 22 per cent to the first $25,000 of taxable income. "Literally hundreds of corporations have been created artificially to take advantage of this provision," Steiger remarked. He said the change would be phased over five years.

—Allowing employes to deduct from taxable income the costs of moving to a new job location, including house hunting trip expenses, costs of temporary living quarters in the new location and costs of selling or buying a house

—Simplifying and making it easier to comply with rules

—Increasing the personal tax exemption from the present $600 applying to small corporations to $1,000 per person, raising the limit by $100 in each of four successive tax years.

Vandals Damage Neenah Schools

NEENAH — Nearly $1,000 damage has been reported in break-ins at Neenah High School and Conant Junior High School sometime last night or early this morning

Police were called to the high school about 6:30 a.m. today when a cook discovered the break-in Police said the intruders apparently broke a window on the building's west side, to get into a history room

Sometime after 10:30 p.m. Tuesday, a door on Conant Junior High School's east side was pried open and six vending machines in the cafeteria were broken open and the coin boxes cleaned out

Damage to the vending machines has been estimated at over $500 with another 200 taken in coins.

At the high school, the burglars broke into and ransacked two rooms. A dollar changer machine was broken open, causing about $150 damage, but no money was taken

Police and school officials are checking into taking an inventory of equipment to see if anything was taken in either of the two break-ins

The high school main office was entered but nothing was disturbed, according to police

Valley Symphony To Star Canadian As Guest Artist

With basso Jan Rubes as guest artist, the Fox Valley Symphony Orchestra will offer a variety of musical compositions at its final concert of the season at 8 p.m. Sunday, at Lawrence University Memorial Chapel

Rubes, Canadian star of opera, concert and films, will sing "The Music Master", an 18th century comic piece by Domenico Cimarosa accompanied by members of the Fox Valley Symphony.

String instruments will highlight "Little Suite for Strings" by Danish composer Carl Nielsen. Although little known in this country, the suite long has been popular in Denmark for its warm lyricism, light-hearted charm, and flashing and sprightly conclusion.

The full orchestra will present the overture to "Oberon", last opera by the German romantic composer Carl Maria von Weber

The concert will conclude with Beethoven's Symphony No 5 in C Minor.

Appleton Youth Hurt When Truck Skids, Tips Over

FOREST JUNCTION — An Appleton youth, riding in a van truck, suffered minor injuries in an accident Tuesday 5:30 p.m. one mile west of here

David Brinkman, 19, 838 W. Prospect St., Appleton, suffered bumps and scratches to his head and cuts to his fingers.

The truck was driven by Glen E. Trunk, 19, 1517 S. Madison St., Appleton, who was not injured.

According to Calumet County traffic authorities, the truck was eastbound on U.S. 10 and when Trunk attempted to make a right turn it skidded, struck a power pole guide wire and came to rest on its right side against the pole.

The pole was loosened and the guide wires were knocked down. Damage to the truck was to the front end and to the rear bumper.

Bryan Asks For Policy On Assessing

NEENAH — Wayne Bryan, public works director, Tuesday night asked the street and sanitation committee to set a policy on assessing the cost of street resurfacing.

"We plan to resurface Wisconsin Avenue this summer," Bryan said, "and we have to know before then how and if we are going to charge the benefitted property owners for the cost."

The $20,000 Wisconsin Avenue project will include a new surface from midway in the east 100 block to Main and Torrey Streets, and Commercial Street from Doty to the bridge.

"The street was laid in 1951 and has worn down about 1½ inches," Bryan explained.

"The practice has been to charge about $1 per foot," he said, "as a token payment for the improvements, but we have to have a set policy before June 1 when we plan to advertise for the work." According to Bryan the project would cost downtown businessmen about $8 per centerline foot.

He said the work probably would not get started until July or August when the state completes its resurfacing of the Oak Street Bridge. "We don't want to tear up Wisconsin Avenue while it is being used for traffic rerouting," he said

Expansion Funds Wanted

Neenah Water Rate Hike Asked

NEENAH — The water works commission decided Tuesday to explore the possibility of getting federal aid to help in the construction of the proposed water plant expansion project.

The applications will be channeled through the Fox Valley Council of Government (COG) to see if some federal money might be used to offset the $1 million projected cost.

Arno Haering Jr., COG regional planning director, said this morning there are many programs available, but he was not sure just which one Neenah would qualify under.

Double Capacity

The construction project is planned to get underway this summer, with completion set for next summer. When completed the plant's capacity will be nearly doubled to almost 13 million gallons a day.

The commission decided to petition the Public Service Commission for an interim water rate increase. The increase is designed to raise the utility's revenues to paint a better picture for future buyers of the revenue bond issue scheduled to finance the expansion program.

Public utilities are allowed a 6 per cent return on investments, but Neenah's, during the past few years, has dropped off to about 3½ per cent.

Another Increase

The interim increase, if approved by the PSC, would be in effect until next year, when the commission plans to ask for another increase to cover operation costs of the expanded plant.

The PSC was asked to conduct a study of the local rate structure and usage and recommend the increase.

In other action, the commission decided to go ahead with original plans to design the plant addition with the intention of dumping its filtration lime sludge into the Neenah-Menasha Sewage Commission lines.

The sewage commission had balked when it learned the water department planned to dump the 200,000 gallons of lime sludge into the lines.

Water commissioners, however, took the stand that they pay about $90,000 in annual taxes and could expect their sewage to be treated just as any taxpayer.

The water department will consider building its own plant to treat the sludge, only if a problem arises in transmission of the lime sludge to the sewage treatment plant.

In water commission elections, F. F. Martin was elected president, and Ray Murphy, vice president.

UW Scientists Picked To Study Moon Rocks From Initial Landing

MADISON (AP) — Two University of Wisconsin scientists have been selected to investigate samples of material to be gathered from the moon's surface during the first lunar landing.

Geology Professor Eugene Cameron and chemistry Professor Larry A. Haskin were among 120 investigators named by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to study moon elements.

About 50 pounds of rocks will be gathered from the moon's surface under present plans.

Cameron and Haskin are being briefed in Houston this week at the Manned Spacecraft Center.

Somber Britain Has Theme of Tax, Tax, Tax

Nation Trying To Stem Spending By $816 Million

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — April is not the month that Englishmen, especially the wealthy ones, write nostalgic poetry about these days. A lament might be more appropriate, for the somber Britain of today is not the merry one of yesterday.

It is, instead, a severe one. The theme of the economy is "produce more, use less." And the chief means of achieving this aim is to tax, tax, tax.

Already harsh, taxes this April have been raised even more, the purpose being to take another $816 million of purchasing power out of the economy and bring the nation's hopes more in line with its abilities.

It's a cold April, and were Robert Browning writing today instead of more than a century ago, you might speculate that he would not be inspired to write so wistfully, "Oh to be in England, Now that April's there."

Taxes Increase

Were he there, he would learn that betting taxes are going up, that there's a brand-new tax on bingo game winnings, that the tax on a bottle of wine is being raised by 13 cents, and that gasoline taxes will total 54 cents a gallon.

True, these levies on consumer items are leavened by increases in old-age pensions and by the elimination of more than one million poor people from the income tax rolls, but they are stiff nevertheless.

To businessmen, the increases are simply shocking: The corporate profit tax goes up to 45 per cent from 42.5 per cent, and the payroll tax for employers rises to well over $5 a head from $4.50.

More Borrowing

But business does better than the consumer in one area, and that is borrowing. Business still can deduct the interest cost on loans, but consumers no longer can do so, except for houses. Borrowing, the nation's leaders say, must be discouraged.

This, indeed, is a jolt, as can be attested by any American who recently finished itemizing his federal income tax deductions. Car buyers, for example, often have deductions of several hundred dollars on loans. But no more.

The background for such austerity goes back a long way, even to the days preceding World War II, and is tied to the breakup of the British Empire. The present Britain did not enter the postwar world very well equipped.

Not only did it lose some of its finest manpower in two wars, but its plants were damaged and old-fashioned, and its ability to utilize new technology was snagged in a cobweb of ancient labor and management work methods.

A reliable estimate shows that within the past few years Britain needed more than 200 men to turn out the same amount of steel produced by 170 West Germans or 160 Frenchmen or 100 Americans.

This, of course, means that British goods have been over priced. In an effort to make them more competitive, the British devalued their currency in 1949 and 1967, thus lowering the price of exports, raising the price of imports.

More Competitive

These devaluations have had the aim of bringing money into the British economy, making industry more competitive, while at the same time making it more difficult for Britishers to spend money. But has it worked?

The latest figures show that 16 months after devaluation of the British pound sterling, the British slowly are improving their situation. Although still in debt, slow progress is noted.

More impressive is the rise in productivity of British workers, for this is the key to the ability of British goods to compete in foreign markets. Last year this productivity rose 6.3 per cent compared with 2.6 in other years.

Nevertheless, the pace of improvements seems too slow to British leaders, and so they add on taxes—not only to take spending power out of the economy but to add revenues for putting it on a more stable foundation.

It's a stern discipline, and its more likely to evoke the recitation not of Browning but of a more recent English poet, T. S. Eliot. He wrote, "April is the cruellest month . . ."

Sonja Henie Sues Neighbor for Fence

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Former ice skating star Sonja Henie contends a neighbor's fences and sprinkler system extend onto Miss Henie's Bel Air estate. Your Money's Worth

Find Out What Credit Really Is Costing You

BY SYLVIA PORTER

It's ridiculous to wait until the Truth-In-Lending law becomes effective July 1 in order to find out what you're paying to borrow money in this period of historically steep interest rates. Even if you wait, you won't find out a lot you should and want to know; there are many loopholes, deliberate and accidental, in the law and lenders who charge you the most will try their utmost to befuddle you. Here, therefore, are some vital finance facts of life now.

Home Mortgages: Officially, interest rates on the majority of home mortgages now being extended by commercial banks range from 7¾ to 8½ per cent; the rates already are stated on most mortgage contracts.

But this is only the official interest rate. In addition, there are expensive extras such as "points," premiums for credit life insurance, finders' fees, discounts, service charges, appraisal fees, credit report costs, etc. These easily can add another 2 to 3 per cent to your interest rate and substantially hike the cost of your mortgage to you.

The Real Range

Today's real range of loan costs on most mortgages is about 9½ to 11½ per cent.

New Car Loans: Rates range from 8 to 12 per cent if you finance your car through a commercial bank and 10 to 14 per cent and more if you finance through an automobile finance company. If you pay, for instance, 14 per cent on a three-year, $2,000 loan, your total finance charges will be $460.80. If you get the same loan at 9 per cent, your total credit costs will drop to $289.60. If you get it at 8, the cost wil be $256.20.

Used Car Loans: Does it astound you to learn that the true annual financing cost now being charged by auto finance companies to finance the purchase of used cars ranges from 18 to 30 per cent and at times even up to 42 per cent?

At 18 per cent, a $1,000 car loan over an 18-month period costs you $148.50. At 42 per cent, though, your finance charges are $364.70. For a $1,000 used car loan from a commercial bank at, say, 14 per cent, your 18-month cost will be $114.50.

Department Store Charges: The typical carrying charge is 18 per cent a year — if it's being advertised at 1½ per cent a month. The total credit cost on a $500 charge you leave unpaid at a store for over a year could amount to $90.

Personal Loans: The loans now being advertised at "6 per $100, add-on" at commercial banks actually cost about 11 per cent on a true annual interest basis. (The reason is you begin repaying almost immediately and thus do not have the full use of the money for the full year.) For today's 6 per cent "discount" loan, the true annual interest rate is more than 11½ per cent because you get only $94 for each $100 your borrow. The total finance charges on a three-year $1,000 personal loan costing 11 per cent in true annual interest are $178.60.

May Pay 30-36 Per Cent

If you take out a personal loan at a small loan company, you are more likely to pay 30 to 36 per cent a year. On a two-year $300 loan at 36 per cent, total finance charges are $125.13.

After the Truth-In-Lending bill goes into effect, all of these details must be spelled out on any advertisement of credit terms in which any specific mention of credit (such as "$3 a week" or "two years to pay") appears. Other key details — cash price, down payment, the difference to be financed, any amounts deducted as prepaid finance charges, total finance charges — also will have to be clearly spelled out for you.

But before the law's effective date will come May and June — months in which millions of you will be borrowing billions of dollars. And I'm not so sure that even after the law is in operation, the story will be given as clearly as in this column. You certainly can use my figures as a borrowing guide.

Whooping It Up in the Company's Cafeteria

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — If you can't find a white collar worker at his desk today, the chances are he's in the company cafeteria—and probably doing something besides eating.

For the company cafeteria has become his home away from home during working hours, his club, his pub, his library, his recreation center.

No one knows for sure what executive genius first thought up the idea of the company cafeteria. But he must have brought it up at a top-level conference, as follows:

"Half our staff are spending their time at lunch going shopping, watching daytime movies, and wandering into pool halls. They're wasting half the work day.

"Mind you I'm just thinking out loud, but why don't we serve them lunch on the premises? Then we could keep an eye on them."

And so, innocently enough, the company cafeteria was born. Since then the wily peons of the business world have converted it to their own devious uses, and what started out as a management boon has often evolved into a management burden.

Look around your own company cafeteria and you'll probably find the following types pretty familiar:

"Bargain Ben"—He never has time to eat. To him the company cafeteria is a clearing center for his own private business operations. He ambushes each employe in line and asks, "Want to buy a secondhand car or sublet an apartment? Well, then, how about a three-year-old parakeet for $15 that curses in Portuguese?"

"The Fond Lovers" — Here, sitting knee to knee staring soulfully into each other's eyes as the vanilla ice cream melts unheeded in their paper cups, are the junior executive and the boss's secretary. To them the company cafeteria is a kind of restrained indoor passion pit.

"Hermit Herman"—He thinks everyone else is an illiterate dullard. He huddles in a corner reading "The Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire," and hisses if those at a nearby table become too loud.

"Hangover Harry" — The office toper creeps in silently, takes half a cup of coffee, goes out to the locker room and fills it with bourbon, returns and starts nipping and sipping. By 1:15 his head falls back, and he's snoring.

"Pinch-Penny Pete" — "Not hungry today—got a bad stomach," he says. Then he takes a free plastic fork in one hand, a free plastic spoon in the other, and wanders from table to table sampling what everybody else is eating.

"The Chronic Complainer"—Nothing on the menu ever pleases him. "What, nothing but meatballs and mildewed fish again?" he moans. At least once a week he circulates a petition demanding that the management start putting in such dishes as shish-kebab, truffles, and moo goo gai pan with wild rice.

"Sanitary Sid"—"This place looks like a pigsty," says the office hypochondriac, who is sure an epidemic will spread from the cafeteria before nightfall. He rinses and wipes each utensil before using it, and after each meal rushes out to the washroom to gargle out any germs he may have picked up.

"Two-to-One Tom" — The office bookie is too busy to eat. Fueled by coffee only, he collects on yesterday's races and accepts new bets, carefully noting them down in a little black book.

Of course, some old-fashioned employes do eat in the company cafeteria. But for the rest of them it is just a nice place to gossip, carry on a romance, play gin rummy, start a rumor, or launch a plot against management

"Now that we have a company cafeteria we know where our employes are during their lunch period," sighed one executive, "But only heaven knows what skulduggery they're up to."

REBELLION PRICES CONTINUE!!

The Red Owl Price Rebellion has attracted thousands of new Red Owl customers and as a result has created a tremendous traffic jam at this most critical time of the year at the Red Owl warehouse in Green Bay. The warehouse is "bulging at the seams and yet scores of rail cars are on track at the warehouse or 'rolling' and will be there soon." Red Owl's own huge truck fleet and common carrier fleets, too, are loaded with merchandise and many will have to be re-routed direct to our Fox Cities Stores to help alleviate the warehouse space problem. Quick Action is necessary and as a result this special announcement should be of important news to Fox Cities food shoppers.

Measure Has 'Symbolic' Value

For First Time, Annexation Bill Might Pass Without Referendum

Post Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — For the first time in the many years of struggle with the rural and suburban interests in the legislature, the League of Wisconsin Municipalities may see an annexation bill become law without referendum, the league learned Tuesday

Although the Wisconsin Assembly on a preliminary roll call of 50 to 48 voted to kill a league bill that would permit cities and villages to annex "islands" of town territory within their corporate limits on their own motion, officials of the municipal organization were optimistic about the final balloting

"We have a couple of more votes at least," said Ed Johnson, the league legislative agent

Symbolic Value

"As we see it, the bill has a symbolic value," he added, referring to other and more important annexation measures pending in both legislative houses that would give cities more effective means of expanding their boundaries through annexation of unincorporated territory.

The vote was a preliminary skirmish Assemblyman David Martin, R-Neenah, who supported the league on the issue, voted for killing the measure in error, and was then in a position to move for a reconsideration of the action under the house rules He promptly did so

Johnson said the "islands" in city territory are scattered over the map of Wisconsin and that there is no precise count of them Generally they have resulted from annexations under the restriction of present laws, which requires petitions by the free holders and voters involved Often some of the residents of a district proposed for annexation resist the move and so are excluded from the annexation ordinance

Annexations Nullified

Assemblyman Jack Steinhiber, R-Oshkosh, an author of the bill, told the house that court rulings recently, including a decision by Circuit Court Judge Andrew Parnell of Appleton, have held that annexations that result in the creation of such islands are invalid under the law.

He assailed the annexation history of Wisconsin as one of "ridiculous administrative confusion " Some of the city maps of Wisconsin resemble a "spotted leopard or a speckled trout" as a result of the creation of islands of unincorporated territory within them, he complained

Rural legislators repeated the familiar denunciation of what they called "unilateral" annexation, which over the years has come to have the meaning of an epithet in legislative annexation debates.

Opposed Bill

Northeastern Wisconsin legislators besides Martin who voted for killing the bill included Assemblymen G R Bradley, R-rural Oshkosh, Francis Byers, R-Marion, Ervin W. Conradt, R-Shiocton, Herbert Grover, D-Shawano, Gervase Hephner, D-Chilton, Lawrence H Johnson, R-Algoma, Lawrence Kakfa, R-Denmark, Milton Mc Dougal, R Oconto Falls, William Rogers, D-Kaukauna, and Cletus VanderPerren, D-rural Brown County

Supporting the measure were Everett Bolle, D-Manitowoc, D K Helgeson, R-Francis Creek, William La Fave R-Peshtigo, Jerome Quinn, R-Green Bay, Steinhilber, and Speaker Harold Froehlich, R-Appleton

Chief Planner For NWRPC Resigns Office

Frank M Hedgcock, Appleton, Tuesday resigned as a chief planner for the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission (NWRPC), effective May 30

Hedgcock says he will become executive director of the Coles County Regional Planning Commission in Charleston, Ill., on June 2

He has served as chief planner in charge of Farmers Home Administration comprehensive countywide sewer and water studies for the nine county afea

Hedgcock and William Morris, executive director, are the only "planners in charge" on the NWRPC staff, a designation for those who meet qualifications of experience and academic background The commission has 18 members on the staff, plus a part-time draftsmen.

A native of Illinois, Hedgcock joined the Northeastern commission in January of 1967. He indicated he sought a position where he could work closer with individual counties as his work with NWRPC consisted mainly of providing technical reports.

Ripon Reduces Requirements For ROTC

RIPON (AP)—Faculty members at Ripon College have reduced the school's one-year of required Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) program to a one-semester requirement with no military drill.

The program revisions were made by the school's curriculum committee, in coordination with the military science department. The faculty also authorized exceptional students to exceed the normal college limitations of four courses in any given semester in order to enroll in advanced military science courses during their junior and senior years.

The college curriculum will continue to offer four years of military science, leading to a commission as a Second Lieutenant in the Army.

Nine-County Law Agency Is Proposed

State Official Urges Committee to Aid Enforcement Plan

An official of the Wisconsin Council of Criminal Justice this morning urged formation of a law enforcement technical advisory board to jointly seek solutions of crime problems in northeastern Wisconsin

Michael E. Stroh, field representative, told the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG) technical advisory committee on law enforcement that the new board would help coordinate police operations of nine area counties

The COG committee, formed to take advanlage of federal crime planning funds, agreed a super-structure should be set up, but delayed approving the request to invite the new members until COG approves a new structure

New Board

They also agreed the nine-county advisory board would be in addition to the COG law enforcement advisory board

The counties recommended for the super board would be the COG counties of Calumet, Outagamie and Winnebago, plus Brown, Kewaunee, Door, Manitowoc, Sheboygan and Fond du Lac counties.

Stroh indicated the state was forming similar super-structures throughout the state along the proposed uniform administrative district lines to coordinate its program under the federal omnibus crime bill Federal planning monies would be made available to the board, and action monies could be sought by individual communities and counties which are members

Close Cooperation

He said the nine-county board would work closely with Thomas Ellwood, COG director of law enforcement planning who was hired under the federal crime program.

What the state wants to do, Stroh said, is encourage coordination between communities and counties, eliminate duplication of effort and recognize that crime transcends city and county lines.

Agree with Plan

He asked permission for him and Ellwood to contact counties for their interest in participation, but the COG law enforcement technical advisory committee delayed approval until COG officials approve the super body's structure

Committeemen agreed with the plan in general but questioned whether all nine counties had similar problems

Outagamie County Dist. Atty. James Long questioned whether Door and Kewanee counties had law enforcement problems similar to the Fox Cities area.

Lester Clark, Menasha police chief and committee chairman, agreed, adding the state had not provided enough information to municipalities and counties to get suppport for action programs. These programs require partial local financial support.

The committee agreed to meet May 8 to prepare a recommendation on a super structure board

Stroh said the nine counties could have common interest in training and certain other areas He noted the nine county boundary would be flexible to meet law enforcement officials' needs.

The super-structure would be set up after Aug. 31 when present planning funds for the COG member's law enforcement program run out. More funds are assured for sometime, Stroh said.

Nursing Home Administrators Meet in Appleton

About 40 administrators and nurses from throughout the state are attending the Nursing Home Administrators' Institute which ends today at Holiday Inn

Robert Larson, administrator, Bethany Home, Waupaca; La-Mont Schaefer, administrator, Heritage Home, Appleton, as well as many of the state officials working with the Division of Mental Hygiene

The seminar is sponsored jointly by the Wisconsin Council of Homes for the Aging, Wisconsin Association of Nursing Homes, Association of County Home Superintendents, Division of Health, and the Fox Valley Technical Institute.

Governor Addresses Superintendent

New Way Needed to Pay for Education

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

OSHKOSH — Wisconsin had better find a method soon to adequately finance its educational program or the people will suffer the consequences simetime in the future, Gov. Warren P. Knowles told state educators Tuesday night.

The governor issued the warning at the second annual meeting of the Wisconsin Association of School District Administrators. He made it clear the alternative is very simple.

"We either have to meet this challenge or we will pay for it some place down the road," he told the group of 300, composed mainly of superintendents.

Political Division

The biggest threat to education, he said, is the division of the political parties at Madison. He called it a seemingly impossible barrier, adding that the parties must come to some agreement to resolve the education tax problem

Knowles pointed out that 65 cents of every local tax dollar goes for education.

"There's no economy in 'cheap education'," he said, noting that greater state participation is necessary

The governor indicated that he was coming up with a proposal to increase state support, in line with a Tarr Task Force recommendation, and hoped the legislature would act before July to provide this support.

Guaranteed Valuation

Knowles' proposal would boost the guaranteed valuation behind each public school pupil to $42,000, a $3,000 increase for equalized school aids, and a corresponding increase for flat aids. Both increases would hike the amount of state aid paid to school districts, expecially those on equalized aids.

He warned of "virtual chaos" in Wisconsin's school systems if the legislature does not come to grips with the state's tax problem. He took the opportunity to laud the sales tax for the relief it has accorded the real estate and personal property taxpayer.

Capable of Best

Knowles told the educators that his new Kellet task force on educational spending is looking for some "new answers." He urged them to support and participate in the study.

"Wisconsin still is capable of having the finest educational institutions and opportunities in the entire nation," he assured the superintendents.

The public, like school district administrators, is committed to improving the educational programs, he added.

Knowles defended his veto of the assembly caucus leaders' original educational aids deficit bill which, he said, would have been "detrimental to many of our state services." Many of the educators applauded.

"I appreciate your understanding," he added, "and have recommended legislation for providing for the deficiencies after July 1 (the start of the 1969-71 biennium)

Knowles refused to support taking money from other state agencies but called for transferring the more than $20 million bill for current school aid needs to the next biennium. The bill is expected to be approved within a few days

Important Problems

He said that financing education is among "some of the most important problems facing the State of Wisconsin." He added the hallmark of his administration has been progress in education, as well as other areas.

He praised public school superintendents and William C. Kahl, state superintendent of the State Department of Public Instruction, for joining in the effort.

The governor said that he does not believe the average resident is aware of the magnitude of educational problems, with the growth of school systems and the political struggles developing around them. He said there are over 47,500 teachers, administrators and students in Wisconsin.

Kimberly Board Approves Summer School Program

KIMBERLY — The board of education Monday night approved a summer school program calling for 11 courses of study open to all students of the district.

Classes are scheduled to begin June 16 and continue through July 25. Registration forms are available at the school and are to be filed by May 15, as interest will determine whether it is feasible to hold a class.

The grade school program calls for remedial reading and improvement reading classes for second, third, fourth and sixth graders, modern mathematics for students from grades four through eight, and speech correction.

The junior high program includes introductory secondary mathematics and personal typing. Classes for senior high students will include geometry, driver education, English, general metals and biology.

Students from outside the district will be accepted if a class is not filled by district residents. When possible, classes will be held at the senior high school, which is air conditioned.

Credit classes will include introductory secondary math, geometry, English, general metals and biology. Enrollment in the remedial reading and improvement reading classes will be limited to 25 and the personal typing class to 90.

No fees for resident students will be charged, except for driver education, while nonresidents will be charged $30 for credits courses and $10 for non-credit courses.

24 Students From Canada Visiting Kaukauna School

KAUKAUNA — Twenty four Canadian geography students from Tronto arrived in Kaukauna Tuesday night for a brief stay in Wisconsin under an exchange program arranged by the Kaukauna High School student council

A similar group of students visited Canada earlier this year. The visitors were welcomed by Mayor Gilbert Anderson at a breakfast at the school this morning after which Edward Flynn, high school instructor, gave a brief history of the Fox Valley area.

The students will attend classes on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday mornings with afternoons devoted to tours. Points to be visited to date include Thilmany Pulp and Paper Co., the Grignon home, a dairy farm, a beef farm, Baraboo and the Devils Lake area and the Menominee Indian reservation.

They will have the opportunity to attend the Junior Prom at the school Saturday night prior to leaving for home on Sunday

Kaukauna Man Reports Theft From Garage

Lucassen was on vacation and did not realize the items missing until he needed them. Entry into the garage was gained by forcing the back door.

Expect More Trouble From North Korea

Apparently in a move to allay fears in the Soviet Union, the United States naval vessels sent to the Bay of Japan to help guard our reconnaissance missions have been ordered south into the Yellow Sea instead. But it's unlikely that their presence alone will deter further North Korean aggression and harassment.

In some ways North Korea is in the same position as East Germany. The living standards of the people are in obvious contrast to those in South Korea and West Germany. Its rigidly controlled dictatorship is now in contrast to the more liberal trends in the other countries although this would not have been so a decade ago. Both North Korea and East Germany have dictators who have never won the real backing of the people they rule. Unlike Ho Chi Minh and Fidel Castro, for instance, they are not popular heroes although the leaders in North Vietnam and Cuba may be just as ruthless and bound to the Communist ideology.

North Korea's Marshal Kim Il Sung was imposed upon the North Koreans by the Russians — in 1945 he was a major in the Soviet army. But he broke to some extent with the Russians and turned toward China with which he probably has closer ideological — and racial — ties. The Chinese, unlike the Russians, may well be spurring him on to more acts of aggression. And while his eventual aim may be to reunite Korea under his dictatorship, an important one both for Kim and Mao Tse Tung is to force the United States out of Asia. If non-Communist nations of Asia manage to heal their national differences and band together, the gradual disengagement of American military forces at least need not necessarily mean that the continent will be overrun by Communists.

President Nixon has stressed that the United States cannot tolerate attacks like those on the Pueblo and the reconnaisance plane. Fighter plane support for spy missions may deter such attacks in the future. But in case of another such attack with the loss of American lives, exactly what sort of retaliation can we make? The bombing of open cities is repelling; the invasion of North Korea by ground troops unthinkable while we are tied down in Vietnam.

We support the fighter escort of spy missions if those missions really are important. Possibly the number of naval vessels sent to the area are essential to that escort. But in themselves, battleships are not likely to have much influence over what Marshal Kim decides to do. Their presence in fact may demonstrate the American impotence to do very much of anything after the attacks have occurred.

The best chance for avoiding hostilities in the area is for the Soviet Union to lean on Marshal Kim. But we no longer can be sure of the Russian leverage and the Soviets too have to demonstrate to the crumbling Communist empire that they are not revisionists playing ball with the capitalistic United States.

It appears that Korea will be a dangerous area for some time.

Job Training for Unemployed Fathers Killed

When the Legislature's joint finance committee lopped off welfare payments to families in which the father is unemployed (AFDC-U), it demonstrated a most discouraging philosophy.

That philosophy is to kill the new and improved state services in the budget, while sustaining the services of the past.

Apparently mixed with that philosophy in cutting the AFDC-U payments were some of the shallow thinking and prejudices that often crop up on welfare programs.

AFDC-U is a relatively new program which holds out hope for unemployed fathers as it allows their families at least a meager existence.

The payments are made only to fathers who are willing and able to work, but can't find a job. The unique feature about AFDC-U is that it requires the father to enter a job training program. In other words it offers welfare officials a chance to give the man new skills that will almost certainly provide him with a good livelihood in the short-term future.

The joint finance community does a grave disservice to local government as well as the fathers in cutting AFDC-U, for the families of most of these unemployed men become chronic relief cases. The unskilled father must ask time and again for relief funds. Those relief funds come from local government.

But sadder yet is the fact that AFDC-U is the best form of prevention which the welfare system can now offer. It makes valuable citizens out of its clients. And it holds together the family unit which is the foundation of a healthy, useful life for all of its members.

Much too often under current welfare standards, the father who cannot provide is forced to desert the home — maybe even get a divorce — so that his family can get the welfare funds it needs.

In this instance and others, the most hopeful new programs of state government face emasculation at the hands of the joint finance committee while some others which are out of tune with the times go unquestioned.

The job of the committee is not an easy one, and on the whole their budget efforts seem to have the support of state taxpayers. But certainly committee members could assure more vital state government in the next two years if they were willing to look into the entire state budget and begin their cutting with some of the outmoded programs of the past which are protected by the state bureaucracy.

Ironically, in the case of AFDC-U, President Nixon announced only a few days after the state committee's action that he will introduce new welfare programs which attempt to hold the families of unemployed and underemployed fathers together.

Moderate Fails in Lebanon

The Israeli attack on the international airport at Beirut, Lebanon, in retaliation for attacks by Israeli planes by guerrillas hiding out in Lebanon has been the major factor in bringing down the moderate government of Rashid Karami.

No one can criticize the Israeli anger at the attacks upon its own commercial planes. But the retaliation upon a nation which was striving to contain the extremist Arab groups — and which had a considerable split between its own Moslem and Christian populations — played into the hands of the extremists.

Karami became premier only 12 weeks ago after he was named to the post by President Charles Helou to try to get the Lebanese to take restrained action in return for the raid on the airfield. But the extremists, using the attack as an excuse, were able to arouse the Moslem population to demands for retaliation against Israel. When Lebanese security forces clashed with the insurgents, the Moslem community sided with the insurgents. And extremist groups won a great many converts who ordinarily would have preferred to keep the peace.

Lebanon's religious diversity has in the past led to compromise and conciliation within the borders of the nation. But the Israeli attack has split the nation. The result should be an example to the rest of the world about hastily devised retaliation, whatever the provocation.

No Small Pox in New London

100 YEAR AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for May 1, 1869.

We have hitherto published an item relative to the existence of small pox at New London, among other points hereabouts. It was supposed on good authority, but we have since seen Mr. Thomas Logan of New London, who informs us there is not now, nor never has been, a single case of small pox in that village.

He also says that the man from whom Mr. Kethroe's family was exposed was not a resident of New London but was passing through and complaining of being unwell and wanted to get to Appleton, where he hoped to find work.

A man driving a team was coming this way and a ride was secured for the traveller but after riding some distance and becoming worse the teamster put him out. It happened to be near Mr. Kethroe's place where he was taken in. The next day he was broken out with the small pox and died.

Women From Europe Look More American

NEW YORK (AP) — In fashion photography it is accepted practice that a model typify the type of woman for which a designer's clothing is intended.

Larry Gordon, one of the country's leading fashion photographers, noting that the typical American look is very much in demand, says that to find that look photographers are forced to interview foreign models. "Oddly European women look more like American girls than our own home grown variety," he says.

Nation's Foundation of Law Being Challenged by Right to Dissent

BY THE HON. KENNETH B. KEATING

Associate Justice
New York Court of Appeals

Thursday, May 1 is observed in America as Law Day. The public's stake in Law Day is expertly outlined in this article reprinted from Trial Magazine, publication of the American Trial Lawyers Association.

Although the public has always esteemed the law, never before has it been so conscious of it. For never before, since the very birth of our nation, has so much of our legal code been challenged in such direct fashion. Call it conflict or confrontation, reform or revolution — the burning issue in the United States today is the right to dissent and the viable forms such dissent should take.

Millions of Americans, for years ensconced in a shelter built on a foundation of law, now find this fortress being daily assaulted. The news media have educated the most naive in the esoteric hargon of protest. Suddenly, words such as "mace" and "molotov cocktail" have become part of our everyday vocabulary.

It seems that the number of imaginative protest forms is exceeded only by the growth of protest causes, resulting in a spiraling ascension of events which is leaving America confused and afraid. In virtually every instance, a social injustice, real or imagined, is being challenged. But the impact, nevertheless, is always directed against our laws which are the tangible manifestations of our social policies.

ISOLATE THE PROBLEM

If ever there were a solution to a major social problem toward which lawyers could significantly contribute it is this one.

I am convinced that its resolution lies in the employment of the lawyer's traditional skills of creativity, compromise, dialogue and counsel. But, it is imperative that we first isolate and crystalize the problem and, then bring to bear upon it the full strength of these devices.

Perhaps the most distressing feature of recent events is the epoxy-like manner in which both sides act, each contributing to the hardening of the other's position. On the one hand, the dissenters disdain and even flout the existing laws — which results in the establishment's demand for new and more restrictive ones.

Equally lamentable, on the other hand, is the process of alchemy by which the mere challenge to a law can often transform a living canon, subject to the great legal traditions of flexibility and interpretation, into a rigid fiat subject only to mechanical enforcement.

It can readily be seen that, unless checked, these actions will only reciprocally produce accelerated reactions and increasingly intransigent positions. To bring an end to this spiral, all parties must acknowledge a binding framework within which all activity must be confined.

DISSENT OR ANARCHY

Without this framework, we no longer have dissent. We have anarchy.

The framework of the law is particularly suited for bridging the so-called generation gap. For, at its best, the law is old in the sense of appreciating the value of tradition and old in the sense of having profited from varying experiences. But it is young in its ability to respond to, and even stimulate, new or changing environments. Moreover, the framework of the law creates an impartial forum, one in which neither the length of the hair of one protagonist nor the seniority of another is permitted to cloud an issue.

The body politic should remember that America itself was conceived in dissent and born in revolution. The very essence of our system of government is the never ending search for ways to make ours a more perfect society. To accomplish this, we must accept the idea that today's heresy may well be tomorrow's truth.

Legitimate dissent is but a quest for tomorrow's truth and must be so treated. We must listen to the dissenter and not let our heart and our head be strangled by a noose of legalisms. The law must live and grow. Once we have accomplished this in both fact and spirit, we may then impose restrictions on the forms of non-compliance we shall not tolerate.

The cardinal features of such restrictions should be the protection of the rights of others and the obligation of the dissidents to assume responsibility for their actions. Our Constitution assures protection under law to our citizenry. It is imperative that we honor this guarantee.

But challengers must be willing to defend their beliefs as individuals and not seek refuge in the anonymity of the mob or the facade of the establishment.

As a corollary, I also suggest that responsible dissent should be specific, positive and relative; it should not be an excuse for mobs and hooliganism.

SHOULD OFFER SOLUTIONS

Essentially, protest should be directed against a defined event or set of circumstances and should offer definite, constructive solutions or alternatives. To shout and scream, to malign or destroy, these are the ways of the demagogue, not the genuine reformer.

Kept within these boundaries, dissent is healthy and, indeed, necessary to the success of our form of government, is based on the evolution of time tested laws forged in our legislative and judicial halls. These laws are the limitations that a free society, if it is to survive, must impose upon its citizens and officials alike. Without these laws, there will be no peace, no justice and no progress — for there will be no order. It is our code of law that provides the skeleton of our society, that holds us together, and provides the foundation to which the flesh of social progress may adhere.

In our chosen profession of the law we are the custodians of the people's trust. It, therefore, falls to us to lead in the development of a just code and thereafter to sustain and defend it at all costs. The alternative is the perversion of our free society. It is our faith in this free society that must give us the strength to face this unprecedented assault upon our legal system.

We must, when other means fail, be ready to impose the applicable legal and physical restraints on our adversaries. We can begin by sifting out the malignant from the legitimate causes, those which seek to destroy from those which seek to give life.

After isolation, not only must the full weight of the law be brought to bear upon purveyors of malignancy but the moral wrath of the people as well. Here, there can be no toleration, no compromise and no moderation for we are dealing with a mortal threat to our very being.

Redistricting State After 1970 Census Is Involved Matter

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

MADISON — The leader of the Republican Party organization has alerted his troops to the need, as he calls it, to assure a continuation of Republican rule in the state government in the 1970 elections to assure that the party will have control of the critical question of redistricting the state for legislative and congressional representation purposes in 1971.

If the Democrats are given that power, Chairman Ody Fish of the GOP state committee seems to be saying they may do the job in a manner harmful or displeasing to Republican Party interests.

Wyngaard

It is quite true that the reapportionment program control will be among the high stakes in the next election. But many persons will be entitled to doubt, on the basis of past performance, that the 1971 legislature will be any more disposed to write an acceptable redistricting act than were predecessor legislatures that fumbled the issue after the federal dicennial census data reported in 1951 and 1961.

Both of those legislatures were under Republican control, as Fish will remember, and both of them were reluctant to come to grips with the fact that the state was showing substantial urban growth, with corresponding changes in the balance of power between the Democratic and Republican Parties.

HUMAN NATURE

The legislators of the early 1950's dawdled with the question endlessly and, when they finally acted, they encountered long drawn-out litigation. The following decade, the lawmakers were no more successful, at least with regard to redrawing their own district lines. When the State Supreme Court concluded that the legislative branch was defaulting on its constitutional responsibility, the judges intervened and wrote a redistricting act under their own powers as interpreted earlier by the U. S. Supreme Court.

All of this is not to say that the legislators were deliberately or consciously evading or violating the law. Given the constitutional restrictions applying, reapportionment is a difficult task even for an objective authority, as the court's ultimate districting decision illustrated. No one who examines today's political map of Wisconsin, for example, can avoid the conclusion that the legislative districting of the court was not entirely plausible. There are some clumsily formed districts, indeed.

But the court mapping was accepted, because there was no other recourse. Fair-minded citizens recognized the impossibility of precision and neatness in the result. It also provided more equality or representation than had prevailed before the court intervened.

What is needed is a constitutional amendment taking the districting power out of the hands of the legislature, and entrusting it to an independent agency or commission, or perhaps the court, with some revisions of the method to permit more orderly and equal districting. Directing the legislators to write a law that is likely to affect many of them, or their seat-mates, adversely runs counter to human nature. It is as illogical as allowing a magistrate to preside in a trial in which his sister is a defendant.

CLING TO POWER

But the legislature is not likely to surrender the power voluntarily, nevertheless. As Fish said, the issues at stake are vital to the political parties.

Already, for example, there is talk about revising the boundaries of the Seventh District, where the Republicans embarrassingly lost a congressional seat recently to a Democrat to absorb much of the territory of the 10th District, held by the veteran Rep. Alvin O'Konski, and companion speculation that O'Konski may be tempted to challenge Rep. David Obey of the Seventh in 1972, if the realignment is to his liking.

It is clear that Wisconsin will lose one of its congressional seats in the next reapportionment and that it will be O'Konski's. His huge territory will be annexed to the Seventh, Third and Eighth districts, in all probability, perhaps with some adjustments of the existing territory of those districts accompanying the change.

One may doubt that O'Konski, given his advancing age, will care for that kind of a fight. But the rumors illustrate that redistricting is not "playing with little colored maps," as one state senator once remarked.

Strictly Personal

Do You Teach Child To be Interesting?

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

What would you consider a fine compliment paid to you about your child? That she always looks neat and clean? That he has good manners? I wouldn't mind hearing any of this — but what really pleases me most is when some adult happens to mention that a child of mine is "interesting."

And this seems to be a trait that many parents overlook altogether. They feel responsible for giving the child wholesome food and warm clothing and setting a good moral example — but pay little, if any, attention to turning out a human being who is an interesting personality.

Thus, the world is filled with dullards who have been given wholesome food and warm clothing and sent to Sunday school and instructed to say "Please" and "Thank you" — and have been bitterly neglected and under-privileged in the area of true personality development.

This is a tremendous disservice to the child, for every baby born without deficiency is a merry, curious, humorous bundle of interest. But within a half-dozen years, by the time the child begins first grade, much of the curiosity has been knocked out, the humor repressed, and thereby the learning process has been severely inhibited. (And, of course, the wrong kind of teacher, who is in the majority, compounds this growing stultification.)

Our first obligation as parents — beyond the bare subsistence needs — is to turn out children who are interesting, to themselves and to others. This means children who are interested in the world, who are confident of their abilities, who are unafraid to question, who are willing to experiment and be wrong and accept their knocks.

Instead, most parents want children who are quiet and neat and well-behaved and dutiful — and then who rebel in their teen hood, when they discover that society is a far larger, more exciting, more colorful, and more complicated structure than they had been led to believe. Indeed, it is usually the least sophisticated who get into the most trouble at that age, not the ones who have been exposed to the world.

The only way to be interesting is to be interested, and when you are interested in external reality, then you are not bored or disaffected, and you have a focus for your activities. It is this lack of focus that makes so many teen-agers restless and ready for rebellion. If you can't raise yourself, all you can do is raise the roof.

Dull, flat, constricted and uncreative personalities clog this earth of ours, through no fault of their own, for God has breathed into each soul the spirit of wonder, of exploration, of humor, of charm. What parents do for their children is not nearly as important as what they fail to do in fanning that tiny spark of expressiveness.

Status of Refugees Big Problem in Mid-East

Israelis Fear Acceptance of More Palestinians Would Endanger Security

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

JERUSALEM — Grandmotherly wisps of gray hair escape the loose bun, but that fleeting impression of gentle matriarch is overwhelmed by the bold, direct stare and cold voice of authority that proclaims Israeli's determination not to buckle to the world — or U S — pressures

"Of course," said Prime Minister Golda Muir, "there is no doubt whatsoever that President Nixon has no intention of doing anything against the interests of Israel But with all sincere respect . . . only Israel knows what is best for Israel

"The United States could miscalculate or make a mistake All mortals can. In this, there must be equality of rights for Israel." She did not add the obvious, that only Israel knows what those rights are.

Evans

We were having breakfast, and Mrs. Meir poured the grounds from her coffee cup into her empty orange juice glass and poured fresh coffee. From the windows of her suite in the King David Hotel, the first boisterous noises of the Independence Day celebration could be heard.

Talks Aid Arabs

"We want peace, but I say very bluntly we do not want peace at our expense. U.S. support for the Big Four talks, if not betrayal of Israel, was at least a godsend to the Arabs," Mrs. Meir said. They view it as an escape from direct negotiations with Israel in which, presumably, the full weight of conquest would be reflected in the settlement (whereas the U.S working paper for the Big Four talks specifically states that "rectification of boundaries" shall not depend on "weight of conquest")

We tried, during our interview with Mrs. Meir, to find some small crack in this front against big-power efforts to settle the dangerous stalemate between Israel and the Arab states. But there was none.

"The question by the U.S. to us always is; don't you believe in us, don't you trust us? I say, what is your commitment" How are you going to spell it out?"

Thus, Mrs. Meir made one prospect clear even if the Big Four perform the miracle of agreeing on a settlement, Israel will ignore it unless it conforms to Israel's own ideas

What these ideas precisely are is not known even by Mrs Meir's own cabinet The most critical — the future status of the prosperous West Bank — has not even been raised at the cabinet because of sharp conflicts of opinion As she told us "I don't want a war of Jews before the Arabs even sit down with us." But on the question of what to do with the refugees, there is a distinct hardening of opinion all through Israel, reflected by Mrs. Meir herself.

Absorb Refugees

The Prime Minister told us that Israel has already absorbed more than 650,000 refugees in the past 20 years — not Palestinian refugees but Jewish refugees from the world over. Did the world not recognize this fact, and did it not have a vital bearing on the Palestinian refugees (1.5 million of whom are now packed into camps in Gaza and Jordan's East Bank)?

"We cannot be an important factor in solving the refugee problem," Mrs. Meir said, "if by that you mean taking them back . . . We should not be asked to do it. They should be free to hate us not from without but from within? I do not think so."

At one time in the early '50s Israel offered to accept 100,000 Palestinian refugees, but no longer. With the growth of commando organizations dedicated to the destruction of Israel, as Mrs. Meir told us, Israel will not admit a potential fifth column into her lands. The refugees, she said, were "created" by the Arab states more than by the creation of the state of Israel, and the responsibility lies with the Arab states.

"If Israel has to commit suicide," she said, "it should have the privilege of choosing the method."

This hardening on the intractable refugee question is symbolic of Israel's growing isolation and its half-truculent mood as, two years after its brilliant feat of arms, it finds itself as far as ever from peace. How this new mood will affect Israel's future in a corner of the world seething with millions of Arabs bent on revenge will be discussed in another report.

Pick-Up Truck Still a Truck If It's a Truck

MADISON — A pick-up truck by any other name is still a pick-up truck, the Division of Motor Vehicles points out

Recently a number of arrests have ben made for improper license plates on pick-up trucks which have been licensed as automobiles.

"Regardless of how stylish the body or how elaborate the interior of the vehicle is, if it has a pick-up style body the vehicle must be registered as a truck," Carl Johnson, director of the registration bureau, said.

The only exception to this would be a pick-up truck with a camper body mounted on the rear, he said As long as the camper remains on the truck, it may be licensed as a camper unit and issued a regular automobile license plate.

"If the owner removes the camper body, the vehicle must be licensed as a pick-up truck," Johnson added.

Repeaters Get $200 Bond On Conservation Charges

Four Shiocton area men were released on $200 bonds after appearing in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 Tuesday on charges brought by Wisconsin conservation wardens.

Granted continuances until Friday so they could consult their attorneys were Marvin Schroeder, 26, route 2, Clintonville; Haze Diemel Jr., 33, and Leonard C. Buelow, 30, both of route 1, Shiocton; and Thomas Moder, 30, Shiocton.

All four men are charged with taking fish by means of traps in the Wolf River in the Town of Maine between April 16 and 17, and possession of fish traps on the same days.

All four men also are charged under state repeater statutes.

The complaints alleging repeater status stated that Moder was fined $25 on Jan. 28, 1966 for failing to renew bank pole lines; Buelow was convicted on May 17, 1968 for possession of snag hooks and was fined $80; Schroeder was fined $25 Sept. 9, 1967 for transporting a loaded firearm in a motor vehicle; and Diemel was fined $200 in Waupaca County April 19, 1968, for obstructing a warden in his line of duty.

The offering, planned for mid-June, will not be made until a registration statement has been filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission and has become effective.

The board also declared a regular quarterly dividend of 55 cents a share of common stock payable July 2, 1969, to stockholders of record at the close of business June 13, 1969.

Keep It Simple for Baby

Happy, Happy Birthday

By Lillian Mackesy
POST-CRESCENT FOOD EDITOR

Children like parties. . .especially when it's a birthday party with foods prepared just for them and served in a gala setting. Mothers have fun preparing a birthday party, too, especially if the treats, decorations and what-to-do plans fit into busy schedules in an easy sort of way.

Parties for young fry don't have to be elaborate. . .just creative. If the youngster is old enough, he or she can even help with the makings. What is served and what is done at a birthday depends upon the age of the birthday child.

For a one-year-old, it may be tempting to go all out for this "first" party. However, for the sake of the baby, keep the party simple, short and sweet. Remember, the party is for the baby, not for grandma or a doting aunt and uncle. Limit invitations to two or three toddlers of the same age group. Invite their mothers, so the playpen set will be watched most carefully.

Timing is important here. . . choose a brief hour that fits into daily schedules. Tell mothers of the young guests to skip dessert and serve a simple dessert menu with a flourish. Feed the youngsters, let them play a little and then home in time for their regular naps. It helps the baby to have a social confrontation such as this, but remember he or she is only one or two years old. Keep the festivities brief because a toddler's span of attention is just that.

The traditional birthday cake can center the table and this may be served to the grown-ups with coffee while the children feast on a junior pudding, fruit juice and animal shaped cookies.

What to do for the kindergarten set? Raggedy Ann, Jimmy the giraffe, Timmy the toy soldier or any other favorite can be invited along with their owners for a special party. Maybe the party can center around a favorite story . . . Cinderella or the tale of the toy soldier . . the Wizard of Oz . . . Snow White or Winnie-the-Pooh and piglet. Story telling can be the party theme and the what-to-do along with favorite games.

Here is a chance to make a huge drum cake for a very young man or cookie place cards with each guest's name spelled out. These place cards which may be eaten will delight the grade schooler, too, and for them refreshments must always include ice cream and cake, all dressed up or plain. The molasses cookie favors are sure to please birthday people of all ages, so make some extras for the cookie jar.

A dainty soup and sandwich menu as colorful as a summer garden will please a little girl and all her friends. The sandwiches are cut-outs in flower shapes, served on pretty paper plates along with a flower pot full of creamy soup. Take-home favors can be a cluster of bright lollypops in candy filled paper cups.

And don't forget the many delightful popcorn dainties in animal, flower and other intriguing shapes. From merry-go-round to blooming flower pots, the creations can take any shape. We suggest popcorn posies with an oversized "early bird" standing guard as pictured.

DRUM CAKE

1 package coconut surprise cake mix
¾ cup softened butter
3 cups sifted confectioners sugar
2 squares unsweetened chocolate, melted
½ cup chopped walnuts
1 egg white
2 teaspoons lemon juice
Water
5 cups sifted confectioners sugar

Prepare and bake cake according to package directions for two layers. Cool in pans for 10 minutes. Turn out on cooling racks.

Beat together until smooth, butter, three cups confectioners sugar and chocolate. Divide frosting. Add walnuts to half the frosting; spread walnut mixture on one cake layer. Top with remaining cake layer.

Combine egg white, lemon juice and sufficient water to make total of one-third cup. Add this to five cups confectioners sugar; beat until smooth. Spread white frosting over top and sides of cake. Before adding drum decoration let frosted cake set for half hour.

For drum decoration, pipe lines with pastry tube filled with remaining half of chocolate frosting.

The white frosting is rather stiff. To facilitate spreading, spread with a knife dipped in hot water.

COOKIE PLACE CARDS

½ cup butter or margarine
½ cup sugar
½ cup New Orleans molasses

Born Storyteller

Cook 'In Any Language' Charms Her Audience

Diminutive and dynamic Frederique Fredge created a charming diversion for the 400 members of the Wisconsin Home Economics Association attending their state convention in Appleton last weekend. They also learned that eating in Europe is not always synonymous with fine food or even good cooking.

The tiny author, teacher at Marquette University in Milwaukee, and gourmet cook "in any language" stood on a tall box in front of the lectern in the Michigan Room of the Conway Motor Inn and proceeded to delight her audience with travel bon mots done up in an accented language quite magical and all her own.

Mrs. Fredge is a born storyteller. She also has many stories to tell. She was born in Switzerland and grew up there and since 1957 has conducted summer tours to Europe. At Marquette, she teaches French and creative writing besides holding classes in gourmet cookery. "I had a little room left on my application form, she explains, so I added I could cook, too, to fill out the line and that's how it happened I give a cookery course."

"Make it a little better" was Mrs. Fredge's advice as she discussed what makes good food. "People never think twice about a recipe; they must try it even if it doesn't fit the stomach," she said, explaining that recipes are mere guides and food must sustain one, but it must be done in a "lovely way."

Answer to Poor Cooking

Her anecdote cookbook, "Cooking Round the World with a Wooden Spoon" was published in 1965 and already is out of print. It was written "after being poisoned on a tour of Europe," she explained during her descriptions of foods in Europe. ("The smaller the city the better the food," she said, "they coddle you with excellency to make you forever grateful.")

The Viennese in her opinion are the best bakers in the world; in England food is not very well understood ("It seems they boil everything, and they are used to it"). In Wales and Scotland the food is fine, but not England. Italians are masters at preparing spaghetti (or pasta of all kinds), but it's not the only Italian food ("They make the best chicken ever!")

One food story with a historical slant was that of the French breakfast crescent or croissant. "It's not French at all, but Viennese," said Mrs. Fredge.

"Besieged by the Turks, who stayed and stayed and stayed for dinner way beyond their time, the Viennese were so happy when they finally left that they got even in a droll away. They baked the Turkish crescent in bread form and ate it.

"Now, Napoleon, who always entered everywhere whether he was invited to dinner or not, came to Vienna, enjoyed the crescent, and took the chef home with him. That's how the croissant became French."

The Ailing House

Paint Floor Now, Tile It Later

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: Can I paint my basement floor now and put down tile later? Any pre-painting steps? — Milwaukee.

A: Yes, to both questions. If you don't know for sure whether the concrete was given the customary etching (to neutralize the lime) or not, this should be done first; one part muriatic acid to five warts of water. Wear old clothes and rubber gloves. This is very strong stuff. Get it at masonry supply dealers and use only latex paint. Tile is not good over oil paint.

Q: We bought a 25-year-old home recently. We plan to eliminate the dining room, which has a china cupboard built into the wall. I am afriad that if I dig this built-in out, it will weaken the wall. What can I do? We would rather hang a picture or two in this area. — Columbus.

A: Don't want it? Cover it up by securing panels of wallboard or plywood over it. Fill any joints and dents with spackle, then paint or paper. If you ever wanted to have a secret hiding place, this offers a lovely opportunity, a nice challenge for a good carpenter.

Q: Last fall, I wrapped a dripping cold water pipe with some kind of tape I was told would make good insulation. I bound it again with masking tape. It worked very well but did not stop the dripping completely. What can I do now? — Aberdeen, Md.

A: Wrap with another layer, and this time make sure there are no gaps in the overlapping. This added thickness should do the job.

Good Nutrition Key To National Future

We must build a strong nutritional pattern into our future or we won't have one, Dr. Clinita Ford, head of the home economics staff at Florida A. &. M. University, Tallahassee, Fla., told Wisconsin home economists at their state luncheon meeting Saturday at Conway Motor Inn.

Using facts and figures from official surveys in population growth, nutrition and eating patterns and health studies, she admittedly stated that America has its ugly side. These were some of the highlight points brought out:

"Our population is growing faster than our food supply and we may be moving to world-wide starvation. We may see areas of our world die on television by way of Telstar.

One Kind of Crisis

"We are confronted today with a crisis of human quality," she said, explaining that in the old days man was intelligent enough for the world in which he lived. He could solve his problems, do his work and live his life; this century has seen a technological advancement that demands greater intelligence from man and has put the old standards out of joint.

"Malnutrition and hunger are right here, not on the other side of the world or only in the underdeveloped countries.

"We are feeding our livestock and pets better than our people. In the midst of affluence, half our people have dietary insufficiencies, on all income levels.

"There are alarming percentages of borderline anemia; rickets, once a beaten condition, is returning; goiter, which can be controlled with iodized salt, is on the increase."

Dr. Ford declared that poor diet seems to reach into all income levels, that statistics show that often the lower income groups receive better nutrition than people with more money to spend on food.

She discussed the need to help those people in the poverty groups of this country, the need for programs whereby they can help themselves as well as receive food assistance.

Nutritional and social deprivations go hand in hand, she said, poor living conditions breed malnutrition and they can't be separated. She pointed out that malnutrition may be the key to retarded physical and mental growth. It leads to lack of motivation and a growing apathy. It may prepare the way for school failures among children.

The future can be a brighter one, Dr. Ford believes, if education in nutrition and the fight against malnutrition go forward on all levels. She believes that a breakthrough in agri-science is a step forward. She thinks "mothercraft" centers such as those organized in underdeveloped countries to rehabilitate undernourished children and teach mothers at the same time should be established in the United States wherever needed.

"A "Salad Bowl" movement for teens might help the nutritional gap in this age group, she said. Improvement of the food stamp program and other child nutrition programs might help the "6 million American schoolchildren who need food today." More education, research, training and a nutrition-education service all are needed to fight the crises in nutrition in America today.

Touch of Glamor

Spitcurls can be as cute as — well, spitcurls. And they can be bought at the favorite cosmetic counter for use when the mood is just right. The adhesive will stick better if it is applied to clean, absolutely dry skin. Cleanse the area of all makeup and natural oil by stroking with a cotton puff soaked with witch hazel. The lotion dries quickly. Adhesive can be applied immediately afterward.

Lutheran Girl Pioneers Meet Saturday

National Convention of Lutheran Girl Pioneers will meet Saturday at St. Paul's Lutheran Church Registration begins at 8 a.m. at the Harris Street entrance and display tables will be set up for those caravans bringing handicrafts.

The convention opens at 9 a.m. in the church with a welcome by the Rev. H. W. Bergholz and a short business meeting. At this time candidates for the National Council will be introduced.

There will be workshops at 10 a.m., 10:45 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Caravan No. 160, St. John, Fox Lake, is responsible for the workshop on camping and outdoors; No. 84, Martin Luther Church, Neenah, for handicraft; Appleton Fire Department for first aid and babysitting; No. 153, Bethany, and No. 136, Riverview, for recreation and games; No. 145, St. Paul, Lomira, for music and singing; an Avon representative for good grooming; Mrs. Alice Schulz, Outagamie County Home Agent, for cooking; and a representative of Sears Roebuck and Co for sewing.

After the second workshop there will be a luncheon and free hour. At 2:30 p.m. a business meeting will take place at Mt. Olive Church. The convention will close at 3:30 p.m.

Advance planning for a smooth day will be taken care of by No. 137, St. Matthew Evangelical, decorations; No. 155, Mt. Olive, invitations and reservations; No. 135, St. Paul, and No. 122, Mt. Calvary, Kimberly, kitchen and dining-room, and No. 163, Bethlehem, Hortonville, door prizes.

The Lutheran Girl Pioneers date back to 1954 when a girls' club was organized in La Crosse with the idea of completing a youth program for Christian fellowship. In May, 1955 six congregations from the Wisconsin Evangelical Lutheran Synod met to draw up a constitution for Lutheran Girl Pioneers. The next month saw the adoption of the constitution and the election of the first National Council.

The local groups were designated caravans and divided into units of six known as wagons. Each wagon has a driver and five girls. The girls are known as a traveler, trailblazer or homesteader, depending on the individual's personal achievements.

The National Council adopted its charter, set national dues and accepted the charm bracelet with a disk as the achievement recognition for Travelers in 1956. In this year the first Lutheran Girl Pioneers manual was printed and the first convention met.

In succeeding years the organization has continued to grow. Charms have been added to the bracelet of achievement, field days called and conventions convened. The group inaugurated a special date in 1961 when it incorporated.

Throughout the years the girls have followed the purpose of providing supervised and constructive recreation to prepare Lutheran Girl Pioneers in the ways of good citizenship with their motto "Loyal to Christ" ever before them.

Lessons You Can Teach Toddler in His Bath

Soaking off the day's accumulation of dirt and grime is only part of the benefit of your baby's bath. He can also learn a great deal while he sits in his bathinette, tub or sink. It all depends on how you introduced him to water in his earliest weeks of life, and whether you are relaxed when you bathe him. You'll also bathe him more happily and efficiently if this time doesn't turn into a struggle, either because he's scared of the water or because he keeps grabbing things you don't want him to have.

Your baby won't insist on tugging at the washcloth or cramming soap into his mouth, if you give him proper toys of his own. Unfortunately, most commercially available bath toys won't do him much good. At best he can hold floating ducks or watch them swim around. They may seem "cute" to adults, and they are better than nothing. But they won't hold his attention or enable him to learn what he could from other things you might give him.

The best and most worthwhile bath toys are empty plastic funnels, bottles and cups in different colors and sizes. He'll learn to fill them, screw and unscrew bottle tops, and learn to pour from one container into another. These may seem small skills to you. But your 2-year-old must learn them if he is to be careful, adept and well-coordinated. He'll eventually find out that it works better if he pours slowly. He'll discover that small cups hold less fluid than larger ones. He'll become dexterous and figure out in his bath what you could never teach him by telling him to be careful, to pour slowly and not too full.

Empty, plastic, lemon and lime extract containers are among the most entertaining "found" household bath toys for your baby or toddler. He'll squeeze the air out of them under water. They make great bubbles. If you remove the inserts pressed into the openings, they make amusing pouring toys. They become water squirters with inserts replaced. Plastic coffee can lids, spoons and other household objects can let you child develop his skills while he's in)his bath. And he'll have a wonderful time besides.

Encourage your toddler to start washing himself, once he really feels at home in the water. Give him a washcloth — without soap — and let him scrub away. Praise him for washing himself so well. And, of course, keep talking and singing while you bathe your child. The very sound of your voice will let him feel that all is well in his world.

Former Valley Resident Wins State Award for Civic Activities

COLUMBUS, Ga. — An extraordinary record of community activities has garnered Mrs. Neita Hill the title of Georgia's Outstanding Young Woman of 1968.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Hornbeck, 740 Nicolet Blvd., Menasha, Mrs. Hill attended Appleton High School until her senior year, when her family moved to Sylacauga, Ala., where her father served as mill manager of Coosa River Newsprint Plant. The Hornbecks returned to the Fox River Valley in 1952, when Mr. Hornbeck was transferred to his current position as manager of Kimberly-Clark Corporation's Neenah Paper Mill.

In addition to leading the busy life of a wife and mother of four children, Mrs. Hill has served as the source of inspiration for several civic service organizations. The sum total of her accomplishments, charitable activities and professional excellence were selected as those most representative of the state's finest young women.

Now in its fifth year, the Outstanding Young Women of America program is sponsored annually by leaders of major women's organizations, headed by a board of advisors

Mrs. Hill, who has lived in Columbus for the past four years, formerly resided in Mobile, Ala., where she recruited volunteers and trained lecturers and tour guides as chairman of the Junior Women's Club city museum project. She personally worked 137 hours as a speaker and guide and conducted 264 school class tours through the museum.

A 1954 graduate of the University of Alabama, Mrs. Hill combined her interest in the museum with that of teaching. In 1956, she taught the first class for retarded children in the Mobile school system. Her continuing interest in mental retardation led her to join the Columbus Chapter for Retarded Children and to inspire Georgia's Junior Women's Clubs to adopt the project, "Crusade for Change," to assist underprivileged children in the state.

As education chairman of the Columbus Junior Women's Club, Mrs. Hill spearheaded fund raising projects which enabled the club to grant more than $1,400 in scholarships during 1967. Under her direction, the club entered the Shell Oil Education Contest and won first and third place monetary awards with additional funds being allocated to them for the educational program.

Outstanding New Member

Mrs. Hill was named the outstanding new member of the Junior Women's Club and recipient of the Ella Christie Melton Education award from the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs. In 1968, the federation presented her with the Epsilon Sigma Omicron pin for her work as head of the state's education department.

A member of the board of directors of the Girls' Clubs of Columbus, Mrs. Hill also is chairman of volunteers for the South Columbus Girls' Club and education co-chairman of the Georgia Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Hill holds memberships in Alpha Gamma Delta and Alpha Gam Alumnae clubs, the Jaycettes; the Columbus Museum of Arts and Crafts and the Georgia Association for Retarded Children. She also serves as membership chairman for the Reese Road PTA and president for both the Muscogee County Pharmaceutical Auxiliary and the Georgia Pharmaceutical Auxiliary, for which she was last year's co-chairman

Family Plans Move

Her husband, Richard Hoyle Hill, southeastern district sales manager of American Sun Mark Co., and four children, Anita, 14; Mary Ruth, 9; Andrea, 7, and Richard Jr., 5, reside at 4671 Fairview Drive. The family plans to move into a new home in June.

DESIGNER'S MESSAGE: More '69 scarf magic (stores report they can't get enough). A wonderful touch in open neck blouses in bright colors and prints Italy '69

Versatile 'Tool'

You're doing it the hard way if you still wrap a dust cloth over the end of a broom to clean ceilings and swish away cobwebs from hard-to-reach corners. Instead, tie socks over a yardstick with rubber band. This is a lighter, more versatile "tool" and will help you accomplish more with less effort.

Dramatic Eyes

To make eyes appear larger, more dramatic, draw an ever-so thin line of white eyeliner just above the dark line at the lashes. Before applying any eye makeup be sure the surface is spotlessly clean. Cleanse with witch hazel pads.

Be Simple If Hand Has Long Suit

Among the most difficult hands to play are those in which you must choose whether to set up a long suit or to ruff out your losers. No single formula solves all problems, but it usually pays to develop the long suit first and save the ruffing tricks as eventual entries to the long suit.

When today's hand was played in the recent national tournament in Cleveland, declarer won the first trick with the queen of diamonds, took the ace of spades and ruffed a spade. South next cashed the ace of diamonds, ruffed a diamond and ruffed another spade in dummy.

Having thus started the hand backwards, South took the ace of clubs and gave up a club. West, Oakland expert Marilyn Johnson, shrewdly returned the queen of hearts.

If declarer won in dummy, West would win the next club and return another trump. Now there would be no entry to the clubs, and South would lose one spade, one trump and two clubs.

Ruffs Partner's Trick

South tried to escape by taking the queen of hearts with the king, but then East, Peter Pender, ruffed his partner's club trick to lead the king of spades. Declarer had to ruff with dummy's ace of trumps, and West was thus assured of two trump tricks, defeating the contract.

South would easily make his contract if he began the clubs at the second trick. He could afford to give up two clubs (although a good guess would limit the loss in clubs to one trick) draw two rounds of trumps with the king and the ace, and then lead good clubs from the dummy.

West would get his trump trick, but South could then ruff a spade to return to dummy for the last club. West would get only two clubs and one trump.

Daily Question

As dealer, you hold: S-Q 7 2, H-Q J 10, D-K 10 9 5, C-K Q 6. What do you say?

Answer: Pass. You have 13 points in high cards, enough for an optional opening bid. You decide not to exercise this option because the hand is aceless. Avoid opening an aceless borderline hand.

Your Problems

How Can They Neglect Retarded Child?

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am 17 and have a retarded brother 20. My parents have done a wonderful job of making my brother feel loved and wanted. They have taught us to be kind and considerate of him. Since early childhood we have been told, "Treat Brother as though he were normal."

Brother lives away from home in a lovely place where they have cottages. They can take only 100 boys, so we were lucky. The whole family went to visit Brother last week and came home heartbroken. The boys had decorated the dining room for company and set up a special table. Only ten people beside our family showed up.

I can't understand how parents can neglect a retarded child. Surely they realize that retarded children have feelings. Retarded children know when they are being ignored.

Please print my letter, Ann, even though there's not much you can say. Some folks need to be reminded. — A Sister

Dear Sister: You reminded them — and in a way I never could. Thank you.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please change the language and make this letter printable. I need your help. Or should I say we need your help. The problem is just as much my husband's as it is mine.

When our son comes home from college for a weekend or holiday, it wrecks our home life, or I should say our sex life. Don't misunderstand. Van is a great kid, no trouble whatever, but his sleeping habits are weird. He walks about until 3 a.m. When we had our big house it didn't matter because our bedroom was upstairs. But when Van went away to college we moved into an apartment.

My husband says I shouldn't let this bother me. But I simply can't relax when the boy is practically outside our door. Am I crazy? Any suggestions? Thanks.—Inhibited

Landers

Dear In: Most people have a radio or a TV in the bedroom. Let there be music. You're welcome.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: TV is getting so rough our teenage daughters are afraid to turn the set on when they have boys over. I can't say that I blame them. Several of the new commercials are in terrible taste. Some of the so-called "entertainment" shows are rotten.

I asked our minister what can be done about it. He made an excellent suggestion. He said those who are offended by what they see on TV should not sit by and allow garbage to be dumped in their living rooms. Telephone the station and in a polite but emphatic manner express your opinion about what is being shown. (The station keeps track of such calls.) Next write or wire the sponsor and tell him you will not buy his products and why. Print this, please. Ann. Let the viewers know we do have a choice. — Sick of Trash

Dear S.O.T.: Your clergyman is right. If enough complaints come in, the offensive material will be scrapped and we'll get talent instead of junk.

Dr. you feel ill at ease. . . out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Riverview Salutes Springtime in Paris

From the rive gauche to haute couture — or from hip to high fashion en anglais — Riverview Country Club members came attired in their Parisian best to celebrate the advent of spring in the French tradition at the group's first gala of the season Saturday evening.

Prizes were awarded to the most imaginatively costumed party-goers, and all enjoyed the menu of veal cordon bleu, casserolette de filet of sole, sadade Caroline, green peas, potatoes dauphinois, French bread, orange liquor dake and Beaujeaulais wine.

Co-chairmen were Mr. and Mrs. Don Herring and Mr. and Mrs. Harwood Orbison, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Boldt, Mr. and Mrs. John Carpenter, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Schmitz, Mr. and Mrs. Whipple, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Wright and Mrs. Dexter Wolfe.

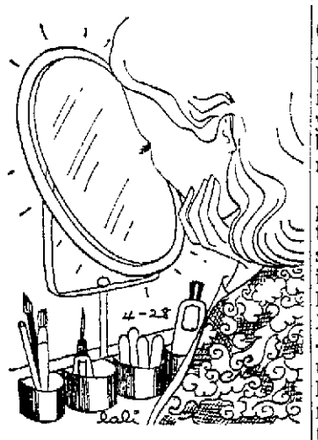
A Skin's Moment of Truth

A Lovely writes: I recently purchased a lighted magnifying mirror. And am I sorry! Until I looked in it, I thought my skin was remarkably smooth and fresh for my age. Now I see lines and discolorations I never suspected. What hope is there?



Maybe I should give up, wear a lace cap and sit in Mrs. Whistler's rocker?

The Answer: Wear the lace, but in a nifty shirtdress. That would boost your morale. And do rock. It's relaxing. A happy outlook and relaxed nerves are among the best antidotes for mature-skin problems.

Another good move is to keep looking in "that" magnifying mirror. Every woman, every teen for that matter, should face up to her reflection. Only in that way are skin problems detected and treated before they become catastrophic.

For the mature, developments may become wider in scope than little lines and brown spots. The skin may become lax, sallow, thin and parchment-dry. Some difficulties reflect physical imbalances. Others point to external abuse.

Expert opinion has it that much aging stems from weathering — from sun and improper handling. If you consider all causes, you sense the remedial measures.

In capsule, they add up to: Check with your doctor ... Avoid overexposure to sun and harsh weather ... Use moisturizers and emollients. Handle your skin as you would a baby's. Actually, yours is more readily destructible.

Spot reduction — key to a proportioned figure. Exercise is the only way to trim those stubborn bulges ... to lose inches exactly where you wish. My new booklet, Spot Reducing Exercises, gives easy routines — 40 in all — for slimming the upper back, arms, midriff, hips, legs, ankles ... Plus ideal measurements ... other figure-trimming tips. For your copy, write to Mary Sue Miller in care of The Post-Crescent, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 35 cents in coin.

No Bonanza for Aberdeen

Fischer Quints Succeed In Leading Normal Lives

ABERDEEN, S.D. (AP) — A "No Trespassing" sign hangs from a wire fence around the farm home of the Fischer quintuplets.

The warning would hardly be significant elsewhere in these pheasant - rich plains but this one is aimed at sightseers, not hunters.

Security was tightened around Mary Ann, Mary Magdalene, Mary Catherine, James Andrew and Mary Margaret soon after they were born at St Luke's Hospital in Aberdeen Sept 14, 1963

The Fischer five are only the third set of quintuplets who have survived in the Western Hemisphere. And their parents, Andrew and Mary Ann Fischer, were determined that they would be raised in as much privacy as possible for youngsters issued Social Security numbers at the age of six months.

Mrs. Fischer, now 36, has said her quintuplets will be reared like the other six children in the family, unobtrusively and without fanfare.

From the looks of things she is succeeding.

Fellow residents of Abderdeen (population 25,000) have adopted a somewhat protective attitude toward the quintuplets.

A store clerk who said she once bowled in the same league as Mrs. Fischer said, "I believe you might say they have what some people call a tight circle of friends and family.

"And I don't blame them," she added. "If I were in their spot I'd be wary of people, too."

Another clerk said, "They didn't want a circus atmosphere and they don't have one."

It wasn't always that way B. E. Kirkgasler, a local clothier, recalled the days and weeks just after the quintuplets were born.

"I think a lot of people saw the birth as a possible bonanza to Aberdeen. The city even tried to use the quints as a reason to get the state highway department to put a new highway through town."

Bumper Stickers

Soon quintuplet dolls appeared. There were quintuplet post cards, memorial coins, bumper stickers and even a cocktail called a quintini—with four olives and an onion.

But today most of this is gone The Chamber of Commerce says it has been a couple of years since anyone asked for quint memorial coins. The highway wasn't built, and now bartenders don't know what you're talking about if you ask for a quintini.

The Curtis Publishing Co., the Borden Co., a dairy products firm, and Brown and Bigelow, which produces calendars, purchased exclusive rights for such things as interviews and photographs of the quintuplets a short time after they were born The Borden Co. contract expired two years ago and was not renewed

One of the more popular local guessing games for a time was the extent of the annual income for the family from exclusive contracts and outright gifts

The estimates ranged from $60,000 to $250,000, but neither the family nor their attorneys would discuss that. The truth probably lies somewhere in between Fischer, now 44, is a lean man who wears a closely cropped crew cut. In 1963 he was completing his 18th year of employment at a grocery wholesale house in Aberdeen, earning $78 a week.

Andrew and Mary Ann met at a bowling alley when he was president of a league and she was one of the best distaff bowlers in town.

He returned to the grocery wholesale firm after the quintuplets were born, but he wanted to buy a cattle farm. The dream came true in 1964 when he put $30,000 down on a $100-an-acre, 800-acre farmsite. Construction on the 10 bedroom home started almost immediately after that.

Raises Herefords

Acquaintances say Fischer has all 800 acres in grassland and is building up a herd of Hereford cattle.

There were five older Fischer children, four daughters and a son, when the quints arrived and another daughter, Cynthia, was born a year and 10 days after the quints.

The physician who delivered the quintuplets no longer lives in Aberdeen. Dr. James Berbos was a general practitioner in September 1963. Two years later he returned to medical school to specialize in diseases of the eye and now practices in Fullerton, Calif.

Dr. Berbos, who visits the Fischers when he returns to Aberdeen, said recently the youngsters are quite normal. "They've even had the mumps."

The children will begin first grade this fall at one of the two Catholic grade schools in the city, probably Sacred Heart School, which their older brother and sisters attend.

The quintuplets make at least one public appearance each year. The youngsters and their parents ride in a parade when the local teachers college has its football homecoming.

Blusher Useful

The blusher has many uses in the art of makeup. For example, suppose the forehead appears too wide. Put blusher at either side and at the temples, and use a lighter shade of foundation in the center. Blend the shades carefully with a cotton pad dampened with good quality witch hazel.

WINE On the Table

By William Clifford

About half a billion people drink a glass or two of wine every day of their adult lives. Most of this is dry red wine, the wine that goes best with meat and many other foods

There's no limit on the time or season for enjoying red wine. Keep it in the dining room and enjoy it at room temperature, cool it gently for summer lunch; heat and spice it on a cold winter's day.

Most of the time you'll find that red wine tastes best at room temperature — best of all with red meat such as steak Red wine also goes well with cheese, spaghetti, and chicken.

Drink it in any combination you like, but don't insist on it with sauerkraut, salads, or sweet desserts. The finest red wines are dry and tart, and they suffer in combination with sugary or very spicy foods.

If you don't know which red wines to buy, select a widely available American brand and taste each of its different varieties in turn. Most of our wines come from California, and this is the best way to find out what they're like.

Perhaps you'll prefer the great Cabernet Sauvignon, in the style of the wines of Bordeaux From the Burgundy grapes come Pinot Noir and Gamay. Try also Claret, Burgundy, Mountain Red, and California's own Zinfandel or Rudy Cabernet.

For imported wines, one of the big-name shippers of Bordeaux can give you a representative blend from each region, as well as a Beaujolais and various Burgundies.

By tasting systematically and deciding which wines you like best from one producer you gain more useful experience than by just jumping around among all the labels in the store.

Surgery Won't Cause Growth of Cancer

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr Thosteson: You answered Mrs L S about a biopsy, cutting into a lump Does that mean that when a cancer is removed the cells will grow in another place?

You stated that metastasis cells starting to grow in other parts of the body, will happen whether one cuts into a cancer or not

Does that mean, in other words, that once you have cancer removed, it will appear somewhere else in the body? — Mrs. E.A H

No, it doesn't mean that at all.

The point you are missing is this: if all of the cancer is removed, then there aren't any cancer cells left to start a cancer in some other part of the body

That is precisely why I, and everyone else interested in combatting cancer, so constantly stress the importance of finding cancer early. That's why I complain so much about patients who notice some suspicious sign and then postpone going to the doctor "because it might be cancer."

Dr. Thosteson

That is precisely when they should go — as quickly as possible

A cancer starts at some single point. Then it grows. That is the nature of cancer — to grow. At first it just expands gradually. Next it will start spreading into an adjoining organ or tissue.

And finally, if allowed to keep on growing, it will begin to throw off cancer cells which can be picked up by the lymph or another system and be transported to distant parts of the body. There some of these wandering cells will establish themselves and grow into new, separate cancers (metastases)

Therefore, in combatting cancer, two things are of primary importance: first, to find and remove a cancer before it has reached the stage of liberating cells to be carried elsewhere; second, to make as certain as is humanly possible that every last particle of the cancer is removed. Because if some is left, it will continue to grow

That is why, for one example, a benign tumor or cyst can be removed from the breast without much difficulty But if a cancer is found, the entire breast is removed

The purpose is to be sure of removing the entire cancer, plus some adjacent healthy tissue, to make sure that every particle of the cancer is gone, leaving not the tiniest speck to build up into further trouble (Removing a cancer cannot, of course, guarantee that a new and entirely unrelated cancer may not develop in the future It may or may not.)

While I trust that this will remove some of the worry from your mind, I hope it also demonstrates why one should never hesitate for an instant if any suspicious sign develops

Dear Dr Thosteson My wife and I have been drinking a small amount of iodine in our orange juice We were told that it is good for the system and will keep hair from getting gray What is your knowledge about this? — O.M.A

The system needs only a very small amount of iodine, which most people now get from iodized salt, seafoods, and other sources Beyond that tiny amount, it isn't "good for the system" won't keep hair from graying

And in a few individuals, the extra iodine can be harmful so my advice is to give up this notion.

Nuclear Accelerator Named After Physicist

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission will name the giant nuclear accelerator at Weston, Ill., in honor of the late Nobel Prize-winning physicist Enrico Fermi, Rep Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., said Tuesday

The accelerator will be able to produce 200 billion electron volts when it is completed in the fall of 1972

Fermi's experiments at the University of Chicago in the early 1940s led to the building of the first atomic reactor and, on Dec 2, 1942, the first self-sustaining nuclear chain reaction

New Standards Considered For Homeowner Insurance

Post Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Wisconsin has not yet acted to approve or reject revisions in the standard homeowner's insurance policy that have been approved in 44 other states, but will probably make a decision during the next 30 days, a spokesman for the State Department of Insurance said today.

The official said the new rate proposals filed by the Multi-Line Rating bureau were received last September, and that the regulatory agency has been studying them since that time to determine the precise effect of the new premium schedules suggested.

Specifically, the department has asked the carriers to produce data showing how much some of the restrictions suggested will cost homeowner policy buyers in Wisconsin, including new restrictions on theft from a boat, coverage of recreational vehicles on or off the premises, and a reduction of the coverage for theft of jewelry and furs from $1,000 to $500.

The department said rating bureau officials were given the request for additional data at a conference here last week.

A department official said the loss ratio of the firms on the homeowners policy in Wisconsin in 1967, the last year for which complete data is available, was favorable at under 50 per cent on more than $34 million of premium income.

(The Post-Crescent recently published a column by Sylvia Porter reporting that the new policy plan for homeowners represents gains for them, and that the new rate system has been approved in most of the states and is expected to be endorsed by the remaining states soon.)

Mutual Funds Vary Aims In Investments, Payment

BY MARY FEELEY
Consultant in Money Management

Dear Miss Feeley,

My wife and I want to put a little money into mutual funds, since we're always hearing they're a good thing for the little guy who doesn't know anything about stocks. Well, we don't know anything about stocks, but we don't know anything about funds, either! The experts who write about them seem to take it for granted that the average reader is more hep than he is. I get lost in "go-go" and "balanced" and the rest of the lingo.

Could you please cut the subject down to my size?

H. K. L., Fredricksburg, Va.

Dear H. K. L.:

Three major types of funds are bond funds, balanced funds and common stock funds. A bond fund: the management of that fund invests only in bonds. Various funds specialize in different types of bonds. Balanced fund: referred to as the "old-fashioned balanced fund" simply because the first funds were set up this way. This type of fund keeps a balance between bonds, preferred stock and common stock in the investments. Common stock fund: here management may invest in bonds and preferred stocks, but only to a small extent and at certain times in market activity. Common stocks are their meat.

Within any of these common stock funds, there can be specialized funds which put the emphasis on specific types of stock — such as insurance company stock, bank stock, electronics, or public utilities or whatever. As in every thing else fashions in investing come and go, which is something to keep in mind.

What's Objective

Now for some questions. What do you want a fund to do for you? Do you want income now or later?

Around retirement time or just before is when an income fund looks most attractive. It might be any one of the three major types of funds, but its purpose is investments that pay fat dividends — where growth is not the primary objective, or even an objective at all. If the name of a fund doesn't tell you it's an income fund, the prospectus will. The consideration here is, do you want more income right now, with the tax consequences it would entail? Or would you be better off with capital gains at this point, and income later?

Growth funds appeal to the broad scope of young investors who want income later in life when the tax bracket is lowest, rather than during the high salaried years. Growth funds include the conservative, the middle-of-the-road, and the go-go or aggressive growth fund. Some of the more aggressive funds often don't pay any regular income whatever; they put back almost all into research and development. Capital gains is where they shine.

Minimums Usually Required

Next question: How much can you put into a fund? The fund itself sets the minimum amount you can start with. And you can buy on a contractual plan — contracting to put in a certain amount every month for the life of the contract — or put your money in an open account. Generally speaking, you can get into a contractual plan for less money — maybe as low as $20-$25 a month, but usually higher, paying the first two months as the initial payment. If you want to put a certain sum in an open account — which means you can add future amounts when and if you like — you'll have to meet the minimum required by that fund, which could be, say, $500 in some funds, or, as much as $10,000 in others

The cost of a contractual plan is a share more than half your original investment the first year, then it gets less. Cost of an open account is 8½ per cent of the amount put in, each time you put it in. Over a 10-year period you're likely to find that an open account adds up in your favor. But if you find it hard to save ordinarily, you're more apt to keep up monthly payments with a contractual plan simply because you set it up that way.

There are also some "no-load" funds, which mean you do not pay a sales charge when you go in because the funds do not have sales staffs. Before you decide that a no-load is a better bargain, check the fund's performance against those where you pay a sales charge over a period of years. The public library probably will have reference material on mutual fund performances.

Which NFL Teams Would Join AFL Alignment?

Pro Football's 'Shift 3' Plan May be Adopted

By MIKE RATHET

NEW YORK (AP) — Pro football's 26 club owners went into joint session today, leaning toward a proposed plan to shift three National Football League teams to the American Football League as a solution to the thorny problem of realignment.

But while the Shift-Three Plan emerged as the most likely foundation on which accord could be built that left the bigger question unresolved:

What bricks will come out of the older of pro football's two houses to form the new architecture of the sport in 1970?

The plan to shift three NFL teams, interpreted in some quarters as another triumph for the AFL in these meetings that actually began in mid-March at Palm Springs, Calif., seemed to gain ground in the initial skirmishing Tuesday as the two leagues met separately.

"At this point the AFL seems to be in general accord on three NFL teams moving," explained Commissioner Pete Rozelle. "And the NFL talked about that more than any other plan. It would seem most of the NFL clubs would favor this approach."

Under that plan, one of currently three being considered, three NFL teams would join the 10 teams that now make up the AFL to form one conference while the remaining 13 NFL teams would form the other, with a 4-4-5 divisional set-up in each.

The other two plans call for either a complete reshuffling of the 26 teams or a 4-4-5 divisional arrangement in which the five teams in each of the AFL's divisions would link up with the two-four team divisions in each of the NFL's conferences.

The Shift-Three Plan was favored by the AFL because it fulfilled two of its main considerations—a 13-13 line-up, rather than the current 16-10 set-up, and the retention of as much AFL identity as possible.

Rozelle said he personally favored small divisions, home and home series within the divisions and retention of as much AFL-NFL rivalry as possible and that "the three-shift obviously meets more of the significant factors than the other plans."

"There's a good possibility," admitted Chicago owner George Halas "that's the way we'll go —more so than any other plan."

But while sentiment seemed to be moving in that direction, no teams were. And, said Rozelle, "none have specifically been asked to move."

Baltimore, New Orleans, Atlanta, Dallas and Minnesota have been mentioned as possible shift candidates but as of Tuesday there were no volunteers publicly.

"Literally, you could force teams to move on a vote basis," said Rozelle, "but from a practical standpoint you want agreement."

And that's where the problem gets extremely sticky, for what three teams move would have to meet approval by both the NFL and AFL before realignment could be accomplished.

Rozelle emphasized how difficult a decision it would be to select the bricks for the foundation if the Shift-Three Plan were adopted.

"This is a monumental decision," he said. "Some of these people have a tradition of 50 years in the NFL. And whatever they do they can make mistakes —so that's what they want to avoid. It's a big one—they don't want to foul it up.

"Besides, every one of the 26 teams involved is absolutely selfish. They're trying to do what's best for their club and the fans in their community on one hand and on the other they're trying to do what's best for pro football.

"We are going to do our best to realign here. We want it. We want it badly. But if we don't do it here, we'll work some more and come back in two weeks."

Ryan, Hungter, Howell, Reid Collect Three Safeties Each

WATERLOO, Ia. — The Appleton Foxes raked four Tri-Cities pitchers for 19 hits en route to an 11-6 victory over the Hawks in a Midwest League game Tuesday night.

The victory gives Appleton a 2-0 record in league play to date and a tie with Decatur for first place. The Commodores also won Tuesday, topping Burlington, 8-6.

Appleton bids to keep its early season streak going tonight, when the Foxes' right-hander Gary Hoskins opposes Hawk southpaw Joe Karp.

Appleton's bats boomed for six runs and six hits in the first two innings, and the Hawks were never able to recover. While Foxes' pitchers Don Eddy and Steve O'Neil kept the Hawks at bay, Appleton continued to pad its lead until it reached 11-2 heading into the bottom of the ninth.

Breaks Loose

Tri-Cities then broke loose for four runs, three of them coming on Bob Brown's homer. O'Neil, who had taken over for Eddy in the eighth inning, shut the door after that.

Four Foxes — Dana Ryan, George Hunter, Greg Howell and Roger Reid — collected three hits apiece. Hunter, Max Correa, and Eddy each drove in two runs.

Appleton got off to a good start in the first frame, when after one out, Ryan walked, stole second, and eventually scored on Hunter's double. Ross Sapp, who had singled earlier, tallied on the same play when Hawk catcher Jorge Rivera dropped the throw to the plate.

Tri-Cities got one of the runs back in the bottom of the first on Nick Van Lue's double and

Carol Platten Falls 2 Pins Short in Defense of Title

BY RON WITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Defending champions die hard.

Platten

Fontaine

a daring bid to retain her crown before coming up two pins short of the leader to highlight tournament action Tuesday night.

Miss Platten, a 23-year old secretary employed in Pulaski, powered an 865 4-game series to gain the runnerup slot in B. Weyauwega's Judy Kent remains at the top with an 867 total.

Torin Fontaine, Appleton, kept the spotlight on the Class B bowlers as he rolled a 902 foursome to take over third place on the men's side of the ledger. Fontaine's total rates close behind runnerup Don Maas of Appleton, who has a 905 mark, and Mel Hanson, also of Appleton, who leds with 906.

Another change in Men's Class B saw Howie Brygelson, Appleton, move into eighth place behind an 856 count (732 scratch plus 124 handicap. He spun scratch games of 198, 188, 197, and 149.

Bill Winkler, Appleton, took over the 11th spot with 847 (739 scratch plus 108 handicap). His games consisted of 187, 177, 230, and 145.

Posts 849 Total

Class A competition slacked off somewhat. The best men's performance was by Gerald Verstegen, Neenah, who claimed a tie for 16th with an 849. He hit 769 scratch with 80 pins handicap. Heading Women's Class A was Pat Wojahn, also of Neenah, who came in with 782 for the 24th position. She fired 630 scratch and had 152 pins handicap.

Much of the attention was focused on Miss Platten after she unleashed an 8-strike 274 game (234 scratch plus 40 pins handicap) in her second line. The big singleton put her in first place in competition for one of the two dishwashers being awarded in the tourney.

The 234 was following up a 184 effort in her first game. However, Miss Platten was to come back down to earth with a thud in her third line with a 128 and then finished up with 159 for a scratch count of 705. She carried 160 pins handicap.

More to come

"I tensed up a little," she conceded, referring back to the 128 disaster, "I only had two or three marks the whole game." The game was some 20 pins under the year's average.

With a strike on her last roll of the evening, Miss Platten could have picked up three more pins and taken the meet lead. But she got only seven.

"I still bowled pretty well," she said later, smiling. "I'm satisfied. I just wish I could have gotten a few more strikes in that second game and driven that car (the Maverick) home."

Fontaine, a 30-year old systems analyst at Kimberly-Clark, toppled so-so games of 157 and 174 in his first and last efforts, respectively. But a 220 in his second line and 223 the third gave him a 774 scratch total, and combined with 128 pins handicap, brought his final count over the 900-pin mark.

"I honestly don't know why I bowled well," said the father of two children. "I was in a

20 High Schools Enter

Patriot Relays Will Be Held Saturday

With a large and attractive field assured, the Patriot Relays should get off to an impressive start Saturday.

The first annual Appleton High School invitational meet, on the Patriots' asphalt track, has drawn a total of 20 high schools — nine in Class A and 11 in Class B.

Field events, which will be run on an individual rather than a relay basis, will get underway at 11 a.m. The track events — eight classes of relay races — will start at 1 p.m.

Competing in Class A, besides the host Patriots, will be Appleton West, Kaukauna, Kimberly, Menasha, Green Bay East, Two Rivers, West Bend and Wisconsin Rapids.

In addition, 18 junior high schools are slated to enter teams in a special ninth grade 880-yard relay. They are Appleton's Wilson, Roosevelt, Einstein and Madison; New London; Kaukauna; Kimberly; Menasha; Little Chute; Luxemburg-Casco; Wisconsin Rapids; West Bend; DePere; Two Rivers; Ashwaubenon; Green Bay East; Fish Creek and Kettle Moraine.

Relay events, other than the ninth grade test, are 480-yard low hurdle shuttle; 2-mile; 440-yard; sprint medley (440, 220, 220 and 880); distance medley (440, 880, 1,320 and mile); 880-yard; and mile.

No team points will be tallied. Each winning relay squad will receive a traveling trophy which can be displayed at its school. Individual members of winning relay units will receive medals, while ribbons will go to members of second, third, fourth and fifth place teams.

Miss Mary Chopin, who was recently named Miss Appleton, will present the trophies and medals.

The Evening Kiwanis Club and the Appleton Lions Club will co-sponsor the relays. Ticket prices are $1 for adults, 50 cents for students and 25 cents for children.

Pattin Pitches 2-Hitter

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Marty Pattin got the Barber to trim off some excess curls free of charge. Now Pattin's making the California Angels pay for lifting his halo.

Pattin, picked up by Seattle from California in the American League expansion draft, pitched a two-hitter Friday as the Pilots nipped the Angels 1-0 on an eighth inning homer by catcher Larry Haney.

The victory was Pattin's second in two appearances against his former teammates. The complete game was his first in the majors.

"Give the credit to our pitching coach, Sal 'The Barber' Maglie," said the 26-year-old right-hander, who held the Angels hitless for 7 2-3 innings and finished with 11 strikeouts. "He changed my delivery and gave me a couple of other suggestions during spring training.

Wasted Effort

"Before, I had a lot of wasted effort. I was rearing back and winding up. Sal got me to take less of a windup and to stop rearing back."

Maglie, who pitched a no-hitter 13 years ago for the old Brooklyn Dodgers, watched his protege stop the Angels cold until Tom Satriano singled with two out in the eighth. Jim Fregosi singled with two out in the ninth, but Haney cut him down trying to steal second, nailing Pattin's third victory against one loss.

Sam Jones Squares NBA Series

Last-Second Shot Wins for Celtics

By LARRY ELDRIDGE

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics had the Los Angeles Lakers talking to themselves today after Sam Jones' off-balance shot in the final seconds rolled teasingly around the rim and then dropped through to even their National Basketball Association championship playoff series.

"When the good Lord wants you to win, you win," said a disconsolate Jerry West, whose magnificent 40-point performance wasn't enough to prevent Boston's 89-88 victory.

"A loss like that is hard to take," the Lakers superstar muttered. "I must be a loser . . . — know."

The Lakers have a history of frustration against the Celtics, having lost out to the perennial champions in the NBA finals five times in the last seven years.

Series Even

This time they jumped off to a 2-0 lead in Los Angeles only to have the Celtics win the next two games at Boston Garden, sending the teams back to the coast all square for Thursday night's fifth game.

The dramatic finish Tuesday night came about after West's consistent brilliance had put the Lakers in command with an 88-87 lead and possession of the ball with some 15 seconds remaining. Emmette Bryant stole the pass in and fed Jones, who missed a shot. The Celtics got the ball out of bounds, however, and with seven seconds left they set up Jones again for their final chance.

The 35-year-old sharpshooter, who is retiring after this season, stumbled as he shot. The ball rolled around the rim, then dropped in as the record crowd of 15,128 went into near hysteria.

Player-Coach Bill Russell said everything went as planned on that final play—in which three men screened for Jones—until the veteran backcourt ace slipped.

"That's the play we called," Russell said. "He wasn't supposed to stumble though. That was his innovation."

Jones thought he had missed the shot, but he had an ace up his sleeve.

"I tried to get it high and get backspin on it," he said. "That way if I missed, I knew Russell had a chance for the rebound."

The only trouble with this strategy was that Russell, knowing that the Lakers might commit a foul and wanting his best free throw shooters on the floor, had benched himself for those final seconds and wasn't in the game.

"He wasn't?" Jones asked when informed of this. Then he just burst out laughing.

Defensive Struggle

The game was a defensive struggle in which both sides shot poorly—Los Angeles 39 per cent and Boston only 32 per cent.

The Celtics jumped into a quick 10-0 lead and Boston also led by as many as nine points in the third period.

West got hot on each of these occasions to pull this team within range, and continued hitting until the end in almost single-handedly bringing the Lakers through.

Houston Suffers Another Setback

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Houston Astros might have come out of the 1962 expansion draft in worse shape than this year's two new National League clubs, but it's seven years later now and the Astros still appear left out in the cold

Colder than yesterday's mashed potatoes, the Astros added another loss to their worst record in the league by dropping a 2-1 decision at Atlanta Tuesday night, their seventh consecutive defeat and 14th in the last 15 games. They are 0-12 on the road

"I think we're better than this," was about all suffering Manager Harry Walker could manage to say after his club fell to a 4-19 record.

Although Montreal dropped a 2-0 verdict to the New York Mets, and San Diego lost to Los Angeles 2-1, the two newest teams in the league had records Houston could envy. The Expos might be last in the East Division, but they have a 7-12 record, while the Padres are fifth ahead of Houston in the West at 9-13.

Win in 13th

San Fancisco, meanwhile, remained tied with the Dodgers for first place in the West by beating Cincinnati 4-3 in 13 innings and the Chicago Cubs increased their East lead with a 10-0 rout over Philadelphia.

Cold weather postponed St. Louis' game at Pittsburgh.

"We're not loafing," Walker insisted. "We just get the bases loaded and time after time the batter drills one right into someone's glove that just as easily could have been a double."

That's close to what happened against the Braves. Trailing 2-1, the Astros loaded the bases in the eighth inning with one out on singles by Jesus Alou and Jim Wynn, a sacrifice and an intentional walk, but reliever Cecil Upshaw got Denis Menke to hit into a force out at home and then induced Curt Blefary to ground out.

They also loaded the bases with one out against winner Milt Pappas in the fifth, but Alou and Wynn both fouled out.

Decisive Run

After Orlando Cepeda's sacrifice fly in the first gave Atlanta a 1-0 lead, Pappas, 2-2, drove in the decisive run himself in the fourth with a single off loser Denny Lemaster, 0-4.

Ed Kranepool's first two homers of the season—off Jim Grant in the second and sixth innings—gave the Mets, the other 1962 expansion club, their eighth victory in 19 games for a third place tie in the East. Jerry Kossman stopped Montreal on two hits before leaving with one out in the fifth when his arm tightened, and Nolan Ryan completed the shutout, giving four more hits and striking out seven.

Kranepool's homers gave his 53 with the Mets, breaking the club record of 52 set by Frank Thomas from 1962-64.

Out of Jams

Mikkelsen came in to get out Al Ferrara with the tying run on third and two out in the seventh inning and Brewer pitched out of a first-and-second, none out and then bases loaded, two out jams in the ninth.

Bobby Bonds was the hero in San Francisco's eighth straight victory, drilling a two-run homer in the eighth for a brief 3-2 lead and then rapping a run-scoring single in the 13th with two out.

Cincinnati, losing its fifth in a row, had held a 2-0 lead and then tied the game in the ninth on Bobby Tolan's hit with two out.

Ferguson Jenkins, 4-1, hurled the Cubs past Philly with a four-hitter made easier by Chicago's 13-hit attack.

Celtic Emmette Bryant lands on the floor after colliding with the Los Angeles Lakers' Johnny Egan in the fourth period of their NBA playoff game in Boston Tuesday night. The Celtics nipped the Lakers, 89-88, to even their best-of-7 series at two games each.

Take 2-Game Lead

Canadiens Down St. Louis Again

MONTREAL (AP)—The National Hockey League's Stanley Cup playoffs moved to St. Louis today with the Montreal Canadiens holding a two-game lead and feeling the momentum.

Scotty Bowman, coach of the Blues, feels playing in front of its home fans will help his club turn the playoffs around. But Dick Duff, who scored one of Montreal's goals in Tuesday night's second-game victory, doesn't quite agree.

"The fans can't go on the ice and win the game for them," Duff reasoned. "They had some pretty good fans in New York and Boston, too, and we won there."

Right now, the Canadiens look like they can win most anywhere. They shed the lethargic style that marked Sunday's opening victory and wore down St. Louis Tuesday night with a non-stop attack that had them in control almost all the way.

Off Stride

Early penalties threw both teams off stride and the game was scoreless until the final three minutes of the opening period when Ralph Backstrom swatted J. C. Tremblay's rebound past Glenn Hall.

"It was a tough angle," said Backstrom, who again tailed St. Louis' top gun, Red Berenson, and kept him off the scoreboard. "I had to get the puck high and over Hall."

After playing the first four minutes of the second period shorthanded because of a double minor penalty to John Ferguson, the Canadiens turned on the pressure.

First Duff scored on a textbook power play after a half dozen pin-point passes had the Blues and Hall turning every lous ease.

which way. Jean Beliveau, who assisted on the goal, nodded approvingly as Duff lifted the puck into the net with almost ridicu-

Then Yvan Cournoyer went to work. On three successive slap shots he decked defensemen Al Arbour, Bill Plager and Barclay Plager, who all dove in front of the puck to keep it away from Hall. Cournoyer's fourth slapper went in.

"That's their style—to block the shots like that," said Cournoyer. "You can't let that bother you. You just keep shooting them low. One will get through."

The Canadiens then swarmed all over Hall. "You are never in control of a game unless you have a bigger bulge than we did," said Beliveau. "Hockey is funny and sometimes the goals can come in a hurry."

For St. Louis, they did not.

Larry Keenan finally scored for the Blues with two Canadiens in the penalty box midway through the third period. It was much too little, much too late.

Premontre's Track Team Tips Kimberly

Wildenberg Wins Three Events for The Papermakers

GREEN BAY — Despite brilliant performances by Jeff Wildenberg and Robin Ristau, the Kimberly High School track team fell to a strong Premontre unit, 68-50, Tuesday afternoon

Ristau won the long jump with a leap of 19 feet, 2¼ inches. He finished second in the low hurdles and third in the high hurdles and high jump.

Bruce Bishop led Premontre with two wins. The Cadets captured eight firsts, eight seconds and seven thirds in the 14 events. Bishop won the 100-year dash in 10.5 seconds. He also won the 220-yard dash in :23.8.

Bluejays Nip Ghost Track Team, 66-51

Scovronski Gets 3 Firsts, Cleveland Leads Kaukauna

MENASHA — Collecting a sweep in the 100-yard dash and paced by Tom Scovronski's three firsts, Menasha High School recorded a 66-51 dual track victory over Kaukauna Tuesday afternoon.

Scovronski led the slam in the century in 10.3 seconds and also won the 440 in 53.9 seconds and the long jump with a lead of 20 feet, 4 inches.

Runnerup honors went to Kaukaun's Pat Cleveland and the Jays' Bill Hoest with two firsts apiece. Cleveland threw the shot 49 feet, 2½ inches and cleared 5 feet, 10¾ inches in the high jump while Hoest captured both hurdles events.

The Bluejays built up a commanding early lead on strength in the running events, but the Ghosts cut down the margin by winning all field events except the long jump They claimed first and second in the pole vault in which there was no third because no one else made the starting height.

Other firsts for Kaukauna included Dave Bruehl in the 220-yard dash, Steve Van Schindel, pole vault; Steven Dreier, discus and the mile relay team which included Bob Kneepkens, Bernie Van Zeeland, Don Kerkhof and im Haen

M-E Opener

New London '9' Edges Kimberly in Eighth

KIMBERLY — New London tallied two runs after two outs in the top half of the eighth inning to edge Kimberly, 2-0, in the Mid-Eastern Conference baseball opener for both teams Tuesday afternoon.

The rally broke up a pitching duel between the Bulldogs' Steve Sanders and the Papermakers' Ralph Kalies, each of whom hurled the distance. Sanders fanned six and walked two, while Kalies struck out 19 and allowed two bases on balls.

Kalies fanned Bob Tews and Sanders to start the New London eighth, but then Tom Meyers walked. Meyer then stole second, went to third on a wild pitch, and came home on Roger Steingrabe's single. Steingrabe then scored on a triple to right field by Greg Behman.

Kimberly got the first man up, Gary Wyngaard, on base with a walk to start the bottom strike out and two infield grounders to wrap up the game.

Kimberly's best threat of the contest came in the third frame, when Jeff Erbrecht's double and Gary Wyngaard's single helped load the bases with one out. However, Sanders then fanned Jay Wyngaard and Dan Blajeski to get out of the jam.

Each team had four hits. Behman had two safeties to lead New London, and Steingrabe and Meyer had one apiece. Kalies rapped two for Kimberly.

Fluent Doubletalk By Trainers Feature Pre-Derby Interviews

By BOB COOPER

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Help wanted: Translators to help the man on the street understand trainers of Kentucky Derby hopefuls; must be fluent in doubletalk.

Qualifications will include demonstration of understanding:

—Elliot Burch, trainer of Arts and Letters, when he calls Top Knight "the best 3-year-old of this year" and adds, "but he may be asked to move over Saturday by Mr. Longden's horse, Majestic Prince."

—Ray Metcalf, trainer for Top Knight, when he declares he works his colt before dawn "so he won't see those others and get frightened."

—Johnny Longden, who admits it "will be tougher to win here in the Derby than it was on the West Coast, where Majestic Prince is unbeaten.

—Lucian Laurin, who predicts his Dike will be last under the wire—"or at least he'd better be"—the first time around the track in the Derby and won't comment where the colt will be at the finish.

—Gordy McLean, who's positive his Ocean Roar has never gone up against class like he will see in the 1¼-mile, $125,000-added race Saturday at 4:30 p.m., CDT.

For newcomers to Derbyland, all of these comments translate into the same language: We came here to take all the marbles and we're not about to tell you too much about how we're going to do it

All of the trainers—and longtime Derby observers as well—proclaim this year's 95th running as perhaps the strongest in many years. Some are predicting a timing of less than two minutes for the first time.

Broke Record

A factor in that prediction is Cain Hoy Stable's Ack Ack, who broke the Churchill Downs track record for a mile Tuesday in winning the Derby Trial Stakes by seven widening lengths.

Capt. Harry F. Guggenheim, owner of the fleet bay colt, said it might be a day or two before he decides on his colt's Derby status.

The decision for Guggenheim—as well as all others—must be made by 9:30 a.m. Thursday, when $500 must be deposited to pass the entry box if a horse is to go to the post in America's most famous horse race.

It costs another $1,000 to start.

If Ack Ack goes, he could force a fast early pace, resulting in a record timing for the Derby. If he doesn't go, it might force the other horses to make their own pace—with an even faster clocking as the outcome.

Not in Front

Frank McMahon's Majestic Prince, the Steven Wilson Estate's Top Knight and Paul Mellon's Arts and Letters would like to run close to the pacesetter early in the Derby, but preferably not in front.

Dike, flying the colors of Claiborne Farm, wants to come from as far off the pace as he can get and still hope to make up the lost ground. He'd like to be passing tiring horses in the long Churchill Downs stretch.

Ocean Roar, a royally bred bush leaguer from Ohio's small race tracks, is hoping for as much mud as possible.

North's Track Team Wins Over Terrors

Mike Moriarty, Dercks and Stevens Win for AHS-W

SHEBOYGAN — Appleton West won only three events and suffered a 98-29 drubbing at the hands of the Sheboygan North track team Tuesday afternoon. The Terrors now have a 2-2 record.

Bright spots for the Terrors included Mike Moriarty, who came from behind on the last lap to win the mile run in 4 43.4; sophomore Steve Dercks, who ran to victory in the 880 with a 2:06.6 clocking; and Mark Stevens, who cleared 10 feet in the pole vault.

The Raiders, who slammed both the shot put and discus events, had three double winners. Ron Clarke won the high hurdles in 16.0 seconds and also took the long jump at 18.10½. Don Otten came home first in both the 100 (10.4) and 220 (23.4) dashes. And Kerry Decker claimed the shot with a heave of 52-6½ and the discus at 135-9½.

Other individual firsts for North were by Mike Schoenwald in the 440 (54.6), Rich Peterson in the low hurdles (21.9) and Karl Rusch in the 2-mile (10:26.4)

Dave Kuehlmann, Steve Kellner, Rollie Manos, and Steve Seifort ran 1:40.2 to give the Raiders the 880 relay, and Schoenwald, Peterson, Otten, and "Chi" Buesing sped to a 3:38.9 clocking in the mile relay.

LIFT ONE HEEL AT A TIME

PLAYERS WHO TRY TO APPLY EXTRA POWER BY RISING ON BOTH TOES AT IMPACT ARE ONLY ROBBING THE LEGS OF THRUST.

FOR PROPER BALANCE AND FULL USE OF THE LEGS THE FEET SHOULD REMAIN IN FIRM CONTACT WITH THE GROUND. THE LEFT HEEL IS RAISED SLIGHTLY AT THE TOP OF THE SWING WITH THE LONGER CLUBS, THEN RETURNS TO THE GROUND TO RECEIVE THE BODY WEIGHT DURING THE DOWNSWING SHIFT. Tennie struck out 11 Wrightstown batters and walked only two in limiting the Tigers to two runs and four hits. Larry Edinger scored on a fielder's choice for a second-inning Wrightstown run. Mark Coenen's double led to the other Wrightstown run in the seventh

3 Hit Singles

Singles by Tom Van Camp, Jerry Rudloff and Dennis Tessen, two walks and two sacrifice flies brought three Hortonville runs home in the first. Robin Pankow scored on a throwing error to score the final Polar Bear run in the fourth inning.

Seattle Edges Angels, 1-0

2-1, ending Mel Stottlemyre's winning string at five; Detroit topped Washington 5-4 on Mickey Stanley's three-run double in the ninth and Minnesota pounded Kansas City 9-1 behind Harmon Killebrew's grand slam homer.

The Baltimore-Cleveland game was rained out and the Chicago White Sox and Oakland Athletics were idle.

Pattin, who appeared in 52 games—only four as a starter—with California in his 1968 rookie year, finishing at 4-4, breezed past the Angels in the first seven innings. He walked two, but one runner was erased in a double play.

First Homer

After Satriano singled up the middle in the eighth, Pattin fanned pinch hitter Bob Chance for his 10th strikeout and Haney led off the bottom of the inning against Jim McGlothlin with his first 1969 homer.

McGlothlin, who yielded six hits, also was the loser when Pattin and the Pilots downed California 4-3 in their April 8 season opener.

Mike Nagy, making his first major league start, held the Yankees to three hits and an unearned run in 6 2-3 innings and Sparky Lyle finished up with a hitless relief job after the Red Sox scored twice in the seventh

Conigliaro Doubles

Tony Conigliaro doubled and scored the tying run on a single by rookie Syd O'Brien, who continued to second on the throw to the plate and took third on a wild pitch. Stottlemyre struck out George Scott and walked Rico Petrocelli intentionally before O'Brien tallied as Joe Azcue bounced into a force at second.

The Senators took a 4-2 lead into the ninth and appeared headed for their sixth straight victory, but Bill Freehan poked a one-out single and Dave Campbell walked. Frank Bertaina replaced starter Joe Coleman and walked Dick McAuliffe on four pitches before Stanley cleared the bases with a double to right center off Dennis Higgins.

McAuliffe homered for the Tigers in the first inning.

Killebrew's eighth career grand slam sent the Twins ahead 4-1 in the third and they coasted to their fourth straight victory behind rookie right-hander Dick Woodson. John Roseboro paced Minnesota's 14-hit attack with four singles

Durocher Credits Kessinger With Early Success of Cubs

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Chicago Cubs are leading the East Division of the National League and Manager Leo Durocher won't argue that his shortstop isn't the key figure

"He's shown some kind of improvement," Durocher said Tuesday night of Don Kessinger, the Cubs' switch-hitting All-Star shortstop.

Kessinger was on base four times Tuesday night in a 10-0 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies He scored four runs and batted in two more. His pair of doubles and a single raised Kessinger's batting average to 311

The 175-pound Mississippian talked about his improved hitting after he, Ron Santo and Billy Williams provided the power that helped right-hander Fergusen Jenkins post his fourth victory of the season.

Seven Strikeouts

Jenkins pitched a four-hit shutout with seven strikeouts and one walk.

"This is the first year I can honestly say I feel equally well from both sides of the plate," said Kessinger. "I think I finally learned the strike zone left-handed It's the first time I can really compare it to batting right-handed."

Kessinger hit .296 right-handed last season, and wound up with a .240 batting average. The 6-foot-1 shortstop feels he's a much better ballplayer this year.

"I'm much more confident, not to the point of being cocky," he said.

"I just know I can get the job done There's a difference when you know you can do certain things, know you can get the job done It gives you a lift"

New Centers for Arts Plentiful but Plagued

Funds to Sustain Buildings, Programs Crucial Problem, Say Cultural Leaders

RACINE (AP)— Multi - million-dollar arts centers to house symphony orchestras and performing groups are springing up in major cities across the nation, but they all are plagued with gigantic financial headaches.

"Where is the money coming from?" seems to be the crucial question and the major problem according to leading executives in the field who met this week at the Johnson Foundation Conference Center by invitation of the University of Wisconsin.

The Atlanta Municipal Theater announced in January it was folding because of lack of money, after opening its first season in a new $13 million arts center.

The John F. Kennedy Center in Washington is faced with a $15 million shortage, and its scheduled opening date is still at least a year and a half away.

In New York, it has been said that the Lincoln Center can lose $30,000 in productions on any given night.

Optimistic About Future

William Severns, chief administrator of the Los Angeles Music Center, one of the most successful of the new enterprises, said he and his fellow executives in the field were optimistic about the future of the arts in this country. But he wasn't so sure about art centers.

"We don't have unsolvable problems," he insisted. "None of us is pessimistic."

Roger L. Stevens, chairman of the board of trustees of the Kennedy Center, noted that the project's cost now is estimated at $65 million. The figure had been $46.5 million when first approved by Congress in 1958.

Look Toward Youth

"I expect Congress to come through with more," said Stevens. "The reason I took this job is because I believe the richest nation in the world should have a performing arts center the country could be proud of. When we point out that private contributions have exceeded federal appropriations, I think Congress will come through."

Stevens and Julius Bloom, the latter executive director of New York's Carnegie Hall, emphasized that performing groups are going to have to look more to youth for support.

"The problem with orchestras," said Bloom, is that they're reaching a settled audience, rather than an unsettled one. We're going to have to reach more of our young people."

A survey of young persons attending theaters in the Washington area indicated 80 per cent would rather see a live play than a movie, according to Stevens.

"The live play is going to have a tremendous growth in the next 10 years," he said.

Costs Rising

Helen M. Thompson of Washington, executive vice president of the American Symphony Orchestra League, cited spiraling musician's salaries as the major problem.

"With every contract negotiation, not only do salaries go upward, but the number of performances by the orchestra goes down-to compensate for the high costs," she said. "Somewhere there's got to be a point of no return."

She noted that Los Angeles County alone "supports" 24 orchestras and that there are at last 60 in the New York City area.

Mergers Suggested

John S. Edwards, general manager of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, said the answer might be in consolidation of major orchestras. Stevens agreed.

"I think you could create maybe a dozen first-rate symphonies out of 35 you have now," Stevens said.

Richard Hoover, managing director of the Milwaukee Performing Arts Center, said he thought the answer was in community involvement.

He noted that interest and attendance at cultural events generally improve when endowments run out and the community has to be asked for funds.

Severns suggested that leaders of cultural centers, in seeking the help of local and state governments, not shy away from political involvement "although we have to consider at all times what the politican is up against when faced with requests for public finds."

Bloom concurred.

"And always have a top Republican and top Democrat on your board," he added.

Kraft Music Hall Goes International

BY TV SCOUT

8-9 Channel 5 — The Kraft Music Hall starts its summer season, which will be internationally produced progr a m s from London to Hawaii. Tonight it's off to old blighty for the first in a pair of shows starring long and lanky Peter Cook and cuddly Dudley Moore. The two satirists made big waves in New York a few years back in "Beyond the Fringe." The main target of their sharp wit is motion pictures, particularly in one segment with guest star Ann Bancroft.

6:30-7:30 Channel 11 — Love, or the lack of it, is the means to end a battle on Here Come the Brides. It is one of the more violent episodes of this series which really has featured little of that element. Arnold Stempel (Mark Lenard) is the antagonist, hiring a bunch of heavies led by a giant of an ex-slave to block the loggers from crossing his lands. When the fighting gets rough enough, the ladies step into it by going on a love and affection strike.

6:30-7:30 Channel 2 — The old combination of the Beatles and the parents of Glen Campbell are the main features on The Glen Campbell Goodtime Hour. The Beatles are on film singing their new record, "Get Back." Mr. and Mrs. Campbell show where their famous son got his talent, joining him in several songs including "Alimony," and "Good Old Texas Home." Other guests are Liza Minnelli, The Righteous Brothers, and Waylon Jennings.

6:30-8 Channel 11 — Burgess Meredith and Brandon de Wilde combined their talents for one of the better episodes of the past season on The Virginian. The script shows the vagaries of heridity with Meredith playing a witty b u t dedicated cattle rancher and de Wilde his stolid, hard-working son, who suddenly voices a determination to do some farming.

7:30-8 Channel 2 — The course of true love can be bumpy, which is how the skulls of Rufus and Bert will be on The Good Guys if the course doesn't run smooth. The boys have been playing cupid with a truck driver and a cutie who has three big, tough brothers.

8-8:30 Channel 2 — Kilts are the cause for the mad scramble on The Beverly Hillbillies. It starts with Jethro falling for a Scottish lass and proposing to her. But when Granny and company spot the little lady's mulish brother all done up in his kilts, they mistake the lad for a lass.

9-10 Channel 2 — McGarrett gets one of his most unusual calls on Hawaii Five-O. It comes from a Honolulu hospital where a patient, a Vietnam veteran, has gone berserk. He had been on rest and rehabilitation assignment when an accident with a baseball bat knocked him unconcious. When he comes to, he believes he is back in the war zone and that everyone around him is an enemy.

Actress Debbie Winters will play opposite Michael Douglas in the movie "Hail, Hero," being made by Cinema Center Films. Douglas will be making his movie debut in the motion picture that deals with the sensitive issues of the Vietnam War and its relationship to the Generation Gap. Arthur Kennedy a n d Teresa Wright are the co-stars of the film. Miss Winters, a North Hollywood High School student, won acclaim last October when she played in the CBS television production of "The People Next Door" with Lloyd Bridges and Kim Hunter. She also has a feature role in the forth coming movie "Me, Natalie."

European Trip Planned

PHOENIXVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Recently widowed Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower will sail from New York May 13 for a European trip.

Her son, Col. John Eisenhower, who will become U.S. ambassador to Belgium on May 12, said: "She has no specific travel plans but will stay with me for some time in Brussels."

Israel Claims Massive Raid Inside Egypt

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli commando units struck 120 miles inside southern Egypt Tuesday night, blasting a dam across the Nile, a bridge and electric lines supplying Cairo the Israeli army announced

The Tel Aviv newspaper Maariv, quoting high sources, said large areas were flooded by breaks in the Naj Hamadi dam and "the flow of electricity to Cairo is gravely crippled."

An Egyptian communique disputed the Israelis, claiming there was "absolutely no damage." There was no evidence of a power shortage in Cairo

The Israelis also announced that a heavy artillery battle erupted during the night along the entire length of the Suez Canal A spokesman said the Egyptians started the shooting

The raid into Upper Egypt was in retaliation for recent Egyptian artillery and commando attacks on Israeli forces occupying the east bank of the Suez Canal. It was almost an exact copy of the first commando penetration into Egypt six months ago and struck at two main areas of the Upper Nile, north of the Aswan High Dam

Presumably helicopters flew the commandos across the Gulf of Suez or the Red Sea to the targets and brought them back, but the army did not say It gave this report on the results of the raid·

Two high tension cables, 100 yards apart and carrying 500 kilovolts of power to Cairo, were cut The lines were 300 miles south of Cairo between Isna and Naj Hamadi. Four transformer stations 19 miles to the north were hit in the earlier attack

The Naj Hamadi dam—also hit last year—was attacked and "heavily damaged." The dam stretches 800 yards across the Nile and is 20 yards wide, the statement said. A shipping lock in the same area was damaged

Bridge Blasted

Seventy miles north of the dam, commandos blasted the Adfan bridge and again caused heavy damage. The bridge is an important junction for the highway from the Red Sea south along the west bank of the Nile.

Egypt said the raid was made by two Israeli bombers which it said were driven off by antiaircraft fire before they could hit their targets. But an Israeli army spokesman emphasized that the attacks were by commando units and "they met no resistance."

Once again the Aswan High Dam, President Gamal Abdel Nasser's pride, was spared. But an informed source pointedly commented that the raid was "a clear warning Israel is capable of, and will not refrain from, choosing any target it sees fit along Egypt's main artery, up to the Aswan High Dam itself."

The commando raid was preceded by an Israeli air attack last week that knocked out two Egyptian radar bases in southern Jordan which the Israelis said monitored their air activity from Tel Aviv southwest to the Suez Canal

"We thus gouged out the eyes of their air force," one source said.

A Reminder

A statement from Prime Minister Golda Meir's office said the commando raid was "designed to remind the Egyptian authorities of their responsibility for violating the cease-fire agreement and to make them aware their acts of aggression cannot continue without being reacted to."

Artillery duels have raged across the Suez Canal almost daily for two months, and the Egyptians have recently made a number of commando raids across the canal on Israeli positions along the east bank. The Israeli army has reported 17 of its men killed, 48 wounded and one captured in the artillery shelling and commando raids.

U N observers have reported that much of the firing along the cease-fire line has been initiated by Egyptian gunners. An Egyptian government spokesman repudiated the cease-fire a week ago declaring it was no longer binding because the Israelis were building up their fortifications along the east bank. He said this indicated Israel planned to hold the area indefinitely

A few hours before the commandos took off for Egypt, Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan told a student rally "Israel might have to take operational steps here and there to smash enemy concentrations."

Another Exchange

"The current Egyptian harassment," he added, "should not be allowed to escalate ... nor spread to other fronts."

But despite the hostilities between Egypt and Israel, the two adversaries made another exchange Tuesday across the canal in their "family reunification scheme."

Fifty-four Arabs from the Israeli-occupied Gaza Strip and El Arish crossed the canal to return to homes in Egypt, and about 150 residents of the Gaza Strip and Sinai were ferried over on their way home from Egypt. The refugees had been stranded on opposite sides of the canal since the June 1967 war.

About 7,700 persons now have returned to their homes in the population exchange operated by the International Red Cross

United Nations Official John Amos of Nottinghamshire, England, right, talks with a newsman Tuesday outside a shell-battered U.N. observation post along the Suez Line. The observers are finding their work increasingly frustrating, as cease-fires which they help arrange between Egypt and Israsl rarely last for more than 12 hours. In addition, the observers find themselves on the receiving end of a considerable amount of Egyptian shells. (AP Wirephoto)

Observers for U.N. Keep Heads Down

Egypt (AP) — Shelling across the Suez Canal is making life increasingly tough for U.N. observers scattered along the waterway.

"In the past six days, I have averaged six to nine hours daily in the shelters," says one.

Three of the 36 cease-fire observers have been wounded. Artillery has shattered equipment and vehicles. U.N. Secretary General U Thant has expressed deep concern for their safety.

The men are taciturn. One was reluctant to give his name but finally told newsmen he was John Amos, a former stone mason from Nottinghamshire, England.

"One single rifle shot can ignite the whole canal," he said, "and these days there is no prior warning. You just get it or you don't if you're lucky."

This frontline town houses the canal command post of the observers, or Blue Caps as they are called They keep their heads low. Cars are parked behind walls of sandbags. Trenches crisscross the U.N. compound

The three-story building where they took up office in mid-1967 is scarred by shells and pocked with bullet holes. The residential area received a direct hit during an artillery battle Tuesday, leaving a gaping hole in a rooftop.

"Every time we go off to Jerusalem on leave, we can't be sure it isn't the last leave we'll ever have," says Amos, a civilian who is part of the observers' administrative setup, known as Field Service.

The observers in Qantara—three Irish, one Finn, one Briton and one Mexican—hesitate to say that Egyptian firepower is directed at them deliberately.

"The Israelis park several hundred yards to either side of us," said Amos. "The Egyptians draw a bead on them, and we get the plastering."

But the command post has also been hit at night, "which is strange, considering the place is floodlit," he added.

Most of the Field Service men live with their families in Jerusalem, working 10-day shifts at the front with four days vacation in between.

Amos, married with two daughters, is a gruff, 38-year-old Briton who says he came to the Middle East for "a little adventure, a bit of a change."

"But some of our chaps spend days on end without a single shooting, and others, like myself, never see a day go by without something happening," Amos said

The truce machinery is ponderous. When shooting breaks out, a cease-fire has to be arranged between Cairo and Tel Aviv through the U.N. headquarters in Jerusalem. It rarely lasts more than 12 hours. The observers have no direct contact with their counterparts in Egypt, although they can see each other across the Suez Canal.

Asked how Israel and Egypt regard U.N. cease-fire proposals, Amos replied: "Negative. Very negative."

Millions of Dollars Saved In Flood Fight

MADISON (AP)— Flood damage in 15 Wisconsin counties, the state estimated Tuesday, amounts to $1,087,000—a far cry from the $145 million in property damage which a March warning and a lot of volunteer labor appear to have prevented

The state's Division of Emergency Government announced the figures, noting that the estimated $145 million in savings is a result of relatively little investment, including $560,844 in preparatory assistance from Army Engineers.

A key to success in this spring's flood fight was the bitter experience gained from widespread inundations along the Mississippi and its tributaries in 1965 There was comparably little distress this year, although the Mississippi crest at La Crosse was only about two feet short of the city's 1967 record level.

The state received about $600,000 in federal assistance during the 1965 floods, and should get word this week on what kind of federal aid to expect, Gruentzel said

Tentative damage estimate totals include

La Crosse County, $400,000 in private property and $68,500 in public property, City of La Crosse, $420,000 public and $200,000 private

Much of the La Crosse-area damage involves adjoining residential areas outside the protection of the city's successful ring of levees

Marquette Protesters Halt Sit-In at Chapel

MILWAUKEE, Wis (AP) — A group of Marquette University students early today agreed to break up their sit-in at a small chapel on the campus so it might be used for morning services.

About 30 students objecting to the Catholic university's ROTC program were on hand at 6 a.m. when it was decided to end the overnight protest

A spokesman said a meeting with the faculty was scheduled for tonight The faculty had a special session set for today to discuss students' issues

No incidents were reported during the night and the student spokesman said efforts had been exerted to avoid confrontations

Police requested demonstrators to leave the crowded Joan of Arc chapel Tuesday night but took no subsequent action as an estimated 70 young persons announced intentions to spend the night there.

About 100 persons milled outside the campus chapel, unable to get through doors because of crowded conditions

About 70 students were arrested a week ago Tuesday by police who forced their way through a door into the chapel to break up a similar anti-ROTC demonstration

ROTC protests have been under way sporadically at Marquette for two years, rarely attracting more than 150 participants

Demonstration spokesman Pat Lanzing 18, a freshman from St Petersburg, Fla called the latest chapel action "an open-door peace vigil" and said protesters consider it preferable to obstructing classes

Demonstrators gathered at the chapel after a single campus patrolman, Ray Thorp barred a gate through which protest marchers had intended to enter tennis courts where ROTC students conduct drills

Deans of the 12,000-student Roman Catholic college issued a statement earlier Tuesday, recommending suspension and other disciplinary action against students engaging in campus disorder

Calling Long Distance Can Get Complicated

NEW YORK (AP) — With each passing day, life appears to get more complicated. Even when it comes to using the telephone.

One recent night, for instance, I tried to call my family in Des Moines, Iowa.

"Demons Island?" asked the operator, in a heavily accented voice.

"No, no," I replied. "Des Moines, Iowa. D-E-S M-O-I-N-E-S."

"Where is Demons Island?" she asked.

Geographically, I explained, Des Moines is located about halfway between New York and Los Angeles in the state of Iowa.

"Now," I added in a pique, "will you please get me the Perkes family at the Commodore Hotel in Des Moines, Iowa?"

"That's the Commander Hotel in Demons Island," she repeated.

"No," I shouted. "That's the Commodore Hotel in Des Moines, Iowa. Can't you understand English?"

She immediately called for help. The route operator.

"Please," she told the route girl. "I need the route number for Demons Island."

"Please," I repeated plaintively. "It's Des Moines, Iowa."

Eureka! The route operator understood. She got the necessary information.

But my telephone travail had not ended.

The operator finally got the Des Moines information operator on the line—to ask for the number of the "Commander" Hotel.

"No. We want the Commodore," I said, ready in all my rage to jerk the phone out of the wall.

We finally got the number and it was dialed.

The hotel answered.

"The Burke room, please," my operator said.

"No, that's Perkes — P-E-R-K-S-S," I added.

I was in final reach of my destination after 15 minutes of blood, sweat and tears.

The telphone rang. My wife answered.

"Hello," I said.

"Hello," she answered.

And the telephone went dead. So help me.

Searching for Ws May Yield 'True to Life' Books as Prizes

BY CAPPY DICK

A set of seven Encyclopedia Britannica "True-to-Life Books" containing color-illustrated stories about boys and girls, nature and animals around the world will be awarded as the national grand prize in today's contest.

In fact, five sets will be awarded, one to each boy or girl whose contest entry is judged to be one of the five neatest and most orginal correct ones received from all the cities where this column is published.

In addition, contestants have a chance to win a local prelim-inary prize, thereby qualifying their entries for the national-prize judging.

The local prize will be a pocket-size peg game which can be played almost anywhere and any time. Five of these games will be awarded to the boys and girls of the Fox River Valley area whose contest entries prove to be the five neatest and most orginal correct ones received locally. Their entries then will compete in the nation-al judging for the "True-to-Life Books."

To enter the contest, study the picture printed above and see how many objects you can find that have names beginning with "W." When you have counted them all, clip out the picture. Paste it on a piece of paper. Beneath it write a sen-tence stating how many "W" objects you have found and print you name, age, address and Zip Code number.

With paints, crayons or cut-outs, decorate your entry in any neat original way. Finally ad-dress it to Cappy Dick's Midweek "True-to-Life" contest at the Post-Crescent and mail it before midnight of day after tomorrow.

Names of the prize winners will be published here and their prizes will be sent to them by mail. Judges' decisions will be final. All entries become Cappy Dick's property; none will be returned.

President Holds a Bash

White House Swings for the Duke

WASHINGTON (AP) — The warm, driving jazz of Duke Ellington filled the East Room, buffing everything to a high, festive glow in one of the swingingest evenings ever at the White House.

The bash honored the Duke on his 70th birthday and, appropriately, everything was topped off with a jam session that didn't break up until 2:15 a.m.

Ellington was awarded a Medal of Freedom by President Nixon and even the citation was hip: "... In the royalty of American music no man swings more or stands higher than the Duke."

Ellington danced, signed autographs, kissed almost everyone on the cheek, including the President, and took a turn at the piano. His judgement on the evening: "Lovely."

Singer Mahalia Jackson pointed out that it was the first time a black man had ever been honored at the White House. And to gauge the fun, a butler said, "I would have worked for nothing tonight."

An all-star jazz ensemble played a strictly Ellington program after a black-tie dinner. The group was the nucleus of the jam session later that included Billy Eckstine, Dizzy Gillespie, Nixon's law partner, Lem Garmant on clarinet, and some scarlet-tunicked members of the Marine Band.

Duke already has eight honorary degres, membership on the National Council of Arts and his profile on a stamp of Togoland. So he was not awed to be at the White House, where his father was part-time butler during the Harding administration.

With Duke were five relatives, his sister, Ruth, son Mercer and his wife, grandson Edward K. II and granddaughter Gaye. In the crowd were Benny Goodman, Cab Calloway, Billy Eckstine, Mahalia Jackson and Richard Rogers.

Thomas Whaley, 77, who has wailed with the Ellington band, said Duke is "the most peaceful man in the world." Then Whaley remembered he'd played in this place before when "that guy after Taft—Hoover—that's the guy" was in office.

Soul singer Lou Rawls said he and the President "talked about soul food.

President Laughs

"I said the hors d'oeurves could have at least been fricasseed chitline on toothpicks." Rawls said the President laughed.

Duke is 70 years old now, does that have any effect on his art? a newsman asked earlier.

"What's age got to do with music?" the Duke parried.

How does he keep up the pace? Clean living? Jogging?

That one gassed the Duke. "Hey, that's good." When he finished a hearty chuckle he said, "the only thing I do outdoors is concerts"

Nixon Seeks Millions of Americans

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon launched a program today to help enlist millions of Americans in volunteer community efforts to help deal with urban and poverty problems.

"People can reach where government cannot, people can do what government cannot," Nixon said in a statement calling on Americans to join in common enterprises to help one another.

Nixon plans to rump $1 million into an effort to enlist volunteers across America. He said he will set up a Cabinet Committee on Voluntary Action, with Secretary George Romney of the Department of Housing and Urban Development as its chairman, and establish a clearing house for information on where volunteers and voluntary programs are most needed.

The President said that millions of Americans have asked how and what they can do to help and the chief aim of this new effort will be to give them some answers.

"Willing Hands"

"One of the chief aims of this administration is to help to match up the willing hands with the tasks that need doing," Nixon said.

He emphasized that America "needs the enlistment of the energies and resources of its people—not as substitutes for government action, but as supplements to it."

Nixon said: "America needs the hearts and hands of its people, joined in those common enterprises, small as well as large, that are the mark of caring and the cement of the community."

Max M. Fisher, a Detroit businessman active in volunteer efforts, was named to serve as special presidential consultant on voluntary action, to work with Romney and the committee.

At a White House briefing, Romney emphasized that his role would be one of an ambassador with the private sector and that there would be no encroachment whatsoever on the private nature of the far-flung social service, health, welfare, community, civic, fraternal and other private organizations now operating.

In a statement, Romney quoted from Nixon's inaugural address referring to "America's crisis of the spirit" and said that the spirit of the people must be engaged.

"If we are to find solutions to the full spectrum of our nation's problems," Romney said, "we must employ the full range of our resources."

He cited such programs as college students giving their time to tutor inner-city children, housewives volunteering to help in a neighborhood center or school or raising funds for charity and a giant corporation using its resources to enrich a school curriculum

"Eventually we hope to enlist every American as a citizen volunteer," Romney said.

And, he declared the effort

More Than 300 armed students at Kansas City's Calvary Bible College walked out of classes Tuesday and put on a demonstration. Contrary to other demonstrations, however, Calvary students were armed with rakes, shovels lawnmowers. Their list of demands included making the campus look better, as they demonstrate here. The students said they wanted to show the administration they like the way the college is being run. (AP Wirephoto)

4 Frenchmen, Maybe More, Enter Contest for Presidency

PARIS (AP) — Four veteran politicians were flirting with the French presidency today, and more may be in the offing.

Shortly after, Socialist Gaston Defferre renewed his search for a third force between Gaullism and Communism and sought his party's endorsement to run. And the Communists, rebuffed in an attempt to form a coalition with the Socialists, prepared the nomination of Sen. Jacques Duclos, a party workhorse.

De Gaulle was in seclusion at his home in Colombey-les-Deux-Eglises. Gaullist leaders said he would remain silent until a new president has been selected and would neither support nor repudiate Pompidou's candidacy.

Little Ceremony

Alain Poher, the Centrist Senate president acting as an interim chief executive, went about his business with a minimum of ceremony and appeared undecided about joining the contest. Informants said several Centrist leaders were presuring him to become a candidate.

Poher's principal task is to organize presidential elections. A date will be decided Friday by the cabinet left by De Gaulle when he quit last Monday after French voters defeated a national referendum he had sponsored.

The Cabinet was expected to confirm June 1 as the date for the opening round of the two-stage voting. If there is no majority in the first round, the two high men face each other in a runoff, probably June 15. The presidential term is seven years.

Meanwhile the Communist CGT, France's biggest federation of trade unions, announced it will not take part in the traditional May Day parade because it said it had "precise information" that "leftists" planned to cause trouble.

The CGT had wanted to turn the march into a celebration over De Gaulle's departure, but the union said May Day trouble would only profit "reactionary circles, especially the (Gaullist) civic action committees."

Political observers in Brussels had forecast improved relations between France and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization now that De Gaulle is out. But an article in the May issue of the National Defense Review by the chief of staff of the French armed forces, said to have been prepared weeks ago with De Gaulle's approval, indicated the former president had already softened his stance toward NATO.

In the article, Air Force Gen. Michael Fourquet suggested France's "all or nothing" defense policy of massive nuclear retaliation might be replaced by one of "graduated action," similar to the "flexible response" policy of the United States.

What it amounts to is testing the enemy with conventional air, sea and land forces to determine his intentions and try to scare him off before using atomic strike forces.

De Gaulle had instituted the "all or nothing" policy and forged ahead with his own atomic strike force because he felt the United States would not launch a nuclear reprisal to aid its NATO partners in Europe.

But Fourquet said: "Theoretically, it would suffice to brandish the menace of the strategic nuclear force at the slightest threat of aggression" without necessarily using it.

2 Teen-Agers Killed In Car-Train Crash

OSHKOSH — Two 19-year-old Oshkosh residents were killed early today when the car they were riding in was struck by a Chicago & North Western freight train at Winnebago County Trunk GG, one-half mile east of U. S. 41 between Neenah and Oshkosh.

Killed were: Gary L. Lucas, 743 Frederich St., driver of the car, and Susan E. Schober, 802 N. Sawyer St.

Coroner Art C. Miller said their deaths, at about 1:25 a.m., were caused by severe head injuries.

Police at first feared the car's owner, Michael J. Zwicky, 20, 928 Grand St., had been in the car at the time of the accident. It later was learned he was in Neenah at the time.

County police said the car driven by Lucas was eastbound on County GG and the 45-car freight was southbound when the accident occurred.

J. P. O'Loughlin, North Fond du Lac, the train fireman, told police the train was traveling about 45 miles per hour and the locomotive horn had been sounded some time before the train reached the intersection. As the train neared the crossing, O'Loughlin said, a series of rapid, staccato blasts were sounded to warn the approaching car.

Police said there were no skid marks at the crash scene. The auto was demolished.

It was not until about 7:45 a.m. that police located Zwicky. He said the three had been visiting in Neenah Tuesday night and he had given Lucas permission to use his car.

Senate Backs Down

Pay Hikes for Congressional Leaders Run Into Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate has backed away, at least temporarily, from approving extra pay raises for congressional officials after questions by some members about why they should get less money than their leaders.

When the bill calling for raising the leaders' pay as much as $19,500 a year reached the Senate floor Tuesday, Sen. John C Pastore, D - R.I., objected. "I don't think it costs the speaker (of the House) any more to live in Washington than it costs me," he said.

The bill, already passed by the House, would raise the pay of the vice president and House speaker from $43,000 to $62,500 a year. The president pro temp of the Senate and the majority and minority leaders of both the Senate and the House would get pay raises from $42,500 to $55,000 a year.

Formal Motion

Caught in the middle when the dispute broke out unexpectedly was Vice President Spiro T Agnew, whose pay raise wasn't opposed. In fact, Pastore suggested that only the vice president get the raise.

Amid indications of agreement from other senators, Sen. Peter Dominick, R-Colo., made a formal motion to give only Agnew a raise.

Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., interrupted and asked that the bill be recommitted to his Post Office and Civil Service Committee, which had approved the measure.

That motion carried, 61-21

Earlier this year, Congress raised the President's pay from $100,000 to $200,000 a year.

Shortly thereafter, members accepted for themselves a $12,500 annual increase that sent their salaries to $42,500.

No Direct Vote

That boost, which also saw substantial raises go to federal judges and top officials in the executive department, was the first under a new procedure that does not require a direct vote by Congress.

Unless either the House or Senate vetoes the raises, they take effect automatically 30 days after the President recommends them.

And the whole procedure can be repeated every four years.

The first sign of trouble Tuesday for what had been considered a routine bill to restore premium pay scales for the leaders came on an amendment to abolish the automatic-raise machinery

The amendment was offered by Sen John J. Williams, who failed in his attempt early in the year to stop the first pay raises. But his Tuesday amendment was approved 49-36

With the bill then amended over the objections of its backers, the questioning began about why the leaders, other than Agnew, should get more than their fellow members of Congress.

Joining Pastore were several economy minded senators, including Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D-Va.

"The first thing we did this year was double the President's salary and the second thing we did was to raise our own pay," Byrd said.

"And while we are doing this, we are asking the taxpayers of this nation not only to cope with this terrible inflation but to pay a 10 per cent surtax that we tell them will cure this inflation."

Barry Jr. Joins Father As Member of Congress

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Barry M Goldwater Jr easily won election to Congress Tuesday in his first try for public office.

At a victory celebration, he paid tribute to his dad and mother "for the philosophy they instilled in me of love for God and country and a strong belief in the worth of each of us as individuals."

Republican Goldwater, a 30-year-old bachelor stockbroker, tallied 64,675 votes, or 57 per cent, to 48,933 for Democrat John K. Van de Kamp, 33, an attorney.

The returns were complete but unofficial in the special election to select a successor to Republican Ed Reinecke, who resigned to accept appointment as California's lieutenant governor.

The senior Goldwater, U.S. senator from Arizona and the Republican Party's 1964 presidential candidate, was obviously proud. Placing a hand on his son's shoulder, he told the victory celebrants

"It gives our family another chance to pay a debt to the country that has done so much for us."

The senator's wife and another son, Mike, also were present.

In the campaign, young Barry had emphasized that while he was intensely proud of his father, he didn't want his help.

"This is my campaign, in my district," said Barry Jr. "I live here. I pay taxes here. I owe my loyalty here."

Van de Kamp, also a bachelor and making his first bid for office, contended the name was Goldwater's only major asset, and that he lacked experience. Van de Kamp emphasized his nine years in the U.S. attorney's office and claimed Goldwater was a carpetbagger who had voted in Arizona until last year.

Still an Improvement

Food Prices to Climb Higher Than Expected?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government experts are having second thoughts about their previous optimistic forecast that the increase in food prices this year might be held to between 2 and 2.5 per cent.

The Agriculture Department is in the process of re-examining its earlier projections, "and it may be that we'll find the outlook for food prices will rise as much as 3 per cent over last year," an official said. This still would be an improvement over last year when food prices soared 4.3 per cent.

The department is scheduled to issue a summary report on the national food situation soon Sources say the revised food-cost analysis, to be included in the report, will reflect a larger gain than previously expected.

Last week it was reported that food prices went up four-tenths of one per cent in March —a month in which grocery prices normally remain level. The previous month had shown a drop of two-tenths of a per cent.

Department sources say prices paid to farmers during the first quarter of this calendar year were stronger than economists had expected. This, coupled with continuing inflation in other areas, had caused the concern among some experts that their previous outlook for food prices was too low.

The department's farm price report for the month ending April 15 shows a decline of three-fourths of one per cent in the index for prices farmers receive for their products, but this was the first drop since October.

And most of the April drop came in prices for eggs, milk, lettuce and oranges, the report noted, while "sharply higher" prices were paid to farmers for beef cattle.

County Hospital To Get Federal Training Grant

Expect Official Okay Of $154,000 for In-Service Program

Tentative approval has been given to a $154,000 federal grant to the Outagamie County Hospital for an in-service training program for its 170-member staff.

Eugene Speener, hospital superintendent, said Tuesday he received confirmation that the grant was approved in a recent telephone conversation with officials of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Official approval is expected in the next few days, Speener said.

The grant, which requires no local contribution, will be to provide better training for the patient care staff, he said

The grant is under the federal hospital staff development program. The hospital applied for the funds last September, Speener indicated.

He said this is the largest staff training grant the hospital ever would have received. Previously, the hospital received about $2,000 annually for in-service training, but this did not offer the in-depth training allowed by the new grant.

Speener said the in-service training will upgrade the qualifty of the hospital, which has been the goal of the board of trustees for sometime. The hospital recently reverted to a psychiatric hospital, allowing it to move from a custodial program to a treatment program.

Improving the skills of the staff is one of the keys to upgrading this hospital and bringing its treatment operation to the desired level of a psychiatric hospital, he said.

Speener, who took over the hospital two years ago, said he was pleased to receive the outright grant in light of a tightening federal budget

Will Erect Signs

Two-Hour Parking Limit Set in Brillion

BRILLION — Two-hour parking limits have been established on Main Street in the city's business district, in the municipal parking lot formerly known as the Giese Property and on a portion of Calumet Street, according to an ordinance adopted at a city council meeting Monday.

No parking on a portion of South Jackson Street near the post office is also in effect. Signs are being erected to alert motorists.

Bids on sewer and water installations in the 21-lot Lena Mack Addition will be opened at 8 p m. May 26, the council decided. Engineering and specifications are being prepared by the city's consulting engineers, McMahon Associates, Menasha.

Adequate parking facilities as stipulated by city law, are available at the new Wieting Funeral Home, the owner told the city council. Merlin Wieting appeared at the council session to clarify the parking situation at his establishment.

Answering Service

Wieting's recent agreement with the city to answer the police phone and radio for $30 a month during the hours the city clerk is off duty, was discussed because several residents questioned the setup. The city originally contacted Wieting to see if he was willing to provide the service. The $30 fee established is nominal considering Sunday, holiday and nighttime answering services being rendered, it was decided.

If a sewer line under Wieting's black top parking lot ever has to be dug up, the city agreed to replace the entire lot instead of a patch job. Wieting will seek utility commission approval to black top a small portion of their land adjacent to his, claiming it will be advantageous and useful for funeral purposes and for water department personnel.

Other Action

—Approved a one-day beverage license for a Fire Department safety meeting, May 13 at Horn Park.

—Learned that tavern license applications are ready for publication and must be approved by June 15.

—Approved a planning commission recommendation that the city investigate the possibility of annexing area two on the eastern limits of the city. City planners, Candeub, Fleissig and Associates recommended in April 1967 that the area be annexed to preserve the land for expansion by the Brillion Iron Works, Inc. and the Larson Canning Company. The Finance Committee was assigned to start proceedings.

Waupaca Staff Plans Move

Social Services Unit To Have New Offices

WAUPACA — May 15 will be moving day for the Waupaca County Social Services Department and the 16-member staff will be operating from its new quarters in the county jail building, 1402 Royalton St., after that date.

Robert Payette, director, explained today the real difference it will make to the men, women and children his department serves, when the new quarters are in use.

"We will have adequate and proper space to interview our clients," he began.

"Each of the three rooms we are setting aside for client interview will enable the caseworker to treat each detail of the interview and exchange in confidence and with thoroughness.

Long-Needed Space

"The space we have needed so long will speed the flow of paper work as well," he continued "Two case workers will occupy each of the six offices we have assigned to them"

The new offices, located on the basement level of the county jail building will include a reception and waiting room, a clerical office for four clerks and one case aide, the director's office, the supervisor's office and a conference room for staff meetings

When the building was constructed in 1966, the basement area was left unfinished. In November, 1968, the county board acted to install the necessary offices for the health and social services department Construction of dividing walls began in the 7,000 square foot area in December.

County Nurse's Office

The area is air conditioned, carpeted and each office has two casement windows at ground level. Andy Olkowski is general contractor for the construction, estimated to cost $50,000.

The office of the county nurse also is located in the basement of the jail. Four other offices have been created during the construction project, but have not been assigned by the county board public property committee.

For the first time, a substantial part of the rent expense for the social services department will be paid by the state department of health and social services It is estimated to be 75 per cent of the administrative cost, which previously has been born solely by the county.

Bids for the vacated space at the courthouse have already been registered with the county board. At the April 15 meeting, R F Backer, county clerk, asked for the space for his offices To date, the building committee has made no firm commitment to his or other departments.

NEW LONDON — Ledges Construction Co., Waukesha, is the apparent low bidder for the southeast storm sewer project.

Wiesler Construction Co., Appleton, was next low bidder with a price of $190,546 The high bid by Madsen Contractors Inc, Racine, was $285,765.

Acceptance of the bid of Ledges is expected May 6 at the council meeting.

The merger, was approved by stockholders of both companies March 27, and had not been consummated pending receipt of a tax ruling which now has been received.

Hammermill is a leading manufacturer of business and printing papers with a present annual papermaking capacity of 500,000 tons. Its papermaking operations include divisional operations at Erie; Oswego, N.Y.; Lockhaven, Pa; Strathmore Paper Co., West Springfield, Mass; Beckett Paper Co., Hamilton, Ohio; Watervliet Paper Co., Watervliet, Mich., and Grays Harbor Paper Co., Hoquiam, Wash, a jointly-owned subsidiary with International Telephone and Telegraph.

Alabama Plant

Pulpmaking operations are located at Erie, Lockhaven and Riverdale, Ala.

Thilmany is one of the country's important producers of specialty kraft papers and converted packaging products. These are products which Hammermill does not presently make or sell.

In 1968, Thilmany shipped approximately 142,000 tons of products from its principal plant in Kaukauna.

While Thilmany will become a division of Hammermill, its operation and management will be unchanged.

Answer Calumet Letter

Ehricke Slaps Out At County Welfare

The director of Appleton's relief services rapped the county welfare department Tuesday night in defense of his own program.

Merton Ehricke leveled his criticism in "information sheets" distributed to members of the city council's welfare-ordinance committee. He also passed out copies of the Outagamie County Welfare Department budget for 1969.

Prompting Ehricke's action was a recent letter sent to Mayor George Buckley from the Calumet County Department of Social Services which indicated support for Bill 211-A now pending in the legislature.

The bill calls for elimination of the unit system (local) of relief and would put the dispensing of all relief and welfare on a mandatory countywide basis as recommended by the Tarr Task force government study committee.

Eliminate Department

Ehricke opposes the legislation because, among other things, it will eliminate his department.

In the past, prior to the Tarr report, Buckley advocated combining the city program with the county's.

Ehricke took issue with several statements in the Calumet County Department of Social Services communication received by the mayor's office in March.

He made a point-by-point rebuttal, along with taking verbal pokes at the county welfare department and its staff of caseworkers, claiming he could operate the city welfare program more efficiently and economically.

Ehricke Reply

Replying to certain statements of the Calumet County group, Ehricke declared in part:

"General relief services to have distinct guidelines for need determination.

"The Appleton City Welfare Department uses all possible resources that are available.

"It is ture that each unit system of relief does have its own administrator and it is possible some units could be improved. However, the major-

Companion Of Slain Robber Held

Former Keshena Man Killed in Attempt In Town of Breed

OCONTO (AP)—Oconto County authorities said Tuesday Charles Edwardsen, 30, of Milwaukee, had been arrested and charged with participating in an attempted robbery in which a companion was shot to death Saturday night.

Edwardsen, taken into custody Monday at Fond du Lac, faced arraignment on charges of breaking and entering and attempted burglary, Sheriff John Fisher said.

A statewide alert had been broadcast for the companion of Albert Peters, 31, formerly of Keshena, who was killed as he and another man allegedly tried to rob a service station in the Town of Breed operated by Kenneth Piso.

Peters and Piso struggled for possession of a 16 gauge shotgun held by Piso, the sheriff said. Peters was shot with a .22 caliber pistol which discharged as Piso pulled it from his pocket, and also with the shotgun, according to authorities. The other man fled on foot.

Higher Than Governor Or Mayor

OSHKOSH — A University of Wisconsin professor said Monday afternoon that a public school superintendent can have an enormous impact on may people and deserves to be paid accordingly.

Dr LeRoy Peterson, of the UW School of Education, noted especially the number of young lives that can be affected by a superintendent He spoke during a sectional meeting at the second annual convention of the Wisconsin Association of School District Administrators.

He dismissed the idea that a superintendent should not be paid more than a mayor or the governor "The question is, are we paying the superintendent enough, not is he making more than the governor," he said.

Long Range Effect

He hinted the superintendent can have a more far-reaching and longer range effect on people, particularly young people, than the governor or a mayor.

(In his frequent criticism of Appleton Board of Education spending, Mayor George L. Buckley has questioned the superintendent receiving more than the mayor and nearly as much as the governor.)

The question of superintendent's pay was discussed Monday afternoon following a survey report by Paul Smith, assistant superintendent of schools at Oshkosh who is studying under Peterson. Smith surveyed Wisconsin experts in educational administration, industrial leaders, board of education presidents and school district administrators.

Smith, who noted he expects the association to take a position on superintendent's pay sometime in the near future, cited several points in his report which were thought by the respondents to be important in determining an administrator's salary.

Determining Factors

—Size of the school system is a major determinent. Others are the superintendent's educational and experience level, the minimum and maximum salaries of teachers and the salary level of principals.

—Subjective factors topping the list are the superintendent's ability to relate to others and to administer, leadership, personal qualities, complexity of duties and responsibilities.

—Board of education presidents and the experts see ability to relate to others and administer as the major factors. Relating to others is seeing the needs and desires and meeting them, Smith said.

—Industrial leaders pointed strongly to the cruciality of the job while superintendents noted objective factors such as the experience of the man, education, and others.

—Not factors, said Smith, are administrative help available, length of contract, fringe benefits, community cost of living, the wealth of the system, salary levels of other administrators and city officials and the salary level of business executives.

System Evaluation

In an afternoon speech, Dr. George Brain, dean of the School of Education, Washington State University, Pullman Wash, said a program is apparently on firm ground for continued evaluation of the nation's education system.

The program, a national assessment of four groups of persons from age nine to 35, will assess the quality and progress of American education through a systematic analysis. This will judge subjective as well as objective capabilities of persons, but the report will not be on individuals but on regions.

Fire Station Site Reaffirmed

NEW LONDON — The citizen's advisory committee reaffirmed its position Monday on issues regarding the fire department.

Positions by the committee are:

—The fire station should be combined with the police station because of their related duties.

—The chief engineer position should be retained as the committee feels it affords the city protection nearly equal to a full time fire department. Eliminating this job would be a step backward in fire protection for New London.

The same recommendations were made at a March 31 meeting of the committee.

Studies Made

Duane Brown, a member, presented a synopsis on studies he and other committee members have made since the last meeting.

Brown's representation included a comparison of property values in the city, a proposed site and cost, and why he believed the site would be the most suitable for new fire and police stations.

Eleven city lots comprise the proposed site and would be large enough for construction of a new city hall in addition to the police and fire stations. Adequate space would be available for future expansion also.

Brown said some of the land could be bought immediately and the remainder taken on option if the city would like. Purchase would involve only three homes and a business. He reported the assessed value of the property is $29,000 and the purchase price as appraised by a city realtor was between $80,000 and $100,00.

Disclosure of the suggested site is being withheld until property owners ar contacted and the city public property committee is advised of the suggested location.

Brown added he had visited the site with the police and fire chiefs and both found it suitable for their purposes.

He pointed out the 1968 valuations in the city were $851,474 personal and $2,091,725 real estate on the north side of the river, and $1,586,950 personal and $9,893,090 real estate on the southside.

Further breakdown on the northside property was residential: $158,050 land value and $767,400 improvements; mercantile, $212,600 land, and $1,121,075 improvements, and manufacturing, $11,050 land and $203,250 improvements.

Southside Values

Southside values broken down were residential, $751,675 land and $5,514,965 improvements; mercantile, $120,320 land and $648,225 improvements, and manufacturing, $42,950 land and $2,042,850 improvements

The committee voted to have Brown carry through his study and when all data is assembled to present it to the public property committee and police and fire commission as recommendation of the committee as the most suitable site

Full representation of three members from each civic and service organization in the city is desirable on the advisory committee the group stated. Robert Freiburger, secretary, was directed to contact organizations and try to get them to name delegates to the committee.

Waupaca Tests Begin To Locate Fifth Well For City Water Supply

WAUPACA — A representative for the Layne-Northwest Co., Milwaukee, began sampling strata of the city's fifth well today.

If conditions are favorable, it will be in the northeast section of the city and as close as possible to the Waupaca Foundry addition.

The city council was told by Pres Douglas Johnson and City Engineer Iver Oerter earlier this month that the Waupaca Foundry will be using as much as 3,000 gallons a minute when it is in full operation by April of 1971.

"We are investigating the location of a fifth well and not any too soon," Oerter said today. "Right now we are pumping 3,200 gallons a minute with all four of our wells going. If air pollution controls are made more stringent by the Department of Natural Resources, this will require more water for the foundry's use."

Air Pollution Control

Impurities from the foundry process are passed into water and carried out in settling beds to curtail air pollution, the city engineer explained. Through seepage the water is returned to the water table, or into the Waupaca River, and impurities remain.

Waupaca's water supply is now being obtained from wells numbers 2, 3, and 4. Well No. 1, taking water at 33 feet on the west side of Mirror Lake, is now shut down for the installation of new pumping equipment and revision of the electrical system.

Well No. 2, located west of South Washington Street, operates from a depth of 45 feet. No. 3 east of Berlin Street, gets its water from a 60 foot level. No. 4 has been in operation since March. Located south of Royalton Street, it pumps from a depth of 86 feet.

All of the water is pumped into the distribution system and there is no common collection point. The city has a 285,000 gallon underground reservoir on the hill at the north end of Main Street.

Shiocton Legion Auxiliary Works To Aid Veterans

SHIOCTON — The American Legion Auxiliary, Unit No. 512, has spent $410.39 during the current fiscal year for the care and needs of veterans and their families.

Of this amount, $319.83 represents the value of materials and services to the veteran hospitals and the Grand Army Home at King; $22 in cash; and $68.56 spent in the community for memorials, gifts and cards, and food baskets.

State Moves to End Employment Discrimination

MADISON — To eliminate all appearance of discrimination in employment in Wisconsin because of sex, the State department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations has arranged for the introduction of two bills in the Legislature.

The first would repeal the law, applying only to women, that requires employers in manufacturing or mercantile establishments to provide seats for female employes and to permit their use when they are not necessarily engaged in the active duties for which they were employed

The second would extend the state minimum wage law, which now applies only to women and minors, to cover all employes in intrastate commerce. Federal law covers the majority of employes who are engaged in employment involved in interstate commerce.

The present state law does not set a minimum scale of pay, but authorizes the department to determine a "living wage."

Short-Term Need

Ehricke made strong-worded reference to the Calumet County department's statement that passage of Bill 211-A will provide for administration of relief by the 72 county departments of social services whose primary business is to provide financial aid.

"If the county system of relief is made mandatory," Ehricke said, "it will not be 'county rule' but actually state rule."

He said the state dictated the administration of categorical aids and would do likewise if it got power over general relief.

Tax Revolt

"The people are tired of county and state costs for welfare programs and are actually in a tax revolt," Ehricke continued.

"Your units of relief can answer to the penny their expenditures for administration and relief services. Does the state do this?"

Ehricke said the city welfare department has kept costs down since 1961 with the caseload continually decreasing by getting the hard-core reliefer off the relief rolls.

"Ask yourself these questions," Ehricke added: "Are you satisfied with county welfare costs? Has the county reduced its caseload? What is the percentage of the county budget for welfare costs? What is the record of the county welfare costs for the past eight years?"

At one point Ehricke said the county welfare department was known for its high-salaried personnel and high percentage of turnover. He said under his unit relief system personnel are more permanent.

Women Injured in Car-Truck Crash

WAUPACA — Two young women received only minor injuries Monday afternoon when the car they were in went out of control south of Weyauwega, cut into the opposite lane and into the path of an oncoming truck.

Kathleen H Geoffrey, 19, Mosinee, driver of the car, received cuts and bruises. Her companion Katherine Ostrowski, 19, Stevens Point, complained of pains in her legs. Both were taken to Riverside Community Hospital where Miss Ostrowski was treated and Miss Geoffrey remained until Tuesday.

According to county police, Miss Geoffrey was driving east on U. S. 10 when about 200 feet south of the State 110 junction the car in front of her slowed down. When the Mosinee woman hit her brakes, the car went out of control on the slick roadway and crossed the center line, swinging into the path of a small truck driven by Mrs. John Larson, route 1, Waupaca.

The Geoffrey car was destroyed and damage to the front and side of the truck exceeded $100.

Measure Has 'Symbolic' Value

For First Time, Annexation Bill Might Pass Without Referendum

Post Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — For the first time in the many years of struggle with the rural and suburban interests in the legislature, the League of Wisconsin Municipalities may see an annexation bill become law without referendum, the league learned Tuesday.

Although the Wisconsin Assembly on a preliminary roll call of 50 to 48 voted to kill a league bill that would permit cities and villages to annex "islands" of town territory within their corporate limits on their own motion, officials of the municipal organization were optimistic about the final balloting.

"We have a couple of more votes, at least," said Ed Johnson, the league legislative agent.

Symbolic Value

"As we see it, the bill has a symbolic value," he added, referring to other and more important annexation measures pending in both legislative houses that would give cities more effective means of expanding their boundaries through annexation of unincorporated territory.

The vote was a preliminary skirmish. Assemblyman David Martin, R-Neenah, who supported the league on the issue, voted for killing the measure in error, and was then in a position to move for a reconsideration of the action under the house rules. He promptly did so.

Johnson said the "islands" in city territory are scattered over the map of Wisconsin and that there is no precise count of them. Generally they have resulted from annexations under the restriction of present laws, which requires petitions by the free holders and voters involved. Often some of the residents of a district proposed for annexation resist the move and so are excluded from the annexation ordinance.

Annexations Nullified

Assemblyman Jack Steinhilber, R-Oshkosh, an author of the bill, told the house that court rulings recently, including a decision by Circuit Court Judge Andrew Parnell of Appleton, have held that annexations that result in the creation of such islands are invalid under the law.

He assailed the annexation history of Wisconsin as one of "ridiculous administrative confusion." Some of the city maps of Wisconsin resemble a "spotted leopard or a speckled trout" as a result of the creation of islands of unincorporated territory within them, he complained

Rural legislators repeated the familiar denunciation of what they called "unilateral" annexation, which over the years has come to have the meaning of an epithet in legislative annexation debates

Opposed Bill

Northeastern Wisconsin legislators besides Martin who voted for killing the bill included Assemblymen G. R. Bradley, R-rural Oshkosh, Francis Byers, R-Marion, Ervin W Conradt, R-Shiocton, Herbert Grover, D-Shawano, Gervase Hephner, D-Chilton Lawrence H Johnson, R-Algoma, Lawrence Kafka, R-Denmark, Milton Mc Dougal, R-Oconto Falls, William Rogers, D-Kaukauna, and Cletus VanderPerren, D-rural Brown County

Supporting the measure were Everett Bolle, D-Manitowoc, D K Helgeson, R-Francis Creek, William La Fave R-Peshtigo, Jerome Quinn, R-Green Bay Steinhilber, and Speaker Harold Froehlich, R-Appleton

'Fruit Jar' Death

Congressional Probe Set on Chemical Warfare Stockpile

By JEAN HELLER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress is opening a broad investigation of a series of weapons potentially as deadly and harder to detect than nuclear fallout—including one where a bomb the size of a fruit jar could wipe out all life within a cubic mile without warning or remedy.

The weapons are gas, bacteria and viruses carefully developed and cultivated for death and stockpiled in arsenals and military depots throughout the country.

"Deterrence is our primary objective," Pentagon officials say of the stockpiles. "As a matter of policy, the U.S. will not be the first to use biological weapons."

Nonetheless, Sen. J.W. Fulbright, D-Ark., questioning whether such weapons are needed for any purpose, took his Foreign Relations Committee into executive session today to begin a wide ranging study of chemical-biological warfare.

"If we have substantial stockpiles of matter of this kind, it makes more ridiculous than I thought the idea of building bigger and better nuclear weapons and ABMs," Fulbright said earlier this week in a letter to Rep. Richard D. McCarthy, D-N.Y., a frequent critic of C-B weapons.

Non-Lethal Gasses

Various non-lethal debilitating gases have been used by the United States in Vietnam. The military says tear gas, for example, will flush the enemy from bunkers and tunnels into the open where he can be captured rather than killed.

Chemicals also have been used to strip Vietnam's thick forests of their foliage, depriving the enemy of ground cover.

Military sources concede that some deaths have occurred accidentally due to the use of these milder chemical-biological warfare materials, but insist that no hard-core C-B weapons have been used.

The current congressional inquiry will concentrate on the materials designed to be deadly.

The question to which both Fulbright and McCarthy seek an answer is why the Pentagon spends hundreds of millions of dollars a year on the materials for an all-out chemical-biological war in an age when attacks, second strikes, deterents and safeguard anti-missile systems generally are thought of in terms of nuclear weapons.

$350 Million Budget

The Pentagon's response. We build C-B weapons because our enemies do, and we will continue to develop them as long as our enemies do.

Military officials refused to talk to The Associated Press about C-B warfare but did brief several members of Congress and replied in writing to questions submitted by McCarthy. Part of the briefing and the answers to McCarthy's questions now have been made public.

The Pentagon told McCarthy that the C-B warfare budget for fiscal 1969 would be $350 million, including $5 million for herbicides, or plant killers.

"I find it difficult to accept this budget figure," McCarthy said. "'It is generally admitted that the United States spent about $100 million for defoliants and herbicides last year. I cannot believe that we will buy only $5 million this year."

And McCarthy quoted one report from an investment newsletter which said the Edgewood Arsenal would spend, all alone, $420 million in 1969 for C-B warfare materials.

The Defense Department told McCarthy the United States maintains only a limited offensive capability in chemical weapons.

But in the Rocky Mountain Arsenal and the Tooele Army Depot alone, there are, McCarthy said, about 100 million lethal doses of nerve gas. One Army source said that a single nerve gas bomb the size of a quart fruit jar could kill every living thing within a cubic mile.

The Defense Department admitted that at the present time, there is no device available to detect and warn against biological attack, but said it is working on one.

Defense officials said there is no stockpiling of medical supplies to use as antidotes to biological attack because there are more than 100 biological warfare agents and making large quantities of vaccines against all of them is impossible.

Nerve Gas Antidote

The United States also does not keep the antidote to nerve gas for civilian use, the Pentagon said. But it added that the military does have equipment to protect its personnel against chemical warfare.

McCarthy quoted figures, however, which said the Navy purchases only one-tenth enough atropine, the nerve gas antidote, needed for its total number of personnel.

However, a study reported by McCarthy stated that between 1954 and 1962 at Ft. Detrick, Md., the headquarters for the nation's biological warfare research program, there were 3,300 accidents, half involving such things as broken test tubes and scratches from needles.

In 1959, one worker there caught pneumonic plague, a highly infectious disease. He also was a lifeguard at a swimming pool, but local residents who might have come in contact with him at the pool were not warned of the danger nor, according to McCarthy's report, did the U.S. Public Health Service report the incident to the World Health Organization as required by international agreement.

Earlier, an Army bacteriologist at Ft. Detrick became ill at his home in Frederick, Md. He was placed in a local hospital where his disease went unrecognized. Shortly after being transferred to a base hospital, he died of contagious anthrax.

6,000 Sheep Die

Some 6,000 sheep in Skull Valley, Utah, died last year when nerve gas drifted from a C-B warfare testing area at the nearby Dugway Proving Grounds into the pastures.

McCarthy said he was informed that autopsies done on some sheep showed low-level exposure to the gas. The Army refuses to confirm that its nerve gas caused the sheep deaths but has paid the rancher who owned them nearly $500,000 in damages. Tests of the gas at Dugway were suspended, but now have been resumed.

The Defense Department said it carefully conforms to regulations covering transport of C-B materials overland: there is a layer of sand under the materials during shipment to reduce vibrations and absorb leakage; all shipments are accompanied by escorts; routes are planned to avoid populated centers and materials carried are not volatile.

Yet in the Denver rail yards, McCarthy said a reporter for a local television station found gondola cars carrying what he described as large tanks of nerve gas, a highly volatile substance. The tanks remained in the Denver yard most of the night. The reporter said his cameraman filmed them for an hour and a half and never saw a guard.

Speaking of C-B warfare in general, McCarthy said that most members of Congress know little about it.

"It's covertly covered in the defense appropriations bill," he charged. "We've had this shroud of secrecy over it. We just don't think it would survive in the light of day."

Shoplifting Law Would Make Arrests Easier

Concealment of Goods Evidence Of Intent to Steal

MADISON — Concerned about heavy and continuing losses to thieves, merchandisers have mounted another campaign to persuade the legislature to enact legislation they claim would discourage shoplifting by making apprehension of violators easier.

The issue has been before the legislature repeatedly during the last decade and the merchants' bills have shown increasing strength as evidence of the scope of the shoplifting problem has accumulated.

The new proposal is similar to that which narrowly missed approval in the preceding legislature and it has been presented with bipartisan support.

Sufficient Evidence

It would provide that the intentional concealment of unpurchased merchandise either inside or outside the merchant's store is sufficient evidence of intent to deprive the merchant of the possession of the goods without paying for them.

The discovery of unpurchased merchandise concealed upon the person or among his belongings or concealed by a person upon the person or belongings of another would be sufficient evidence of concealment in the proposed new law.

The controversial provision of the bill is that which would permit a merchant, a merchant's adult employe or policeman who has probable cause for believing that a person has violated the act to detain the person for a reasonable time to make an investigation.

Law Impractical

Merchants complain that the present rule requiring them to summon a policeman when they suspect a shoplifter is impracticable and has permitted the volume of such thefts to increase to huge dimensions.

The new proposal also would provide that proof of "probable cause" and the reasonableness of the detention of the suspect is a legal defense to any civil or criminal action for false imprisonment.

State Urged to Broaden Its Birth Control Laws

MADISON (AP) — Gov. Warren P. Knowles and state legislators asked by a welfare recipient to please vote for me" heard appeals Tuesday from a Milwaukee delegation to broaden the state's birth control laws.

"I'm not here to promote immorality or illicit sex. I'm interested in qualities of life for my children," said Mrs. Pamela Moore, who told the governor she and her four children are getting public aid.

The 21-member delegation which met with Knowles carried placards in support of legislative proposals which would allow physicians and pharmacists to supply unmarried persons with birth control devices.

Leaders of the delegation appeared later before a legislative committee which was reviewing a Republican suggestion that birth control statutes become more strict.

They protested that family planning has become a dirty word because of archaic Wisconsin laws which for three decades have described contraceptives as indecent articles.

Unwanted Children

Family planning makes happy families, a placard read.

Thomas Van Alvea Jr., identifying himself as a Milwaukee businessman, said he resents paying for unwanted things and that "many, many people in Milwaukee have unwanted children."

"You're a little premature," Knowles told the delegation, saying he cannot predict what the shape of birth control legislation would be by the time lawmakers get through acting on the various conflicts between bills for easing and strengthening contraceptive laws.

A delegation spokesman, John Franks, said enactment of laws to make birth control information and contraceptives more available would help immensely in reducing state welfare costs.

Mrs. Moore spoke to the Assembly Public Welfare Committee during a hearing on a bill to strengthen the present law by forbidding advertisement of contraceptives or abortion-inducing articles and prohibiting use of public money to provide birth control information.

"Please vote for me and against this bill," she said.

Mrs. Paul Henderson of Brookfield said the proposed bill discriminates against women, the poor and the uneducated.

Feeling Guilty

"We who can afford it object to feeling guilty when we ask our doctors for assistance for our engaged sons and daughters," she said, adding she represents the Wisconsin Association of University Women.

Mrs. Leon Joseph, a welfare worker from Milwaukee who accompanied the protestors, said she had counseled many women about to get a job and get off relief who got pregnant again instead.

This bill is an arrogant attempt to force people to have children they cannot raise without public support," complained Mrs. J. C. Gander of Milwaukee representing the Responsible Parenthood Association of Wisconsin.

"It violates freedom of speech, and I will continue to discuss birth control whether this bill becomes law or not, and I challenge the State of Wisconsin to challenge me," she said.

James Sykes of Madison opposed the bill in behalf of the Public Welfare Committee of the Dane County Board.

Author of Bill

He said his committee has passed a resolution favoring voluntary family planning advice.

Supporters of the bill maintained that the government should not be involved in family planning.

Assemblyman Kenneth Merkel, R-Brookfield, author of the bill, said giving welfare workers the right to counsel persons about family planning would open the door to legalizing abortion, sterilization and mandatory birth control for married couples as well as unmarried persons.

Mrs. D. C. Magilka of Milwaukee, representing the Reverence for Life Committee, said the bill would prevent "abortion classes such as we had in Milwaukee last year which included a do-it-yourself method."

"It may be true you can't legislate morality," said Mrs. Richard Lindmark of Butler, secretary of the Civic Awareness Organization. "But it is becoming clearer that you can legislate immorality whitewashed by the 'swingers' of our time," she said.

Price Tag Switch on Fishing Gear Catches Alleged Purchaser

Dennis G. O'Dell, 18, 2323 Southwood Drive, whom police allege switched price tags on fishing gear April 21 at the H. C. Prange Co., appeared in Outagamie County Court, Branch 2, Tuesday on a charge of obtaining property by false representation.

Judge Nick F. Schaefer continued his case to Friday to allow O'Dell time to consult an attorney. Bond was set at $50.

Police contend O'Dell took a $16.97 price tag from fishing gear and replaced it with a $5.45 tag then attempted to purchase the gear for the lower price.

Woman Fined for Selling Beer to 17-Year-Olds

Mrs. Robert Ludwig, route 2, Kaukauna, agent for Ludwig Lanes, Inc., who last week was found guilty of selling beer to minors was fined $100 and costs or 25 days in jail Tuesday.

A 12-member Outagamie County Court jury last Thursday found her guilty of selling beer to two 17-year-old boys on Feb. 3, 1968, at the Freedom tavern-bowling lanes.

The charge was brought by an agent of the Wisconsin Department of Justice enforcement bureau who said he saw the two under age Freedom youths purchase beer in the tavern.

KAUKAUNA — Norbert E. Boldt, 21, 209 S. Lee St., Appleton, pleaded guilty to following an emergency vehicle too closely and was fined $20 Monday morning when arraigned before Municipal Justice Clarence O'Connor.

Boldt was arrested early Sunday when he followed an ambulance to Kaukauna Community Hospital where he entered the emergency room and said he was an employe of the ambulance service. The driver of the emergency vehicle said he was employed by the ambulance firm 13 years and had never seen Boldt before.

Appleton Pupil Places 2nd in State Contest

Separate Agency Urged for Student Disciplinary Cases

MADISON (AP) — Establishment of an independent agency to hear student disciplinary cases was advocated Tuesday night by the president of the University of Wisconsin's Board of Regents.

Charles Gelatt of La Crosse told a joint legislative investigation committee that a judge or attorney should preside over disciplinary cases because of U. S. Supreme Court rulings that students must not be denied due process.

Because a faculty should be "dedicated to the students' welfare, Gelatt said an independent agency that is professionally oriented and free of faculty control is the answer.

The legislative committee was created to investigate student unrest after National Guard troops were sent to the University of Wisconsin in February during campus protests.

Three Reasons

H. Edwin Young, chancellor of the Madison campus, is to testify tonight. President Fred H. Harrington is to be called before the committee next week.

Gelatt told the committee he feels there were three primary reasons for the recent rise in campus unrest.

He said the Vietnam war and problems of Negroes were among the major factors.

"I regret the war and I feel for the blacks, but I do not feel that the tactics of the youth will help solve either of those problems," Gelatt remarked.

The regent listed the traditional struggle between town and gown, caused by the idealism of youth and the Supreme Court's rulings on due process as other reasons for growing campus unrest.

Gelatt said he knew of no way the university could have prevented the disturbances that occurred in February.

"I don't know what steps one could have taken that would have prevented disruption without also exacting a serious degredation of the academic program," he said.

Gelatt said the action the university took in calling quickly for police and National Guardmen prevented greater disruption from developing.

What the administration did in February was a great improvement from what it did in October of 1967, he said referring to an anti-war demonstration in which about 70 students were injured in skirmishes with police.

Police Training School Finances Are Studied

Federal Reimbursement Eyed for State Course Handling 600 Recruits Annually

MADISON — Police and other law enforcement service recruits are being employed at a rate of 600 or more annually in the state, the Council on Criminal Justice has informed the legislature

The report came in a fiscal analysis of the plan for the establishment of a police training program under state government auspices which has substantial bipartisan support in the legislature.

Democrats and Republican Gov Knowles have arranged the introducing of separate but similar proposals for such state-sponsored training facilities, suggesting strongly that such specialized schooling will be authorized by legislative act this year.

The council's memorandum suggested that a three-week training course, with living allowances paid for about 600 trainees each year could be arranged at a cost of about $300,000 annually.

Recover Costs

But it also suggested the probability that about 60 per cent of such cost could be recovered through grants in aid from the federal government under the Crime Control and Safe Streets act of 1968.

Such a reimbursement might be attractive to the legislature at a time when its members are concerned about the likelihood of a big revenue deficit for the ordinary operations of the state government during the biennial term

The legislature has decided that no incidental expenditure bills will be considered until the state budget issue has been resolved, which probably means that any action on such auxiliary expenditure items is many weeks distant

Children's Cottages Out

Winnebago State Feels Effect of Budget Cuts

MADISON (AP) — The Joint Finance Committee, having already recommended $20 million be cut out of the Department of Health and Social Services' 1969-71 budget requests, voted Tuesday to eliminate $8 9 million more

The budget - reviewing committee's latest action involves the department's request for funds with which to develop a centralized food handling facility for state institutions, and could delay for two years plans on four other major projects.

Wilbur Schmidt, department secretary, said the food facility would allow the state to save money by preparing whole sides of beef for refrigerated shipment to state institutions.

The department, he said, is only "trying to move in the direction of efficiency and that requires a substantial initial investment"

He estimated the state could saving $110,000 annually through central food handling

Children's Cottages

Also included among the Tuesday reductions in the department's proposed $25 9 million building budget were plans for children's cottages at the Winnebago and Mendota state hospitals, and administration buildings at the Northern and Southern colonies.

Left for further consideration was a proposed power generating station for state buildings at Waupun.

The Winnebago, Mendota, Northern and Southern eliminations were recommended by Assemblyman David Martin of Neenah and Sen. Chester Dempsey of Hartland, two Republicans who serve as a subcommittee to study State Building Committee proposals.

Joint Finance Committee members criticized the centralized food handling proposal, saying it could mean state government competition with private enterprise, which they described as adequate for supplying the institutions.

Interim Plan Badly Beaten By Assembly

MADISON (AP)—The Assembly refused overwhelmingly Tuesday to approve a plan under which a special committee would handle reapportionment of legislative districts should the full legislature fail to take action.

A measure calling for creation of an interim reapportionment commission, whose decisions would be subject to court review, was beaten 95-2.

The commission would have acted in the absence of legislative action after a federal census or issuance of a court directive

The Assembly gave preliminary endorsement to a proposed constitutional amendment which would reduce the state's minimum voting age to 19 from 21.

The action was taken without floor debate, although a motion calling for suspension of rules to allow an immediate vote was defeated

Sponsors of the age-reduction measure are Assemblyman Frank Nikolay, D-Abbotsford, and Assemblymen Kyle Kenyon of Tomah and Jack Stemhilber of Oshkosh, both Republicans

The preliminary action, approved 56-40, advances the proposal to a stage for possible adoption in a joint resolution

Bow, Arrows Charge Brings Forfeited Bond

Douglas J Stroess, 18, 741 E Murray Ave., forfeited a $32 bond in Outagamie County Court Branch 2 Tuesday on a charge of possessing a bow and arrows along the shores of inland waters between March 2 and April 21.

Conservation wardens cited Stroess April 19 along the Fox River near E. John Street in Appleton.

Weapon-Prison Bill Approved

Mandatory Term Measure Returns For Assembly OK

MADISON (AP) — A bill to require mandatory two-year prison sentences for felonies committed while using a dangerous weapon passed in the Wisconsin Senate Tuesday on a voice vote

The bill, which originated in the assembly, now goes back to that house for action on a Senate amendment changing the wording of the bill from armed with a dangerous weapon to using a dangerous weapon

In floor debate, Sen. Gerald Lorge, R-Bear Creek, said the bill was "an insult to the judicial history of Wisconsin and will tie the hands of the court"

"I think some of the judges need their hands tied," replied Sen. Gordon Roseleip, R-Darlington. "We've got to look at what the people want done," he added

Sen. Ernest Keppler, R-Sheboygan, senate majority leader, urged passage of the bill "to get tough with the hoodlum element in our society.

"This bill put these people where they belong—in the jug. And it will put the judges on the spot, where they belong."

In other action, the senators passed two Assembly bills intended to counter campus demonstrations

One bill would require university permission to operate sound-amplifying equipment in buildings or on campus. It is aimed at regulating bullhorns which students frequently use at rallies and demonstrations.

Another bill would require students suspended or expelled for disruption to obtain permission from the administration to be present on campus. The bill provides a maximum penalty of $500 and six months imprisonment for violations.

Both bills passed on voice votes
